REFUSES TRANSFUSION

Young Witness Flees Hospital

Police Launch Search

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police launched a widespread search early today for a 15-year-old girl who fled from a hospital Tuesday night after refusing blood transfusions for religious reasons.

Miriam Myllyniemi of Penticton, a Jehovah's witness, was in St. Paul's Hospital as a ward of the British Columbia Children's Aid Society pending the outcome of a lengthy legal battle over her rights to refuse a transfusion.

Miriam's mother, Dorothy Myllyniemi, who also objects to her daughter receiving transfusions, brought an action in B.C. family court challenging the custody of the Children's Aid Society.

The girl's blood count was reported low and her condition serious in bulletins issued by police. She is suffering from a kidney disorder and was due to receive a transfusion Tuesday night or early today.

DIE FIRST

Miriam has said she would rather die than submit to a transfusion.

"I do not think the situation is as desperate as some people are making it out to be," said Tony Pantages, the girl's lawyer. "This is a serious religious problem with the girl. I don't know what other provocations there were."

Mr. Pantages indicated he talked to the girl after she left the hospital amid visiting hour crowds.

He said he advised her to return to hospital rather than be picked up by police but did not indicate what her response was.

MARTIN ANSWERS CHARGE BY MONTREAL NEWSMAN

Spying Activities Denied

OTTAWA (CP)—The government stiffly denied Tuesday a journalist's claim that Canadians on the International Control Commission in Vietnam spy for the United States.

In a three-sentence statement on the report by Gerald Clark, associate editor of the Montreal Star, External Affairs Minister Martin said Canadians "are not engaged in any clandestine or spying activities."

Mr. Clark, who spent two months in Southeast Asia, wrote the Canadians are "functioning as spies when they are supposed to be serving as international civil servants." Meanwhile Mr. Martin talks of a peacekeeping role for the commission.

His critical front-page Star story said the Canadians "are betraying their trust" by passing on first-hand observations of North Vietnam to U.S. intelligence. Effectiveness of U.S. bombing attacks and other items of military significance are handed over.

Members of the tri - partite commission have access to both North and South Vietnam. Their role was originally truce supervision following France's forced military withdrawal from Vietnam in 1954.

The Martin statement added that Canada, like the other two commission members — Poland and India—conducts a quasi-diplomatic task in the war.

That involves "observation of local conditions and discussions with local authorities in both the North and the South in the course of normal commission activities.

Tim Ralfe, a CBC Ottawa correspondent who spent six months in Vietnam last year, said in broadcasts following the Star story it was no secret the Canadians co-operated with the Americans in Vietnam.

He recalled the head of the Canadian military mission on the commission took photographs and made tape record-

Royal Navy Puts Away Its Canes

LONDON (Reuters) — Caning in the Royal Navy — a form of punishment probably as old as the navy itself — has been abolished, the defence ministry announced Tuesday night.

Gerald Reynolds, defence minister for administration, told Parliament the ministry decided to get rid of the form of discipline to bring the navy into line with the army and air force.

A defence ministry spokesman said after the announcement that caning was only used at two boys' naval schools for violations such as violence, bullying, theft or continuous disobedience. There were 69 canings in the last 12 months, he said.

MHO Warns of Posting In Typhoid Epidemic Fear

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

"Danger — Contaminated Water" signs could replace the "Welcome Tourists" signs in the View Royal area this summer.

Chief Metro Health Officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said today he is giving serious consideration to posting signs on all ditches and creeks in View Royal warning that all are contaminated and must be considered as a major threat to health.

"The situation is extremely serious," he said. "We have warned again and again of the growing hazard with little result. I think the next step will be the posting of signs warning parents that they are endangering the health of their children when they let them play near ditches and creeks in the area."

Dr. Whitbread said he had a real fear of a major outbreak of typhoid or cholera this summer.

"It would be disastrous for the community if such a thing happened," he said. "The tourist industry would be ruined for years.

"People seem to think it can't happen here. Have they forgotten the typhoid outbreak in Aberdeen, Scotland, in 1963-1964? That outbreak was not confined to Aberdeen. Visitors to Aberdeen were contaminated and carried the disease to other parts of Scotland, to England and even to Canada.

"It could happen here unless something is done to correct the situation which sees every ditch in the View Royal area seriously polluted."

Dr. Whitbread added that though typhoid and infectious hepatitis are the major concerns of his department at present, the spectre of cholera is also present.

"There are people who think that cholera is confined to Asiatic countries," he said. "But historical records show that it can strike in northern temperate zones, too. London has had a cholera epidemic—in which 615 died. Hamburg has had a cholera epidemic, so have other cities with climates similar to ours.

Asked if anti-typhoid shots would provide the answer to the danger Dr. Whitbread said that short of closing the southern end of the Island to visitors they would be of little use.

"The View Royal area is full of motels," he said. "Indeed the entire Greater Victoria area depends heavily on the tourist trade. It would be of little use to give residents anti-typhoid shots with so many transients passing in and out of the area."

Dr. Whitbread added that

Canada Expands Viet Medical Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — Maurice Strong, director of Canadian external aid, said today Canadian medical services in South Vietnam will be expanded.

Dr. Alje Vennema of Burlington, Ont., will be put in charge of the program.

Dutch-born Dr. Vennema, 34, who has been working in Vietnam for more than three years, outlined his plans for expansion of medical services:

—Backup medical supplies for all 20 units.

—Sending of a complete medical team to Vietnam.

—Training of more Vietnamese doctors.

RETURNS SOON

Mr. Strong and Dr. Vennema described the plans in an interview here. Dr. Vennema will return next week to Vietnam, where he sees at least 200 patients a day.

Mr. Strong said money is not a limiting factor in what Canada can do medically in South Vietnam. The problem was to work out suitable projects in co-operation with the Vietnamese.

Children in the Saigon area have been inoculated against polio and smallpox. This program will be extended to cover as many as possible in South Vietnam.

SUPPLIES NEEDED

Dr. Vennema said there is a shortage of drugs, bandages and medical supplies.

A complete medical team will be sent to Vietnam, one by one as recruited.

The TB clinic will be expanded into a sanatorium with 50 beds and a complete laboratory and x-ray services. Two more doctors and two technicians will be sent to Quang Ngai. A TB immunization program will be carried out.

Dr. Vennema said more Vietnamese doctors will be trained at Hue.

HAIPHONG CONVERTED INTO BATTLEFIELD

HONG KONG (Reuters)—North Vietnam's main seaport, Haiphong, has been converted into "a giant battleground, an immense sea of fire to consume the reckless United States moths," the North Vietnam news agency said today.

The agency said anti-aircraft guns are manned by workers and peasants of both sexes in Haiphong and neighboring areas.

SAIGON (UPI)—United States Navy jets today returned to the key North Vietnam port of Haiphong and bombed two power plants within the city limits and Kien An, the huge MiG interceptor base on the outskirts, spokesmen said.

The bombers streaked through heavy anti-aircraft fire that knocked down a U.S. Navy Skyhawk, the 536th American plane lost over North Vietnam.

BEING DEVELOPED

New Defence Uses X-Rays On Missiles

NEW YORK (AP)—A Pentagon official said Tuesday the United States is developing a missile defence system that would use tremendous bursts of X-rays from thermonuclear explosions to destroy incoming missile warheads, the New York Times says.

The Washington story says congressional testimony by the Pentagon official, Dr. John S. Foster Jr., disclosed that this recently - adopted approach of using X-rays to destroy warheads at high altitudes has opened a new concept in missile defence.

It has also made it possible to develop an "area defence," said Foster, director of defence research and engineering, the story adds.

The story also says in part: The wide destructive range of X-rays, defence officials indicated, has greatly simplified the complex problem of intercepting and destroying ballistic missile warheads.

Thus, for high-altitude interception, it would no longer be necessary to aim defence missiles directly at the incoming warhead.

U.S. 'GUILTY' IN VIETNAM RUSSELL TRIBUNAL FINDS

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—The United States today was found guilty of committing war crimes in Vietnam on two counts by British philosopher Bertrand Russell's "war crimes tribunal."

The tribunal said that the United States was proved to have committed aggression in Vietnam under international law and it also was guilty of bombing North Vietnam.

The tribunal's findings were based on the 1928 Kellogg-Briand pact under which the U.S. and France renounced war as a means of settling international disputes.

The judgment also invoked the United Nations Charter, the Nuernberg war crimes statutes and the 1954 Geneva agreements on Vietnam.

The judgment was a foregone conclusion. Even before it was issued an authoritative source said that the tribunal was ready to find the United States guilty on the two counts.

The sources aid that the judgment was based on decisions reached at a late conference of tribunal members Tuesday night.

As expected, the judgment came in the form of a concluding statement on the tribunal's hearings and did not prescribe a sentence.

A sentence was expected to be handed down when the tribunal resumes hearings here next October. The pattern for the sentence will follow the lines established at the Nuernberg trials of Nazi leaders after the Second World War.

The jury — as its executive president, Jean-Paul Sartre, has called the tribunal — was deadlocked Tuesday night on the actual wording of the final statement, the source added.

The split appeared to be between members who wanted outright condemnation of the United States and other members — notably Sartre, British historian Isaac Deutscher, Yugoslav historian Vladimir Dedijer and American pacifist Dave Dellinger — who took a more moderate line.

SPENT $1 MILLION ON FAKE MASTERS

Texas Oilman Bilked by Art Dealer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Authorities on two continents today were investigating the case of a Texas multimillionaire who was bilked out of a fortune in forged paintings by a notorious French art dealer.

More than $1 million was reported to have been spent for the faked paintings by Alger H. Meadows of Dallas, chairman of the General American Oil Co. of Texas, it was disclosed Tuesday.

The art dealers association of America said it had advised Meadows that 44 of the 58 oil paintings, sketches and water colors he purchased during the past four years are fakes—and not very good ones at that.

Ralph F. Colin, a New York lawyer and an officer of the association, said all but 11 of the 58 apparently were bought from a notorious Parisian dealer who makes "periodical trips to the United States to unload forged pictures."

MEADOWS
. . . money down well

French authorities were reportedly investigating the dealer as head of an international forgery ring. The FBI in New York disclosed that it had entered the case, along with the office of Manhattan district attorney, Frank S. Hogan.

Colin said the Meadows collection included 15 forged works purportedly by Dufy; seven by Modigliani; nine by Derain; five by Vlaminck, and two by Bonnard. Other fakes were represented to have been done by Degas, Picasso, Chagall, Cassatt, Laurencin, and Marquet.

Although Meadows was given certificates of authenticity when he purchased the paintings, Colin declared, "it's even easier to forge certificates of authenticity than it is to forge paintings.

WHAT'S UP FRONT doesn't count . . . at least this is the new prediction of Marshall McLuhan, the Toronto professor who has a lot of theories on communications. The shape of things to come for womanhood will be the "Twiggy-Look" instead of the "Sophia Loren-Look". Of Twiggy, the skeletal British model, he says: "She not a picture; she's an X-ray. She's geometrical, abstract." Of Sophia, the shapely Italian actress, we say: "Nuts to that McLuhan theory."

PENTAGON SQUATTERS KEEP UP VIET VIGIL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Youthful anti-war demonstrators, who kept an overnight vigil inside the Pentagon, showed no sign today of giving up.

One of the group said 13 demonstrators were fasting. The three who chose to eat were using the Pentagon's cafeteria, he said.

Nurses Ask Premier To Broaden Inquiry

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 900 psychiatric and registered nurses employed in provincial mental health services appealed Tuesday to Premier Bennett to enlarge the scope of the government probe into their wage demands.

Faye Hartford, secretary of the Psychiatrict Nurses' Association of B.C. said the appeal resulted from the failure of Health Minister Black to act on protests that the terms of reference of an investigation planned by the Civil Service Commission are too narrow.

The association is asking the premier to allow the fact finding panel appointed by the commission to discuss six key issues which the commission barred in talks last week.

These issues involve conciliation and arbitration procedures, recognition of professional nurses associations and improper grievance procedures.

The association set Tuesday as the deadline for a reply from Mr. Black on the issues.

The executive of the association will recommend this week that the nurses resubmit their resignations. Russ Martin, president, said he expected over 85 per cent of the members to take their resignations out of trust and submit them over the weekend.

Poor Sewage Blamed For Deaths

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver doctor Tuesday blamed poor sewage disposal for the high incidence of infectious hepatitis in British Columbia.

Dr. Gerald H. Bonham, director of the North Shore public health unit, told a water and waste symposium at the University of British Columbia that the disease, a rare one in most places, is still common in B.C.

He said the reason for this high rate is that "we lag behind over provinces in the provision of sewage collection and disposal systems."

"We still have large urban areas using septic tanks and these are failing to do the job," he said.

He estimated that proper sewage disposal systems would be 75 per cent effective in reducing the risk of seepage into open ditches where people — usually children — pick up the hepatitis virus.

Dr. Bonham pointed out that since 1960 there have been about 600 reported cases of the disease in metropolitan Vancouver, 29 of which have been fatal.

GREEKS GIVE LONG-HAIRS SHORT SHRIFT

ATHENS (UPI) — Greece, the ancient home of bearded philosophers, was closed today to the unshaven. The military regime banned bearded and long-haired beatnik tourists.

A ruling by Interior Minister Brig. Gen. Stylianos Pattakos and Minister of Public Order Paul Totomis said, "Entry into Greece is not allowed of foreigners having a beard or long hair."

All travellers to the beautiful Grecian islands were also advised to bring cash in hand, plenty of razor blades and visit a barber regularly.

The new edict further warned, "These foreign tourists, if they still desire to enter Greece, will have to cut their hair and shave their beards, keeping this state of their appearance during the whole period of their stay in Greece."

ings of a U.S. raid on oil dumps near Hanoi last June. They were passed to the Americans.

Copies of Canadian despatches from the North Vietnamese capital en route to Canada are given to the American embassy in Saigon.

But Mr. Ralfe said there is not much the Canadians can tell the U.S. of a strictly military nature about North Vietnam.

In Hanoi, Canadians are not allowed outside the city, although they can move fairly freely within.

Mr. Ralfe said that more than once Canadians told him they regarded their role as American spokesmen on the commission. They left no doubt their sympathies lay with the Americans.

In Montreal, Mr. Clark says in a statement published by The Star today:

"I could hardly expect Mr. Martin to confirm that Canadian members of the ICC are exceeding their normal duties by acting as informants for U.S. intelligence.

"But if Mr. Martin is not aware of what is going on among officers in southeast Asia, he should ask questions before issuing a flat denial."

Soviet Ship Bumps American Destroyer

WASHINGTON (AP)—A U.S. Navy destroyer and a Soviet destroyer scraped together in the Sea of Japan today, the U.S. defence department said.

From the Pentagon statement it appeared that the Soviet ship had been harassing the American vessel.

The U.S. destroyer was the Walker, assigned to an anti-submarine task group.

The Pentagon said the collision, a minor one, occurred when the Soviet destroyer attempted to overtake and pass the U.S. destroyer.

For 1½ hours before the accident, the defence department said, "the Soviet destroyer had been operating in close proximity" and was repeatedly warned" to avoid such dangerous manoeuvres."

No one was reported injured and there was only minor damage to the ships involved.

Papandreou Charged With High Treason

ATHENS (AP)—Andreas Papandreou was charged today with conspiring to commit high treason in the alleged Aspida plot to overthrow the Greek monarchy and make Greece a neutral, socialist state.

The charge was filed by the Athens investigating magistrate, Socrates Socratidis, after he questioned the 47-year-old son of former premier George Papandreou at the hotel outside Athens where he had been confined since the military coup April 21. The maximum penalty for treason is death.

Fifteen army officers were convicted of treason in March in the case and sentenced to prison terms ranging from two to 18 years, but Andreas as a member of Parliament was protected by parliamentary immunity.

His immunity was cancelled by the coup.

U.S. officials have sought assurance from the new military regime that Andreas, who gave up acquired American citizenship to enter Greek politics in 1961, would not be executed if convicted.

In Paris Gen. Gregory Spandidakis, the deputy premier and defence minister, told reporters Tuesday night that the elder Papandreou, who is 79, would be released today from the army hospital where he has been held under guard since the coup.

ATHENS (UPI) — Interior Minister Stylianos Pattakos said Tuesday night that 6,138 political prisoners still are being held on the island of Yiaros in the Aegean Sea but he expects half of them to be released within the next two weeks.

Pattakos, a brigadier general and a leader of the military junta now ruling Greece, told newsmen he flew by helicopter to the island Tuesday morning to inspect the living conditions of the prisoners.

He said most of the prisoners, rounded up during the early morning of April 21 when the Greek army seized power, were living in tents.

Kennedy Talks Continuing

BRUSSELS (AP) — Working under pressure of a Sunday deadline, cabinet ministers of the European Common Market assembled in Brussels today to discuss unresolved issues in the Kennedy Round tariff negotiations with the United States.

The tariff talks in Geneva recessed until Friday after William Roth, President Johnson's special representative, and Jean Rey of Belgium, the chief Common Market negotiator, failed to agree on a system for lowering U.S. tariffs on chemicals and on a world-wide grain agreement.

while there is no thought at present of closing motels, such action would have to be taken speedily at the first signs of a typhoid or cholera outbreak.

"These are serious diseases and must be treated seriously," he said. "The danger is very real."

"The problem of sewage effluent escapement into the ditches which flow into Millstream or Craigflower Creeks, or into either Portage Inlet or Esquimalt Harbor is widespread," Dr. Whitbread said.

SEWAGE SYSTEM

"There is dire need for the properties at the Goldstream Avenue intersection, and the whole of View Royal, to commence planning for an over-all sewerage system."

Dr. Whitbread said only by early planning would the View Royal area be ready to meet the requirements of the regional district when the sewerage disposal master-plan came into effect.

The health officer said the increase in poilution sprang from the building of new motels or additions to existing motels in the area.

He warned that an outbreak of typhoid would not be confined to View Royal. "It would hit the entire Greater Victoria area, an area which, depending heavily as it does on the tourist trade, could be disastrously affected."

Coun. Edith Gunning, Saanich, suggested that Dr. Whitbread's report along with added comments be forwarded to the regional districts special technical committee studying sewage problems.

"I realize that it is your duty to point out the emergency situation," she said. "But on these matters we need financial and engineering advice. I feel a little alarmed that the entire sewerage disposal plan could be jeopardized by one area moving on its own."

Dr. Whitbread replied that it was not his job, nor the job of his staff, to ponder financial and engineering problems.

"It is our job to provide the warning," he said. "We have done this repeatedly. If there is an epidemic it will not be the fault of the health board or its employees.

"We think that action should be taken speedily."

Board members agreed that the health officer's report should be forwarded immediately to the regional district with a recommendation for fast action to eliminate the problem.

the possible danger to Miriam, and said the girl told her:

"I'd rather die this way than accept a transfusion. If I agreed to accept it, I would break God's commandment and jeopardize my life in the Kingdom of God."

Miss Holt said the girl and her mother then drove away with friends.

Miriam was unsuccessful in an escape attempt earlier in the day. She was spotted outside the hospital trying to hail a taxi, but hospital officials bundled her back inside.

CLOTHES IN LOCKER

The second time, she apparently took her clothes from a locker and slipped out unnoticed as hospital visitors left after the evening visiting hour.

The Children's Aid Society took her into custody Jan. 17, four days after she was admitted to St. Paul's. Mrs. Myllyniemi took the case to court shortly thereafter.

Judge Earl Vance has reserved decision on the case, and was expected to hand down judgment later this week.

The case started in 1960 when the society took Miriam into custody while she was a patient in a children's hospital. Grounds for the action were that a lack of medical and surgical care would be likely to interfere with the girl's normal development.

'Stones' Pick Jury Trial On Drugs

CHICHESTER, England (UPI) — Mick Jagger and Keith Richard of the Rolling Stones chose trial by jury today when they appeared in a mob-besieged court on charges of hemp smoking and having stimulants at a party at Richard's home.

Hundreds of mini-skirted teenagers milled outside Chichester magistrate's court screaming and shouting when singer Jagger, guitarist Richard and art gallery owner Robert Fraser faced the charges. Some had been there all night.

Extra police with walkie-talkies struggled to control the mob and clear a passage for the defendants.

Prosecutor Anthony McCowan said police found what "appeared to be a party in progress at which were eight men and one woman." In the search they found hemp, briar pipes which had been used for smoking it, heroin tablets and amphetamine stimulants, he said.

FOUGHT WITH BROWN OVER POLICY

Aden Envoy Fired by U.K.

LONDON (AP) — The British government is going to fire its high commissioner in Aden, Sir Richard Turnbull, and appoint Sir Humphrey Trevelyan, former ambassador to Peking, Moscow, and Cairo, to replace him, high official sources reported today.

Turnbull, who has been high commissioner for the last 2½ years, now is in London and was reported to have urged Foreign Secretary George Brown to guarantee British protection to a coalition government in South Arabia that would include Arab nationalists.

This would require reversing the government's plan to withdraw all but a handful of British troops after Aden and South Arabia became independent in 1968.

Diplomatic sources said Brown and Turnbull had heated exchanges on the matter. The foreign secretary was reported to have taken the position that a United Nations presence would be the best guarantee against attempts by supporters of Egyptian President Nasser to take over the area.

RETURN IN HUFF

Turnbull also has been accused of failing to help a UN mission which went to Aden last month, charged with trying to arrange for peaceful transition of the territory to independence. The mission returned to New York in a huff, charging that British officials would not co-operate with it.

Prime Minister Wilson discussed the situation in South Arabia today with Saudi Arabian King Feisal, who began a state visit to Britain Tuesday.

Feisal, locked in a struggle with Nasser for power in the Arab world, has made no secret of his desire for the British to crush nationalists in South Arabia who, with Nasser's backing, are trying to overthrow the British - backed federal regime. He also wants the British to protect the territory after it becomes independent next year.

CHAOS FEARED AFTER INDEPENDENCE

Violence-Ridden Port Waits With Sense of Doom

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

ADEN (AP) — This ancient British trading station and military base is living out its last months of British rule with a sense of inescapable doom.

Daily bomb explosions, waves of violence, murders and gun battles in the murky back streets—all have become part of the normal pattern of life and pointers to the future.

The Indian and Arab merchants who grew rich off the troops and tourists have stopped ordering new stock.

Law and order have become largely theoretical. Political murders average 10 a week. Most Arab police inspectors have been killed and their British colleagues generally speak no Arabic.

In Government House, the hilltop residence of Aden's colonial governors, policy planners pay lip service to the British - sponsored South Arabian Federation. But no one seems to believe the federation can survive many weeks after British rule ends next year.

EXPECT RIOTING

Officials and merchants, taxi drivers and beggars, hotel managers and shoeshine boys, all seem to share a conviction that independence will bring anarchy and bloodshed.

Britain is committed to giving the South Arabian Federation total independence in 1968. The federation is a loose gathering of feudal sheikdoms. The city of Aden and its 200,000-strong urban proletariat is nominally one of the federal states —in fact the federation is meaningless without Aden.

The city with its harbor is the only viable part of the British protectorate stretching 700 miles along Arabia's south coast.

Some of the other federal states are so backward that they hardly contain one pair of shoes per 100 inhabitants. In others, almost the entire male population roams the mountains.

Leaders Executed

ACCRA, Ghana (Reuters)— Two young army lieutenants found guilty of leading an unsuccessful coup last month were executed Tuesday by a firing squad before a crowd of about 20,000 persons.

MAIDEN SPEECH CAUTIONS GOV'T

OTTAWA (CP) — Newfoundlander Don Jamieson, with the assurance of a veteran broadcaster, delivered his maiden speech in the Commons Tuesday as an eloquent address in reply to the speech from the throne.

The new Liberal MP for Burin-Burgeo balanced a traditional obligation to praise government policy with a warning that it must tackle a communications crisis.

And he cautioned against federal-provincial hair-splitting over constitutional authority in the common battle to free Canadians from the "stifling mediocrity" of their city environment.

The stocky, 46-year-old MP formally moved thanks to Governor-General Michener, who 24 hours earlier delivered the government's throne speech opening the centennial session of Parliament.

His motion was seconded in a speech by Florian Cote (L—Nicolet-Yamaska). Both men came into the House after byelection victories last Sept. 19.

Mr. Cote defended the government's agriculture policies, suggesting that recent farmers' marches on Parliament Hill have not been in protest but in support of federal initiatives.

The two speeches wrapped up business for the day. The official throne speech debate of up to eight days does not begin until this afternoon, when Opposition Leader Diefenbaker is expected to monopolize the short Wednesday sitting by blistering the government and moving a motion of non-confidence.

Prime Minister Pearson is not expected to get a chance to reply until Thursday. He will be followed by NDP Leader Douglas, Creditiste Leader Caouette and then by Alex Patterson, acting leader of the Social Credit party.

The last three will have opportunities to move non-confidence motions of their own as amendments to the Conservative motion.

Mr. Jamieson said Newfoundland's 500,000 citizens take enormous pride in centennial observances. They demonstrated by joining Canada 18 years ago that "to gain something new it is not necessary to disregard the old."

He admitted that he twice voted against Newfoundland's union with Canada and at first gave his own loyalty to Canada "grudgingly."

"But after 18 years and against this background let me say that I would choose Canadian citizenship above that of any other country on earth," he said to all-party applause repeated many times during his 30-minute speech.

Mr. Jamieson lauded the throne-speech promise of careful study in the problem of reshaping the British North America Act.

A new charter must reflect a consensus and therefore must be a product of painful deliberation, he said. Otherwise it would be merely a "patchwork of compromise to meet diverse and transitory needs."

In his wide travels across Canada he had found a basic desire for unity. It would be tragic of regional interests, no matter how justified, should submerge this national goal.

Changed Times Force Switch In Strategy

PARIS (Reuters) — NATO defence ministers agreed Tuesday to remodel European defence strategy in recognition of slackening tension between East and West.

NATO sources said the defence chiefs, meeting as the NATO defence planning committee, agreed to reduce their long-stated goal of 30 armed divisions in Europe, which was never attained, to about 20, the number now assigned to NATO.

The sources described the new concept as the most significant policy revision made within the alliance in 10 years and the first step for many years to bring military plans into line with political, economic and strategic realities in Europe.

One American source said NATO is moving from mangement of the cold war to management of the Europeaen detente.

The ministers set no target on the number of troops they require but the sources said that with the planned withdrawal from Europe of 35,000 U.S. and 6,000 British troops the final figure might be even less than the 20 assigned divisions.

The U.S. and Britain will redeploy the 41,000 troops after withdrawal but keep them under NATO command.

The NATO sources pointed to this as an example of a new NATO strategy which will rely less on the presence of mass NATO forces in Europe and more on emergency airlifts of troops from overseas in case of trouble.

Quebec Will Claim Right To Censor, Control TV

Special to the Times

QUEBEC CITY — Premier Daniel Johnson claimed for Quebec Tuesday the right to censor and control the contents of television programs.

"The content of television is a matter which concerns education," Mr. Johnson said, "and, education being of provincial jurisdiction, we must come to exercise our jurisdiction in this matter."

Speaking in the Legislature during a discussion of the Quebec board of censors, a responsibility of the provincial secretary whose departmental estimates were being studied, Mr. Johnson attacked the influence of some television programs on the young.

He said the question of whether the province had jurisdiction over the films shown on the CBC and private stations was "an old debate."

He argued that the Privy Council decision of 1933 which ruled broadcasting a federal matter did not deal with the "content" of programs.

When we built the Volvo to last 11 years, we didn't forget you'd be sitting in it for 11 years.

We didn't forget your head.
When you build a car that lasts an average of 11 years in Sweden, you build it tough. Our roof is a lot harder than your head. So you'll want some head room. Our seat can be lowered (or raised) to three different heights.

We didn't forget your spine.
The Volvo Canadian seat not only has a support for your spine, but it's a support you can adjust to fit exactly. Industrial Design magazine called our seat an "orthopedic delight" because of this feature.

We didn't forget your seat.
Our seats are supported by tough rubber straps, padded with two layers of soft foam padding and covered with textured vinyl. Which means they're tough, soft and textured for ventilation.

We didn't forget your legs.
The most most car seats move is four to six inches. The Volvo seat slides back and forth nine inches, with even another position for people with even longer long legs.

We didn't even forget your eyes.
Volvo seats look like they belong in Swedish modern living rooms. And that's a claim we didn't believe any more than you do. Until, complete with legs, we actually saw them there.

We didn't forget your thighs.
Boy did we remember them. First, the angle of our seat cushion adjusts to support your thighs. Not the 'average' thighs. Your thighs. Then we even go so far as to use a softer covering on the part of our seat your thighs touch.

Voice of Protest

IT IS DIFFICULT TO VIEW THE widely publicized Bertrand Russell war crimes tribunal, organized to determine if the United States is guilty of aggression in Vietnam and of civilian bombing, as much more than a publicity stunt, and its net effect is not likely to extend beyond that category.

The "court" announced that it sought a decision rather than a verdict, but its complete lack of authority and its limited resort to information place its findings, even on this basis, in a very dubious light. It is believed by many observers that the tribunal was set up, not to examine evidence and come to a decision, but to marshal evidence which would confirm the opinions already held by the participants.

The Stockholm newspaper Expressen, taking the attitude that the "verdict was reached in advance," adds: "The sessions have provided valuable information — not about Vietnam but about the tribunal."

Actually, today's decision of the tribunal will be the least important thing about it. Of greater interest has been the reaction of various countries in which it was sought to hold the sittings. The dominating factor was the feeling that a country which played host to the tribunal's activities would place itself in the position of offending the president of the United States, against whom the main barbs of the proceedings were directed. And the desire of the tribunal to spread its meetings over more than one country added to the embarrassment.

France took a dim view of the prospects, Uruguay turned down an application, and Sweden was very reluctant in finally giving its permission. Premier Erlander is aware that President Johnson has voiced sharp criticism of Sweden's action, and that it could result in harm to relations between the two countries. But there was another issue at stake — that of free speech, and Mr. Erlander and his officials have upheld the right to free assembly and speech in their country.

This demonstration, in fact, emerges as the only admirable feature of the entire incident, and the Swedish administration must be credited with courageous adherence to a principle. Against this background the Bertrand Russell charade, however noble its intentions, appears merely as another example of a fundamental right in action. Its decision is of little moment since it will have no influence on the United States prosecution of the war, and is not likely to alter one way or another the firm opinions of those who support or condemn the United States predicament in Vietnam and its tragic consequences.

Wider Trade Essential

THE LATEST CANADIAN trade figures, for March and for the first quarter of this year, show steady growth in most sectors and a welcome strong upsurge in the trade surplus compared with the same periods last year.

Most noticeable was the greatly expanded importance of trade with the United States and diminution of trade with Britain and the Commonwealth countries, particularly in March. While exports to the United States in that month were up by 8.8 per cent from the previous year and imports of American goods up by 4.9 per cent, the British and Commonwealth classifications were off by 3.5 and 12.7 per cent respectively. For the first quarter Canadian exports to the United States were up by 22 per cent over last year while exports to Britain and Commonwealth increased by only 5.1 per cent. And on the other side of the ledger, while American imports were higher in the period by 15.9 per cent, British and Commonwealth imports were down by 6.1 per cent.

The contrast is even more striking when expressed in dollar terms. Canadian exports to the United States in the first quarter, for instance, were over $1.6 billions while British and Commonwealth countries bought only $285 millions worth of Canadian goods. And while American sales in this country hit almost $1.9 billions, we bought only $151 millions from Britain and the Commonwealth.

The lop-sided Canada - United States trade figures, compared with the figures for Canadian trade with Commonwealth countries (and other nations of the world) should bring into focus the crucial nature of both the Kennedy Round talks and the possibility of Britain's entering the European Common Market. Only the fact that Canada successfully sells a good deal more to the rest of the world than it buys enables us to pay for heavy deficits we incur in trade with the United States. In the first quarter of the year this deficit amounted to $231 millions and was more than covered by our surplus of $336 millions with other countries. If events should conspire to lock Canada into a situation where its exports, other than to the United States, are restricted by tariff barriers or exclusive trading blocs, that deficit in our American trade would not be easy to cover.

When the Salmon Run

FEDERAL FISHERIES AUthorities have imposed certain restrictions on commercial salmon operators at the western end of Juan de Fuca Strait, but whether they will effectively meet the requests of sports fishermen remains to be seen. The proof will not be furnished until the late summer-early fall runs begin.

Only at that time will the anglers know if sufficient salmon are getting through to make non-commercial trolling a worthwhile activity of the south end of the Island. The issue is important because good recreational fishing is an impressive tourist attraction as well as a source of business to a number of our merchants who cater to the sports fisherman.

Proof of that point seems to be established by another recent announcement by the same federal authorities who offered the south Vancouver Island saltwater fishermen the present compromise in response to strong demands.

The announcement stated that the federal department is considering reserving salmon and herring resources of the Vancouver-Howe Sound area for recreational use. If recreational fishing is important enough for that action in the Vancouver-Howe Sound region, it can scarcely be neglected here.

Half-Century of Song

ESQUIMALT'S COUNCILLOR A. R. Mebs, speaking for the Greater Victoria Centennial Committee, expressed the sentiments of many Greater Victorians when at Saturday evening's special concert marking the 75th anniversary of the Arion Club he paid particular tribute to Mr. Frank Tupman for half a century of choral direction in this community.

"He brings distinction to every choir he conducts," said the councillor, "but he loves all choirs and want them to enjoy singing the way he does."

The praise is brief. Many more words could have said much less. Greater Victoria has reason to be thankful that among its citizens is a man who has given so much to music and has helped so many groups to improve their performance.

Le Grand Dan Johnson

FOR A DESIRED CANADA — By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Seeking a Constructive Middle Party

MR. PETER NEWMAN, inspired to a fine frenzy by his visit to Montreal, sees in Expo 67 the proof that Canadians can do almost anything, once they put their minds to it. No doubt this is true, as demonstrated in other tests — Confederation itself, for example, the building of the CPR and several wars. But a world's fair, no matter how splendid, is rather different from the management of a nation, not merely in size but in kind, for an obvious reason.

Hutchison

In the fair we put our minds to it with astounding results (not the least being the Anglo Saxon discovery that French Canadians have a special genius for this sort of thing.) In national government, however, there is no similar unanimity, no such meeting of minds.

A group of brilliant men can design buildings and exhibits to delight the world because they know precisely what they want and have all the money they require. The trouble with Mr. Newman's hopeful conclusion is that no political party in Parliament knows what it wants or has unlimited funds. All parties promise to rebuild the nation on grand and noble lines like the fair but, for the moment anyway, they agree on nothing basic, not even on the first crude blueprint. If the men of Montreal had been as confused as the men of Ottawa there would be no fair at all.

The visitor can reach the fair quickly and conveniently on a monorail but a democracy, except in times of immediate peril, moves at the speed of those creaking ox carts that carried the first settlers to the prairies, without a map. And the common delusion is to suppose that a free society can move in any other way.

By Fits and Starts

It moves by fits and starts as it encounters smooth ground or mudholes. At the present time our political system is stuck in a mudhole peculiarly deep and difficult to escape. But we must not blame only the system. We must also blame ourselves, of whom the system is the accurate reflection.

If one were to analyze the muddled Canadian mind it could be divided roughly into three categories cutting straight across party lines or ignoring them altogether.

There is, first, a substantial but dwindling group, usually old and affluent, who imagine that society can and should be frozen in its existing shape; better still, that it can be thawed and re-frozen into the shape of the nineteenth century, the good old days which, for most people, were very bad. King Canute is the patron saint of this congregation.

A second group, found within all parties, holds the opposite notion that society, like the naked site of the fair, can be suddenly covered with lofty, glittering structures wherein everyone will be healthy, wealthy and wise. For this purpose we need only spend enough money, hire the right architects and let them do as they please. Candidates for the job are not lacking in all parties and outside them.

These people, usually young, poor and idealistic, provide the yeast in any society, an invaluable element, and the most articulate element. They belong for the most part to the new generation which will soon take power, and with the responsibility of power, may change their minds considerably when they face the hard facts of life.

The two opposite elements, one vainly determined to reverse history and the other to speed it up, even at the risk of serious accident, are still minorities. The majority will not be found in either camp, or in any party. Most Canadians, I believe, have realized that society, here as everywhere will not stand motionless or retreat on Canute's instructions and, like the human organism, must grow and change perpetually. Yet most Canadians are dubious of instant, easy miracles, and especially of their cost in taxes.

Between the extremes the central lack in Canadian politics is a party which can amalgamate the demand for change and improvement with the nation's actual means and desires — the lack, in short, of a middle party expressing a broad, majority consensus. Such a party and no other can unify a divided nation and move it forward in orderly fashion without a crash at a tolerable pace.

Thus there is a great opportunity today for politicians with a true sense of timing, means and perspective, a vacuum to be filled, and an election to be won decisively, as no election has been won since 1958 when victory soon turned to ashes. And thus, it seems to me, the future will belong to the leader and party able to occupy the middle ground, the natural ground for democracy.

No leader or party has occupied it for many years. Consequently none commands the nation's general confidence, without which none of our basic problems can be solved. Or, using Mr. Newman's vivid metaphor, we have yet to decide what kind of fair we wish to build, not for six months of celebration but for the next decade or longer.

Expo 67, a genuine Canadian triumph, should tell us that we can apply our native talents successfully to something much more important, but in politics, so far, we have devised no more than the rudimentary design for a tower of Babel. We haven't even cleared the site yet and the current political debate has littered it with unnecessary rubble.

Nevertheless, the debate is not wasted. It proves beyond doubt that we possess an ardent collective will to build, whenever we put our minds to it. Perhaps we should do so while the fair is still open — an outward guarantee of our inward capacities, a symbol large and plain enough for everyone to see and understand.

FROM QUEBEC CITY — By STAN McDOWELL

Canadien Dynamism Moves to Ottawa

IT would be risky to conclude too quickly that Quebec's recent assertiveness in the field of international relations is part of a campaign to reach independence through a process of creeping symbolism. The Quebec government is well aware that it is not by agreements with foreign countries, or by the recognition accorded its representatives abroad, that Quebec's constitutional status in Canada is decided. As one official put it when the provincial government introduced legislation to establish its department of intergovernmental affairs, "that question can only be settled in this country. No matter what agreement another country may be willing to sign with us it cannot give us any rights or powers we do not already have."

McDowell

The timing of Premier Daniel Johnson's latest declaration on the subject of international agreements, and a whole series of speeches by Mr. Johnson and other ministers, make it clear that the chief concern is cultural, not diplomatic, autonomy.

As the "heartland of a nation," Quebec wants to be the sole defender of French culture in Canada.

Mr. Johnson's hastily arranged speech to the Federation of Saint Jean Baptiste Societies last Sunday — the federation had been expecting a speech on planning by the minister of agriculture — came within two days of the announcement by External Affairs Minister Paul Martin that the federal government would contribute $5 million in the next five years to promote cooperation betweeen Canada and French-language universities abroad.

In his Sunday speech Mr. Johson issued a warning to Ottawa: Quebec insists on being consulted by the federal government before any international agreements are signed in fields of provincial concern. He mentioned natural resources, education and culture.

The evidence he offered to justify the warning was that in the last 14 months the federal government had seemed to have the fidgets in its eagerness to make agreements, "not with Germany and Australia," but with French-speaking countries.

As the federal government continues to become, abroad as well as at home, a more faithful representative of the Canadian duality, it becomes more and more difficult for members of the Quebec government to picture Ottawa as "foreign land," as Cultural Affairs Minister Jean-Noel Tremblay puts it.

Argument Undermined

Ottawa's enthusiasm for Canadian membership in a French international community, "Francophonie," undermines the argument that the federal government is the "national" government of the English-speaking alone. And this argument is essential to the thesis that the national government of the French-speaking majority in Quebec, if they are to have a national government at all, can only be that of Quebec.

For Mr. Johnson's predecessor, Jean Lesage, this challenge to the provincial government's claim to be the only true voice of Quebec hardly arose.

During most of the Lesage era, Ottawa appeared to be in the doldrums, and an unusually able and dynamic team in power made Quebec City the centre of interest.

But now Quebec is in the doldrums and the most dynamic Quebec ministers are those who sit in Ottawa.

Under the circumstances a Quebec government that has made nationalism its battle cry and culture its battlefield can hardly escape anxiety when Ottawa, its "irreducible adversary," as Mr. Tremblay put it recently, shows that it too can play a part in the defence and encouragement of the French language and culture.

Looking Back

From the Times of May 10, 1907

General Kuroki of Japan is expected to return to his homeland via Canada and the CPR.

The general has spent a month in Washington and left today for the Jamestown Exposition. He also plans to visit Montreal and Ottawa.

If he reaches the Pacific Coast on schedule he will return to the Flowery Kingdom on the same vessel as Prince Fushimi.

Common Market

In reference to the U.K. joining the Common Market this writer thinks it is the logical thing to do, by reason of geographical position, comparable to our own with the U.S.

As for the Commonwealth that image is now shattered whether Britain is accepted in the ECM or not.

It is to be hoped that friendly relations with the United Kingdom will continue. The loss of an image is, after all, a minor thing compared to the loss of friendship.—Len Skelton, 4068 Grange Rd.

Swedish Tidbit

We like to do the salmon in a special way. We call it in Swedish "gravad" salmon. You sprinkle coarse grained salt on both salmon halves (which you can't wash, just dry them after cleaning). After that put on some sugar and a lot of minced dill. Put the two halves against each other and roll them in waxed paper. After that put it in the fridge with something heavy on for 24 hours. Then the salmon is ready to cut, and you cut the salmon in very fine slices. We usually eat them on a sandwich with more fresh green dill.

Fat as the salmon is, it is not so good for older people when it is fried or cooked, but if it is done as above it is delicious. — Mrs. M. Sjoquist, 1012, Empress.

Not Proud

With reference to your editorial of Saturday on my refusal to endorse the school board referenda:

The provincial government, since its first election in 1952, has followed a clear policy of loading property owners with every possible nickel of cost of all public services. In the 15 years since that time provincial tax increases have been negligible, property taxes have increased from 100 to 400 per cent. The policy has been so successful, from a political and fiscal point of view, that the government has never been in danger of defeat and it can now afford to hand back $120 a year to each property owner, which has the effect of making the policy increasingly palatable to the unthinking voter.

I have been against the policy for 15 years, on the grounds that it is inequitable, cynically conceived, and ruthlessly carried out solely for the political advantage of the government. My lone dissenting vote on the school building question was meant to represent those who feel for small home-owners who will be saddled with another two mills on their taxes for 20 years to provide the minimal facilities which our children must have.

My fellow councillors voted yes. I couldn't. I do not feel I am using children (including mine) as a political lever. I feel, on the contrary, that this is precisely what the government is doing. — Lance Whittaker, 2966 Ashdowne.

Need Lose No Sleep

I am not proud to belong to a country that locks up children in prison for life. — Mrs. Michael Burns, 7030 Brentwood Drive.

The 'Forces for Good' Back at the Newstands

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

News from the revenooers must surely be discouraging for that great Canadian educator, Paul Standing. The news is that the custom men who man our borders are once again stopping indecent books and magazines from entry. Until a dispensation came from the then minister of national revenue, George Nowlan, back in '59 the customs men were vigilant. In fact, they had a list of more than 30 pages of titles which Canadians could not import.

Crowe

The list was thrown out by the minister and the onus for protecting us from dirty work in print was shifted to the police courts and police officers, armed with powers of section 150 and 150A of the Criminal Code.

The young, bluestocking minister of justice of the time, Davie Fulton, had tightened and toughened the definition of obscenity and pornography and the procedures for outlawing dirty stuff on the local, rather than on the national level at the borders.

Fisher

Morality and imorality, decadence and revival, seem to go in waves of challenge and response. We seem to be ending a liberal stage in reading, a relaxed stage in censorship and moving back to more severe judgment on the material available for reading, particularly that available on news stands.

We suppose Paul Standing will be discouraged because back in 1961 he had great hopes for the new liberality, reflected then most clearly in the flood of "skinbooks" becoming available to Canadian boys.

Writing in Canadian Forum, Mr. Standing noted how slick paper and full color as exploited by Playboy, Escapade and Rogue, had given "an aura of solid worth and respectability" to the nude female. He went on: "contemporary Grade 8 boys will never know to what straits their predessors as recently as ten years ago, were driven in conducting this facet of the search for truth. Canadian girls, the most ungenerous in the world, were of no help whatever."

Standing acknowledged there were those who felt "that the dissemination of reliable even if only partial information about what women look like bare naked will have a deleterious effect on society. They point out that there are already three legitimate ways of acquiring this information; one can go to medical school, one can go to art school, or one can get married."

Professor Standing rejected these fears about the institutions of medicine, art and marriage after some analysis and concluded with the glowing future which would come from the flourishing of the skinbook trade. "... with the problem of what women look like finally and absolutely disposed of, Grade 8 boys will, for the first time in recorded history, be able to give their complete attention to other matters, and the prospect opens up of senior matric at fourteen, a good doctorate at sixteen ... and the foundation laid for a scholarly, literary and artistic renascence which could make the 21st century indeed the century of Canada."

Alas for those high hopes. Apparently the results in the past six years have not fulfilled this promise. Associations and groups have risen to check the licence and to restore a state of innocence so that anyone can scan a newsstand without blushing.

The reviving movement for decency is centred in Hamilton with strong response in the cities of London and Kitchener. It seems that the forces for good are ignoring Toronto for the time. They can afford to do so because if they get enough local vendors and distributors convicted and their material ruled obscene and indecent then both Canadian production and imports will be snuffed out.

Why? For Canadian stuff, a conviction in one court is enough to support its outlawing by the police in another area until or unless the vendors or distributors appeal successfully the original conviction. For the imported stuff, conviction that is unappealed becomes a part of the record available to the customs officers. Thus by a strong series of actions and convictions at the local level in Hamilton the whole country can be saved. What a power for good is in the hands of Gordon Sullivan, QC, of Hamilton, and his associates in the Citizens For Decent Literature and in the Knights of Columbus' committees for decent literature.

It is hard, if not impossible, to think of a parallel. A few determined men and women, supported by pillars of the community in the press and radio, aided by police officials who believe in the corelation betwen dirty books and crime, and upheld by enlightened men of the local bench, can literally save the nation and a generation from its worst instincts.

Of course, some people will wonder about it all. Only last Wednesday a Toronto magistrate, David Coon, said:

"Parents often express concern that children can pick up magazines showing pictures of nudes at the corner drug store. I don't think they have to worry about the effect of such material in the 12 to 18 age groups." Such an opinion may buck up our old friend, Paul Standing, not least because Magistrate Coon is somewhat of an expert having chaired a special committee from 1960 to 1965, charged by the Ontario Attorney-General with examining all literature for sale in Ontario with a view to discouraging the vending of the corrupting kind through preliminary advice to the vendors.

The contention of the protectors of society is that over 75 per cent of the material, skinbooks and pocketbooks winds up in the hands of children. They have no wish to censor what adults read, but . . . but.

Is there a causal relationship between pornography and crime? The vigilantes of Hamilton say there is. It is, we suppose, still an open question. We know our southern neighbors should never be a model, but the state of New Jersey recently conducted a survey in depth of psychiatrists and psychologists in the state on this question. Over 90 per cent of the opinion was that there was no causal relationship; that rather the material was a safety valve, not a catalyst to indecent and criminal acts.

Meanwhile the Canadian vendors and distributors of the doubtful stuff must be thinking over their position. Do they, should they, appeal each conviction to the higher courts, even to the Supreme Court of Canada? If they don't, the militant forces for good close in on all of us who read.

The Other, Other War: Johnson Vs. Lippmann

By HERBLOCK
Washington Post Cartoonist

With all the war correspondence that appears these days, there has been remarkably little coverage of the conflict which seems to have become the major preoccupation of the White House.

I refer, of course, not to The War in Vietnam, or The Other War of "pacification," but The Other Other War, which is to say the War on Walter Lippmann.

In this conflict, the White House lights seem to be burning late, even if not brightly.

contacts with small groups. An indirect response came from Lippmann in the course of an interview on his announced departure for New York, when he said, in answer to a question about his relations with the President, that "he misled me."

This restrained reply, coming from one as high-calibre and low-key as Mr. L., had the force of a blast from almost anyone else.

Unusual Toast

The War on Walter Lippmann escalated sharply at a White House dinner for the president of Turkey. Here, President Johnson, in an unusual toast which must have sounded more like a roast, referred deprecatingly to 1947 Lippmann columns and to "a commentator who is still with us." Needless to say, he was not referring to a commentator who was with the President at dinner or in spirit.

Lippmann replied with a column in which he took cognizance of the presidential toast, and reprinted a 1947 column to refute the president's allusions to Lippmann policy of that period.

After the state dinner heavy artillery, the White House next threw in a small-bore weapon named John Roche, who shot forth a letter-to-the-editor which appeared in The Washington Post. Roche was here identified as a "special consultant to the president," apparently being a special consultant on the strategy of The War on Walter Lippmann. He professed to be surprised that Mr. L. should hink himself the target of the presidential remarks, but quickly added that the Lippmann record bore out the validity of the attack.

Tactical Error

He then made the cute suggestion that if Lippmann "runs out of thoughts on 'credibility,' he might rerun some of his (old columns) for us." This was probably a tactical error, since it reopened an area of White House weakness which Lippmann had touched on but lightly. The term "credibility gap" apparently originated in a column of that title by Murray Marder which appeared in The Washington Post on Dec. 5, 1965. And subsequently so many more credibility gap examples have been cited that the White House consultants needn't worry about anyone running out of thoughts on this subject.

Didn't Reply

Lippmann did not bother with the "special consultant;" and the next development to come to this correspondent's attention was a minor one which occurred at a large press dinner. Here, another White House staff member delivered a really witty speech which nonetheless incluluded a switch on a current button slogan, "God is not dead; he is alive and in the White House." Said this White House aide: "God is not dead; he is alive and appears in The Washington Post twice a week."

But the President is not one to leave important matters to less energetic subordinates—or to leave alone a bad situation if he can find a way to make it worse.

At another press dinner shortly afterward, he turned up suddenly and interrupted the entertainment to speak. This he did with such unaccustomed humor that he overcame the resentment at this latest last-minute-surprise-appearance-with-completely-prepared-text-in-hand. He even set his listeners to wondering who was responsible for this felicitous new-style speech.

But in the midst of all his light and bright sallies, he could not refrain from laying another little bomb. He referred to a columnist about to leave Washington for New York as "a political commentator of yesteryear" — words of lead that bore the unmistakable LBJ brand.

WALTER LIPPMANN

If Lippmann were a less modest man, the attention lavished on him by this chief of state would be enough to turn his head. And if he and Mr. Johnson had lived in the days of Thomas More and Henry VIII, he would have lost his head completely.

Those who are baffled by the White House concentration on Mr. L. do not understand War. Throughout the current conflict in Vietnam, the administration has continually referred to "the other side" in the way advertisers have referred to Brand X.

Vague Thinking

This is a vague term which gives the fullest scope to vague thinking, so that at any time "the other side" can be interpreted as the Viet Cong, or as troops from North Vietnam, or as Peking, Moscow, Budapest, Bucharest, Belgrade, or as U.S. allies trading with Communist China.

But things are now coming into better focus. It has become an administration article of faith that the only thing keeping the war going is Hanoi's recognition of the fact that there is dissent in the United States. And who is the most widely read and respected dissenter? Of course!

So now we know what is meant by "the other side." It is not Kosygin or Mao Tse-tung or Ho Chi Minh. It is Walter Lippmann.

Viewed in this light, it can be seen that the President is not being as petty and foolish as he might seem. He is engaged here in Grand Strategy.

It would be hazardous to predict the future of The War on Walter Lippmann. But on past performance, we can guess that the President undaunted by the possibility of a conflict widened to bring in other members of the press, will push on at all costs.

THE GALLUP POLL

Modest Gain by Tories In Latest Voter Survey

By the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Is the tide which has been running against the two old-line political parties, and in favor of the New Democratic Party since last summer, beginning to turn? Or is it just a wave?

Experienced poll-watchers will agree that it is far too early to come to rigid conclusions, but the facts, from the latest national political survey by The Institute, show that the Progressive Conservative party has made some gains since the last study in February, and that the NDP's upward trend, a conspicuous feature of the Gallup Poll since last fall, has edged downward.

	Liberals	P.C.	NDP	Soc-Cred And Others
Election, Nov. 1965	40%	33%	18%	9%
January, 1966	44	28	21	7
May	41	30	19	10
July	38	30	20	12
September	37	32	21	10
November	38	26	26	10
February, 1967	37	25	28	10
TODAY	36	29	26	9

Only future Gallup Polls can reveal how significant the four point gain for the PCs is. Regular Gallup political surveys are not geared to give reliable percentage figures for various provinces, but there is evidence for believing that much of the Conservative gain stems from the province of Quebec — a traditionally turbulent sea for opinion samplers.

Another point of interest in the Poll's latest results is the unusually large number of undecided voters. This all-important block of electors now numbers more than one in every three voters. Experience has shown that these are not necessarily the non-voters, and that their election-eve decisions can greatly influence the outcome of an election. If this segment is included in the results, latest findings compare as follows:

	Liberals	P.C.	NDP	And Others	Undecided
November, 1966	25%	18%	17%	7%	33%
February	25	17	19	7	32
TODAY	24	19	17	5	35

Founders of B.C.

Most people respond with a blank look when asked to name the first Premier of British Columbia. That honor fell to John Foster McCreight. He held the office for only thirteen months, but he was responsible for the transition from colonial to provincial status, although he had no previous experience in public life. At the time of his selection he had never previously been elected to public office of any sort.

McCreight was a native of Ireland having been born in 1827 in County Tyrone. Shortly after his call to the Irish bar in 1852 he emigrated to Australia where he practiced law in Melbourne. In 1860 he arrived in Victoria and soon established a lucrative legal practice, serving both the Island and mainland colonies. He took no active part in the political life of the colony but was known to be a supporter of Confederation with Canada and this coupled with his competency, presumably accounted for his selection by the lieutenant governor as premier instead of the more colorful Amor de Cosmos.

When the latter succeeded him as premier in December 1872 McCreight also ceased to be attorney general, but he continued as a private member in the Legislature but did not seek re-election in 1875. In 1880 he was appointed to the Supreme Court of British Columbia and served with distinction on the bench until 1897. Following his retirement he returned to the old country and died at Hastings, England, in 1913.

The Park Is Lovely; The Rules Are Simple

By ART STOTT

At this time of the year Pat informs me that we'll slip out to Beacon Hill Park and see how the flowers are coming along. We do and our reaction is always the same. The comment is becoming repetitious but is nevertheless sincere: "Herb Warren's doing a good job here. The park's lovely and a credit to the city."

Stott

We admire the beds, the blossoming trees, the greenery and color beside the streams and pools, the classical attractiveness of the artificial lakes and the stone bridge, the ducklings and cygnets, when they arrive — and then we carefully wipe our feet before we climb back into the car, parked by the peacock and deer enclosure, and draw comparisons with attractive areas we've seen in other countries. Beacon Hill does not suffer in the process.

At different times there we catch glimpses of ball games, of cricket matches, of outdoor ceremonies and entertainments at the Cameron bandshell, of families strolling through the garden areas, of leisurely groups resting by the seafront, of fields of daffodils in spring and camass in early summer.

We like the variety of pleasures the park offers and we're conscious of the need for rules which permit so many elements in our population to enjoy amenities there without unduly interferring with others who seek different forms of recreation in the area.

So when Herb repeats the regulations which, he says, apply to all people using the park, we take it to be a legitimate means of protecting groups from the intrusions of others who may be intent on drawing attention to themselves rather than taking advantage of the attractions the city provides.

We weren't drawn to the "love-in" the other Sunday, but agree that so long as the lovers-in didn't bother anybody and observed the rules, they were entitled to their share of the space available. To each his own — jelly beans and balloons inclusive.

I am not attuned to the thought processes or the emotional surges of the "hippies," — if that is the way to describe some of their characteristics. But, as a person who spent a large part of his younger years consciously showing off, I'm no one to preach against exhibitionism, if that is part of the "hippie" routine. Again, my memory is not so short that I have forgotten how offensive some of the fads of our youth were to our elders, though they smiled indulgently when we bought and wore "jazz caps," when we broke away from conventional design to don bright, multi-colored sweaters, when we made the air hideous with interminable verses of "It Ain't Agona Rain No Mo' No Mo'" and when we gyrated through the Charleston steps.

At this present stage of life we have a better understanding of Omar's quatrain noting that the lion and the lizard keep the courts where Jamshyd gloried and drank deep — or, as the less classical Whiffenpoofs lamented, "We'll pass and be forgotten with the rest."

In the meantime, let the "love-ins" continue — provided those participating behave in a way that brings no grief to their parents or to other law-abiding people — but not to the detriment of a park like Beacon Hill. It seems to me they should be subject to no more severe strictures than any other citizens nor extended any particular privileges or exemptions from the rules.

And if Hugh Curtis has a suitable location for them in Saanich, perhaps they should avail themselves of this kind offer. Acceptance of his invitation would merely be courteous.

If they attract the interest of the healthily curious, if they have something to offer in a philosophy of better human relations among people, if they are merely expressing non-injurious youthful enthusiams, they have their place in our society.

But, as far as I'm concerned, if they want to congregate at Beacon Hill then they accept an obligation to observe the regulations.

And they'll surely indulge my preference for the flowers.

WHAT PULLED PLUG? IN THE CASPIAN SEA?

MANCHESTER GUARDIAN

A major surgical operation on nature is planned in the Soviet Union; the diversion of two large rivers over a watershed to reinforce the Volga and so sustain the level of the Caspian Sea.

This project is intended to offset an alarming decline in the level of the Caspian, and a prospective threat to the immensely important fisheries of its shallow northern waters, which abound in salmon, sturgeon, herring, and carp, and are reckoned to produce more than a third of all the fish caught in the Soviet Union.

The Caspian has varied in depth before this, but not so threateningly. For a century it was observed to rise and fall with a maximum range of four feet.

8 Feet Lower

A more constant decline began about 30 years ago, and has lowered the water level by eight feet and turned nearly 12,000 square miles of lake bottom into dry land. This may have its uses, but not for breeding fish.

The Pechora rises in the Ural Mountains, at an elevation which should give it a useful impetus southwards once the watershed has been breached. But both it and its companion in succour, the Vychegda, are already busy rivers, much used for floating timber down to the northern coast.

The idea of reversing their flow is not in fact new. It was under consideration nearly 20 years ago, but then with the idea of helping the Volga in its task of irrigating the dry steppes on its middle and lower course, as part of the "Greater Volga" scheme. So the engineering problems must already be familiar.

Earth Moving

It is not clear what accounts for the sinking of the Caspian water level. If it is some deep-seated earth movement, this might persist beyond men's power to counter it. The Caspian is known to have been joined at some past time to the Black Sea and the Aral Sea. There must have been great earth movements to account for their present separation.

It seems improbable that further long-term movements have begun, and human action can have made some impact in the short run. Agriculture may, for instance, be absorbing water which once ran off into the rivers. You cannot use the same water both to nourish potatoes and to house fish. The Soviet Union is fortunate in its contours, if it can put its waters to work for more than one purpose and in more than one direction.

KARL MARX GRAVE DRAWS PILGRIMS

LONDON — One of the most fascinating places in Londn is Highgate Cemetery, the burial place of many famous people, including Karl Marx, the philosopher of communism. The first volume of his book that changed the history of the world, Das Kapital, was published just 100 years ago.

The cemetery is on the side of a hill, and from it you get a magnificent view of the Great Wen (meaning abnormal growth) as William Cobbett called London: a view over weathered tombstones, some straight, some crooked, between willows, acacia, and ash to St. Paul's, Big Ben, the Houses of Parliament, the new Post Office Tower, (London's tallest building), the Oval gasworkds, and the Hilton Hotel. On a clear day from Highgate Cemetery you can see almost all London's prominent buildings.

A few individual tourists visit the cemetery, which is now in two halves, the new and the old. But most come in organized parties in coaches, for they are Communists from Eastern Europe or visitors from Communist China — often from the Chinese Embassy.

Karl Marx, who lived for many years in London — and once did a celebrated pub crawl from Tottenham Court Road to Hampstead, a distance of nearly three miles—was, until a few years ago, buried in the old cemetery. But the Russians disapproved of his weathered, slightly neglected grave, and moved him to the new cemetery, where they gave him a memorial in the monolithic style.

An enormous grey metal head, with beard and a mane of hair somewhat reminiscent of Brahms, crowns the tomb: it looks sterner and more unforgiving than Marx really was. The head stands on a great marble-faced rectangle of stone, bearing these famous words:

"Workers of All Lands Unite;" and, also, "The philosophers have only interpreted the world in various ways. The point, however, is to change it."

Would Marx, who is buried with his wife and family, have been pleased with the progress of communism?

Japanese Market At His Doorstep

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Does the export of logs from B.C. mean exporting jobs as many people often argue?

Maybe it does, but it might also mean more to the provincial economy than the manufacture of logs into lumber.

Without involving labor economics, consider the interesting case of Ocean Log Transport Co., whose 40-year-old president, Robert Annable of Vancouver, directs the export of logs to Japanese markets.

KENT

Governed by federal quota, the forest industry in B.C. exports about 100,000,000 board feet in log form per year, Mr. Annable said last week in an interview.

This compares with 1 billion board feet of log export per year from U.S. forests, including those nearby in the Puget Sound-Gray's Harbor region.

The American export in logs takes place side by side with concentrated lumber manufacturing, unlike Mr. Annable's operation on the Tsimpsean Peninsula north of Prince Rupert, where saw mills are few and far between.

Selling logs in the domestic lumber market by Ocean Log Transport would mean carrying them great distances to mills, whereas the Japanese market is at their doorstep.

But Mr. Annable has two other points in his favor:

● He caters to a special market for which to date it has been unprofitable to manufacture lumber.

● He claims the actual handling of logs for export contributes more to the local economy than the manufacture of domestic lumber.

He said saw mills can cut lumber cheaper than he can assemble and load logs for shipment abroad, hence more money is spent at home.

He was not able to produce figures to substantiate the statement immediately, but it is clear that loading a ship with logs is a lengthy process involving the special skills of longshoremen, whereas milling logs for lumber is quick and uses much machinery.

But his first point is more interesting. During 10 years with the East Asiatic Co., latterly as chief of lumber marketing, Mr. Annable found the Japanese, who are prodigious users of wood, had a totally different approach to the manufacture of lumber than we have in this province.

★ ★ ★

In Japan, house construction is part of the culture, requiring strong, clear woods cut to make the most of end grain because ideally the exposed grain contributes to the individuality and esthetic value of the home.

Little paint is used by the Japanese: it offends the great care taken to achieve attractive exposed surfaces throughout a house.

When a Japanese wishes to build a house he visits one of the country's 30,000 saw mills to inspect its inventory of logs, finally choosing the ones he feels will make the best looking lumber.

lumber in B.C. mills are

Gang saws such as cu

There, each small mill has its buzz saw for making single cuts. Log buyer and mill owner will go to great lengths to ensure proper placement of the log before that crucial first cut is made, splitting it in halves.

The man likely would have his whole family with him on such an auspicious occasion.

All would share in his disappointment if the grain is not just so as the two halves fall apart, and rejoice with him if it meets expectations.

The pieces then are quartered and the lumber is cut so as to leave end grain where it will be seen; on adjacent sides if, for example, the wood is to be used for corner posts.

There are two more factors that complicate the process as far as local manufacturers are concerned. One is that the Japanese demand odd dimensions — e.g., 4¼ x 4¼ —and the other is smooth sawn, unplaned lumber.

B.C. mills are set up for neither of these requirements.

On the other hand, the Japanese are willing to pay a premium for uncut logs to suit their own needs.

West German Auto Makers Feeling Pinch

WOLFSBURG (AP) — West Germany's top three auto producers are feeling a financial draft as foreign firms make inroads into the home market.

A slump in domestic sales forced Volkswagen and U.S. subsidiaries Ford and Opel to curtail production while such French firms as Simca, Peugeot and Renault increased sales to West Germans by an average 19 per cent in the last six months.

Volkswagen's chief executive, Heinz Nordhoff, soon to retire after building his company to the world's biggest auto exporter, recently asked the government to give more tax incentives to car owners.

He suggested people who use their cars for work should get a bigger tax allowance and buyers of new cars should not pay road tax during the first year.

Finance Minister Franz Josef Strauss accused Nordhoff of waiting so long in developing a middle-class car that two American companies had taken over the market.

The reference was to Ford and the General Motors' Opel, Volkswagen's chief rivals in the market for medium-priced cars.

The slump in auto sales—a symptom of the country's economic recession — affected mainly German - made lower priced models, a survey by the news magazine Der Spiegel says.

Japan Firms Join B.C. Mill Project

CRANBROOK (CP) — Two Japanese companies Tuesday formally joined Crestbrook Timber Ltd. in its project to build a pulp mill 31 miles north of this East Kootenay centre.

Representatives of Honshu Paper Manufacturing Co. Ltd. and Mitsubishi Shoji Kaisha Ltd. sat in Crestbrook's annual meeting for the first time and had six members named to a 12-man board of directors.

The Japanese companies have purchased 650,000 Crestbrook common shares at $7.50 each as a major move in construction of a $42,000,000 pulp mill at nearby Skookumchuk. Plans call for an initial capacity of 400 tons a day.

Vice-president A. O. Farstad of Creston told shareholders at the meeting that since the Japanese were "providing the pulp savvy and money for the mill," he had given a 25,000-share vote proxy to them for 10 years to give them voting control.

Contracts totalling $30,000,000 have been let to Burns and Dutton Construction Ltd. of Calgary and Flanders Installations Ltd. of Montreal for construction and installation of equipment.

Inco Sales Show Sharp Decrease

TORONTO (CP)—Sales of International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. in the first quarter of 1967 were more than $22,000,000 below those of the corresponding period last year, the company reports.

The firm said in a report that sales in January-March period were $164,355,000, compared with $186,883,900 in 1966.

HARD-WORKING helicopter made 10 trips to transport 400-pound letters for new hotel sign in Calgary to top of building's penthouse. The entire job took about two hours and 45 minutes. (CP Wirephoto.)

MINERAL CLAIMS CASE

B.C. Man Guilty of Fraud

VANCOUVER (CP) — The former manager of a defunct Vancouver company was remanded to Friday for sentencing after he pleaded guilty Tuesday to two charges of fraud involving more than $25,000 in the sale of 886 mineral claims.

Walter Harvey Link 41, of Vancouver, also pleaded guilty to using the mails for the purpose of transmitting letters and circulars containing a scheme devised or intended to unlawfully defraud the public.

The two fraud charges arose from literature containing false statements concerning various mineral claims which Link pleaded guilty to publishing between January, 1962, and September, 1963.

Prosecutor John Spencer asked for a jail sentence and a substantial fine.

He also called for a stay of proceedings against International Brokers Ltd., the defunct company which was charged jointly with Link on both counts.

Mr. Spencer told the court the company received $258,000 as a result of telephone and mail campaigns stretching as far as New York California and Newfoundland. He said many of the claims made in the company circulars were never carried out.

The circulars said that ownership of mineral claims as opposed to the ownership of mining stock was a new trend in the investment field and was based on a study of 300 Canadian companies, Mr. Spencer said.

"In actual fact, it was based on a study of three mining companies," the prosecutor said. He added that there was never any market for the mineral claims as suggested by the company and the company at no time conducted drilling operations on the claims.

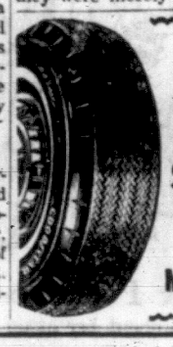

Mr. Spencer said the company literature gave the impression that International Claim Brokers Ltd. was a large well-organized company.

"The publicity and statistical department was Mr. Link," said the prosecutor.

Defence counsel Albert Mackoff admitted there were lies in some of the circulars but said they were merely following the practice of "merchandising to date, that is, the exaggeration of certain things."

National Education Plan Urged by Longshoremen

A national program for education was approved Tuesday by delegates to the annual convention of the Canadian area, International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Also approved was a resolution favoring finance of education from general revenue, in place of the present system involving about half the payment from local taxes on property.

The convention urged the B.C. Federation of Labour and Canadian Labour Congress to "get the trade union movement behind a national program of uniform education for all Canadians."

The resolution pointed out that standards vary from province to province and from school district to school district.

On financing education, the convention agreed to enlist the support of trade unions and all political parties towards the aim of having education paid from general revenue.

The present system was described as inadequate, working a hardship on pensioners, widows and low-income workers.

"Education is of national importance and benefits the country as a whole," the resolution said.

On Vietnam, the delegates approved a resolution condemning the United States and its allies for their actions in "this war of interference."

The union urged the federal government, in conjunction with United Nations secretary U Thant, Pope Paul, church and lay leaders, to "bring about an immediate cessation of bombing and activate the Geneva agreement of 1954."

Other resolutions included:

● Enlisting the support of unions to urge governments at all levels to meet the housing needs of Canadians;

● Pressing for federal legislation with severe penalties and federal control to resolve the pollution problem which is reaching "danger level;"

● Enlisting the support of the B.C. Federation of Labour and CLC to end "this undemocratic practice" of invasions of privacy;

● Condemned pulp union organizer Pat O'Neal for his admitted hiring of a private detective to spy electronically on a rival union;

● Opposed the jailing of Teamster president Jimmy Hoffa, calling it a "frameup, persecution" and a "prime example of the anti-labor campaign being waged by the establishment."

The Canadian area convention, which began Monday at the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans building, is expected to end late Thursday or Friday.

Inland Gas Plans New Financing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Inland Natural Gas Co. Ltd., said in a quarterly statement Tuesday that it is planning new financing during the next fiscal year for a construction program.

John A. McMahon, company president, said plans call for the issue of first mortgage bonds during the next few months and later in the year equity securities, both totalling about $10,000,000.

The coming year's construction program calls for servicing Princeton, Falkland, Coldsteam, Peachland, Westbank, Naramata and Midway, all generally in the Okanagan Valley region.

The company, with a fiscal year running from July 1 to June 30, reported net income of $2,233,059 for the nine months ended March 31. It earned $1,413,553 in the same period a year ago.

Share earnings for the 12 months ended March 31 were 85 cents compared with 54 cents a year earlier.

BECOMES THIRD COUNTRY TO MAKE SUGGESTION

Belgium Offers Pavilion to City After Expo Over

By JACK TRACY

MONTREAL (CP) — Belgium today became the third country to offer its pavilion to the city of Montreal after Expo 67 closes next Oct. 27.

Prince Albert, who represented his country Tuesday at its national day at Expo, made the offer at a press conference following the ceremony.

There was no immediate word of acceptance from Mayor Jean Drapeau but at the opening ceremonies of Expo April 27 he said he hoped it would be possible to preserve the "great structures and units" after the fair's end.

Previously, Ethiopia and the Indian Ocean island of Mauritius had offered their pavilions to the city.

The $3,000,000 Belgian pavilion is a three-storey structure of light-brown brick with large gold - tinted glass panels that make it largely transparent.

The theme of its exhibits, which include priceless masterpieces of art, is "Humani nihil alienum a Belga" (No human quality is foreign to the Belgians.)

The national day Tuesday was a personal triumph for Princess Paola who accompanied her husband, Prince Albert, to the ceremony. Photographers jostled each other fiercely to get good positions for photographing the lovely princess but she showed no irritation.

Attendance for the day was 135,934 compared with an expected 97,140. Total attendance at the fair to date is 3,277,677.

RIGHTIST STUDENTS RIOT ON LEFT BANK

PARIS (UPI)—Rightwing students rioted on the Left Bank against a pro-Viet Cong rally Tuesday night, hurling a Molotov cocktail and burning Russian flags.

Quakers to Defy U.S. by Taking Vietnam Cash Aid Across Border

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — A Yale instructor, a freshman and a graduate student plan to defy the U.S. treasury by taking $500 to Expo in Montreal Friday and giving the money to the Canadian Quaker organization sending medical supplies to North and South Vietnam.

A spokesman for the New Haven Young Friends Committee for Vietnam relief said Tuesday the money would be handed over in front of the U.S. pavilion at 10 a.m.

The treasury department has warned that persons sending supplies to Vietnam through Canada may be prosecuted under federal law.

The $500 is the third such contribution forwarded to Canada by the New Haven group. The money, collected mostly on the Yale campus, will be split equally for supplies for the Viet Cong, North Vietnam and South Vietnam.

The cash will be carried into Canada by assistant instructor James Matlack, freshman James Sober and graduate student Daniel Crofts, the spokesman said. They planned to travel by car.

Brian Knight of the Canadian Friends Service Committee in Montreal will receive the money at Expo, the spokesman added.

He said the U.S. pavilion was chosen as the site of the transfer of the cash as "a protest against current government policy declaring such humanitarian acts illegal."

Although there have been no prosecutions so far for supplying aid to Communist forces in North Vietnam, U.S. authorities say such action might be initiated under either the Foreign Exchange Control Act or the Trading With The Enemy Act.

TEACHERS' PLEA TO PARENTS

Classrooms Would Be 'Heaven'

FORTY-SEVEN students jam teacher Rod Richmond's Grade VII class at Victoria West Elementary school, built about 1900. Most teachers now feel 36 students per teacher is the highest acceptable ratio. School referendum Saturday, if passed, will provide spaces for an additional 1,200 Greater Victoria students.

Greater Victoria schools are overcrowded.

It's bad. You can see it in a young teacher's face when she tells you about the 42 children in her Grade 4 class.

SPREAD THIN

"You have to spread yourself so thin," she said. "There are a lot of slow ones in this class and they need lots of help. I just don't have time to give it."

Her name is Genevieve Scott, 23. She teaches at George Jay elementary school, where 1,051 students are taught in 28 rooms.

You can see it in older teachers, too. Let Horace Dawson, principal of S. J. Willis junior secondary, tell it as he explains a math class going on in a lunch room.

OPEN THOROUGHFARE

"Well it may not seem much different to you just standing here but I teach five classes a week and it's just heaven to get back into a proper teaching area upstairs."

S. J. Willis has 960 students in facilities designed for 750.

The overcrowding means you can't separate the good from the poor students. Instead you have to teach them both together. That's hard on both groups, Mr. Dawson says.

NO ROOM TO TURN

Some are bouncier though no less concerned.

Bill Abbott, acting principal of Victoria West elementary school which caters to 610 students in 17 rooms, most of which were built about 1900, casually shows you the nursing facilities — A five-foot wide room 15 feet long in which there is one low couch to serve as examination table and bed. The room is also used for storage. There is hardly enough room to turn around.

The school itself is heated with a wood and coal unit built in 1896. The additions are heated with oil stoves.

Mr. Abbott beams when he shows off his new addition — four spare but bright and spacious rooms about 50 yards from the main building.

"We hope that will form the nucleus of the new school if the school referendum goes through," he said.

FULL TURNOUT NEEDED

The school referendum Saturday asks that the Board of School Trustees of Greater Victoria be empowered to raise $13,187,450 to provide spaces for 1,200 new pupils to help ease overcrowding.

Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. The teachers say they want a full turnout of parents to vote.

Transportation to any of the polling stations will be provided by the Quarter-Miler Car Club if you phone 385-1411.

OWNERS START ACTION

Injunction Sought In Fishing Dispute

VANCOUVER (CP) — Owners of 26 fishing vessels which operate out of Prince Rupert started a Supreme Court action Tuesday against the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union.

The action seeks an injunction to prevent the UFAW from declaring the vessels hot or unfair.

The owners claimed in a writ that the Prince Rupert co-operative takes all their catch and supplies the vessels with ice and bait. They claim that members of the UFAW in the co-operative had refused to service their vessels.

The vessels are operated by the rival B.C. Deep Sea Fishermen's Union on a share-partnership basis.

Rents, Food Help Push Up Living Costs

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index rose more than a full point to 147.8 in April from 146.5 in March, with a wide range of price increases topped by higher sales taxes in Quebec and Newfoundland, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The important housing component of the over-all index, which accounts for nearly a third of the total, rose to 150.1 in April from 148.4 in March this year, mainly because of higher rents, home-ownership costs and electricity rates.

Food, the second largest component, was up to 144.0 from 143.3 because of higher restaurant prices. Foods for consumption at home also showed a large number of price increases.

Failing To Remain Costs Driver $100

Failing to remain at the scene of an accident cost Arthur Dennison, 1522 Burton, $100 in traffic court on Monday.

He was also fined $35 for careless driving.

BAKE AIDS INDIANS

Somenos Indians will stage a salmon bake and variety show in the long house Friday in an attempt to raise funds to send Kuper Island Indian School Band to Expo 67 next month.

The Indians stepped in when official agencies told the children no funds were available for the trip they were contemplating.

Arthur Mayse

To mention someone else's centennial may rate as a treasonable utterance, but I think you should be reminded that 100 years have now passed since Russia unloaded Alaska on the United States for $7,200,000.

At the time of the sale, a considerable clamor was raised by Americans who felt their country had been took. This attitude has changed, however, and the purchase today stands as the prime real estate deal of the century.

As witness to the fact, I have at my elbow the Alaska centennial edition of the Fairbanks Daily News-Miner, which in 236 well-illustraged pages brings the Alaska story up to date.

It's a big story, one that parallels our own British Columbia record to a remarkable degree. What interests me most about it is that so much has been accomplished by a resident population still well under the 300,000-mark.

★

A dip into the higgledy piggledy pile of sections brings up an account of a new industry which we may one day share. This is offshore oil production; and with our first marine oil rig soon to be on the job, the story of Alaska's Cook Inlet operation makes good reading.

Seven giant rigs, fabricated to withstand the press of an eight-knot tide laden with ice, are now in place there, and more are scheduled to tap this now proven oil and gas field.

Experts believe that the state's oil production will climb to 300,000 barrels a day by 1971, we are informed.

From Cook Inlet, pipe-lines now lead from pumping 'platforms' to shore: sign of a field definitely and successfully in business.

Here's a note on Alaska's commercial fishing which shares place with mining as our northern neighbor's chief industry.

Salmon still tops the annual yield, but the long-legged king crab is moving up fast. Total value of all varieties is given as a whopping $160 million: a figure that we down here can't begin to match.

However, we will pass lightly and with raised eyebrows over an outdoor living section which proclaims that 'the greatest variety of sports fishing is found in Alaska waters'.

Enough to note that Alaskans are parks-conscious, and that their land management bureau maintains an extensive and continually-expanding recreation system.

Next, a look at the University of Alaska, 50 years old. It is set on a wooded 2,250-acre campus at Fairbanks and attended by students from 101 in-state communities.

"In the field of research," we are told, 'the university can be considered unique. It operates and administers some of the world's leading institutes devoted to study of the far northern environment."

★

Fairbanks will lay on an exposition.

Skagway, take off point for gold-seekers in 1898, will mount a show of the sort that draws tourists to B.C.'s Barkerville.

Ketchikan is restoring an ancient fort, and Anchorage has a native cultural exhibit plus a frontier-type train plying between airport and town.

Were it not that we had other plans for this year, we'd like nothing better than to board the Queen of Prince Rupert — whose portrait is graciously displayed in the supplement — and add ourselves to a tourist horde that each year brings in more than the price of the Alaska purchase.

Last time I was up that way, the half-forgotten citizens of a territory more than one-fifth the size of the United States were having a rough time of it. I will look forward, 'when the chance offers, to observing the changes that have come with prosperity and statehood.

To the chum on the Daily News-Miner who sent the supplement down to me, much thanks. It does Alaska proud!

Sewage Plant Hearing Ordered

A public hearing has been called by pollution control director C. J. Keenan to consider a controversial Central Saanich application to dump treated sewage into Brentwood Inlet.

The meeting will be held at 10 a.m., at the Brentwood Women's Institute Hall, on May 30.

The director's decision on the issue will determine whether Central Saanich can go ahead with its proposed plan to install a $500,000 sewage system for the growing Brentwood community.

Under the act, the director has the sole authority to reject or approve an application.

Under the old act, pollution decisions were made by a seven-man board.

FAMILY JINX?

Fortune Teller 'Saw' Death

The 37-year-old Coombs millwright is suffering a skull fracture.

On Tuesday afternoon he was charged in Sooke magistrates court with the capital murder of Mrs. Lavina Maude Nicholson.

FAMILY JINX

While the court case was adjourned until Redlin is fit to stand trial, friends and relatives of the dead woman spoke of the family jinx.

The fortune teller predicted a violent death for them both.

On July 8, 1965, Mrs. Quayle died in the wreckage of a CPA aircraft which exploded in mid-air near 100-Mile house, B.C.

Coincidence?

Maybe.

But let the facts speak for themselves:

On Oct. 28, 1963, Mrs. Quayle's son Gary died a violent death when he fell from the Bentall Building during its construction.

Marie Nicholson, one of two daughters of the murdered woman, narrowly escaped death when she was involved in a car collision on Sooke Road a few years ago. Another passenger was killed.

STORE UP FOR SALE

Mrs. Nicholson had complained recently of not feeling well.

Because of this the family business had been put up for sale only last weekend. After a lifetime of working, Mrs. Nicholson was going to put her feet up and retire to a peaceful life.

But the jinx struck first.

'RECOGNIZE HEROIC ROLES'

Four First World War Air Aces To Be Honored at Paris Show

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Four famous Canadian aviators in the First World War will be honored guests of the French government and the Paris Air Show next week.

They are:

Wing-Cmdr. Donald MacLaren of Sidney; Air Vice Marshal Ray Collishaw, formerly of Nanaimo; Squadron Leader C. H. (Punch) Dickins and Air Marshal Wilf Curtis, both in Toronto.

The four aces will fly to Paris Tuesday with a party organized and sponsored by the federal department of trade and commerce led by Doug Dingwall of Ottawa.

"The trip is in the nature of a goodwill gesture to France," a department spokesman said. "It is also a recognition of the heroic role played by Canadian aviators in the First World War."

It is understood the airmen will receive medals from the French government.

They will be special guests of the government-sponsored Paris Air Show, at which Canadian firms will be exhibiting.

"We are honored to represent Canada at this exhibition," Mr. MacLaren said today. "Few people realize the leading contribution made by Canadian inventors and manufacturers to the development of aviation."

Mr. MacLaren is leaving for Ottawa Monday and will join the other aces there for the flight to Paris.

"I understand we shall be entertained by a number of organizations, including an association of French airmen, and will be taken on tours of factories."

50TH ANNIVERSARY

After the French tour, Mr. MacLaren will go to London to attend the 50th anniversary of the 46th Squadron, Royal Flying Corps.

He is one of Canada's famous quartet of war birds who together shot down more enemy planes than any other four aviators in the war.

Their total was 230 enemy machines, divided as follows: W. A. Bishop, VC, 72; Don MacLaaren, 48; Ray Collishaw, 60; William Barker, 50.

Mr. MacLaren emerged from his many sky combats without injury. But his war career ended in October, 1918, when he broke his leg in a friendly wrestling match with a comrade.

WRESTLING MATCH

He won the Military Cross and Bar, Distinguished Flying Cross, Distinguished Service Order, the French Legion of Honor and the Croix de Guerre.

After the war he organized one of the first Canadian flying companies, Pacific Airways Ltd., later absorbed by Western Canada Airways. The latter became part of Canadian Airways Ltd. and Mr. MacLaren was appointed superintendent of the Pacific division.

Later he was executive assistant to the president, Pacific area, Trans Canada Air Lines.

NANAIMO NATIVE

Mr. Collishaw, now living in West Vancouver, is a native of Nanaimo. Wings attracted his daring and courageous nature in 1914 when England declared war on Germany in 1914.

Afterwards, when asked about the 60 planes he shot down, Mr. Collishaw replied:

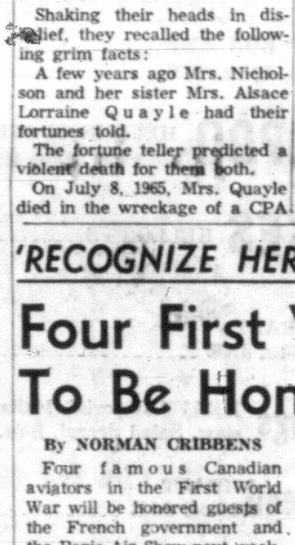

"The idea was to get on top of the other fellow so you could shoot down on him."

After hostilities ceased, he was sent to England to help form the Royal Canadian Air Force.

C. H. (Punch) Dickins is a son-in-law of the late Mrs. M. D. McKee of Victoria. He flew warplanes over Europe, patrolled the Rockies with the forestry aviation branch, opened up the barren lands of the Northland and pioneered Western Air Express and mail flights.

In the first war he shot down seven enemy planes and won the DFC. He has been executive vice-president of De Havilland Air Craft of Canada since 1964.

Air Marshal Wilf Curtis of Toronto served with the 6th Squadron 22nd Wing and the 10th squadron, 14th wing as fighter pilot in France and won the CB, CBE, DSC.

Thieves Use Fork Lift To Get Safe

The safe was found on the Victoria Foundries lot at 622 Pembroke with a five-inch by nine-inch hole cut into the door above the dial. Thieves removed $319 in cash and cheques and $58, which represented the day's take.

Entry was made through a window of the Mc and Mc Building. The burglars then got into the agency office and used a fork lift truck to shift the five-feet by 30-inch by 30-inch safe.

A set of centennial coins was stolen from a store at 839 Fort when thieves reached in through the door's letter slot and released the door latch.

Sleeping Smoker Dies After Apartment Fire

Feet Badly Burned

By TED GASKELL

A 72-year-old man died in Royal Jubilee Hospital at 4:30 this morning after being admitted on Tuesday suffering from burns.

William Mehan had apparently been smoking and fell asleep in a chair in his basement suite at 1176 Yates where he lived alone.

Mrs. Hazel Day, until recently landlady at the apartments and now a tenant, said she smelled smoke and went from her own apartment to the basement. On her way down, two other tenants came out and also reported smoke.

TROUSER BURNING

"By then, I could see the smoke haze and went into Mr. Mehan's apartment. I saw a fire and thought the floor was burning. Then I saw that it was Mr. Mehan's trouser leg. I put the fire out and saw that his feet were badly burned," she said.

Mrs. Day called the fire department and Mr. Mehan was taken to hospital.

"I was afraid something like this would happen," Mrs. Day said. "I'd often warned him about the danger to falling asleep while he was smoking. He was a nice man, a very quiet tenant."

CANDY MAKER

Mr. Mehan was a retired candy maker for Ganong's in St. Stephen, New Brunswick. He was born and raised there and started with the firm in 1911 and retired in 1961. He served overseas with the artillery and cavalry during the First World War.

He was in Veterans' Hospital in New Brunswick in 1963 and in 1964 came to B.C. to live with his son Gerald at 3320 Cedar Hill Road. Two years ago he moved into an apartment.

Besides his son he is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Guy (Lois) Letarte, Quebec City; Mrs. Donald (Jacqueline) Smith, Woodland, Maine, and Mrs. Ralph (Frances) Rhoades, of Nassau, New York, and 13 grandchildren.

Mrs. Mehan died in 1953.

"APE HANGERS" are legal if they are like this, but no higher, Greg Pearson, 3400 Douglas Street, demonstrates on a 750 cc. Norton Road Scrambler. The bars which are available as high as 22 inches, are an aid to highway riding but are considered unsafe and are now illegal higher than 15 inches above the occupied motorcycle seat.

5 Identified By Policeman In Drug Case

Five persons present in a Ten Mile Point building, where packages allegedly containing marijuana were found, were identified by a policeman in central court today.

Charged with possession of marijuana for the purposes of trafficking are David McCallum, 18, of 1510 Dallas; Roger Hunter, 19, of 724 Yates; Michael Hartley, 20, of 5276, West Saanich Road; Cyril McColgan, 20, of 3122 Yew, and a 16 year-old juvenile.

All have pleaded not guilty and are represented by counsel.

PICTURES ENTERED

Pictures of the property of 3019 McAnnally Rd., where the accused and the packages were found, were entered as exhibits but pictures of the accused taken after apprehension were not allowed.

During discussion of the disallowed pictures, prosecutor Rodney Taylor referred to the accused persons as having substances which the Crown intends to show was marijuana.

Constable R. S. Pringle said he and another policeman had gone to the address, April 20, scaled a brick wall and went through the property, passing a greenhouse, a ramshackle summer cottage and finally came to a third building. He saw Hartley throw some plastic bags over a wall.

DARK SUBSTANCE

Hunter and McCallum had plastic bags containing a dark substance. He retrieved the bags which had been thrown away. He also found a Baggie box and some unused plastic bags, and some pieces of plastic bags.

He identified the accused men he had named then added that he had seen the other two at the same time.

Operators To Be Polled On Tax Idea

Questionnaires on a proposed room tax were being sent out today to operators in the Greater Victoria accommodation industry.

Vancouver Island president of the Canadian Restaurant Association William Webb, of Victoria, said as chairman of a special fact-finding group that information gathered would form part of a report to be made to Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

He said it would represent consensus of the tourist industry toward the proposal, which was put forward as a means of raising revenue for tourist promotion and establishment of a convention centre in Victoria.

At a meeting of the tourist industry group Tuesday the proposed tax was debated then tabled, pending the study.

An alternative proposal, to increase the business tax as a means of raising about $125,000 extra revenue for tourist promotion, also was deferred.

It was pointed out that only the city of Victoria levies a business tax in this area. The outlying municipalities have no such source of revenue to tap.

BIKE OWNERS BEWARE!

Don't Be 'Big Ape'; It's Ruled Illegal

Big "ape hangers" are out.

City police have received notice of an amendment to the Motor Vehicle Act regulations prohibiting driving anywhere in B.C. on motorcycles with handlebars extending more than 15 inches above the seat when the seat is occupied.

"Ape hangers" or "suicide bars" is the term applied to large motorcycle handlebars.

The amendment, which became effective March 2, will be enforced, say police.

The full text of the amendment:

"7.14: No person shall drive or operate on a highway a motorcycle unless the handlebars of the motorcycle are (a) firmly secured; (b) so secured that the maximum height to which the handlebars extend is not more than 15 inches above the level of the driver's seat of the motorcycle when the motorcycle seat is occupied."

CITY CYCLISTS BOYCOTT PARADE

Club president C. D. Moore said today the dispute over the wearing of the helmets has not been resolved and the club will not be participating in the parade.

"We cannot obtain suitable uniform helmets," he said. "It would spoil the effect if we were all wearing different helmets, so we just can't appear."

"This is the first time since 1927 that we will not be in the parade," said Mr. Moore.

DISAPPOINTED

"We are disappointed that the police don't see fit to make the same exemptions for us they make for others.

Earlier Mr. Moore had charged the police relaxed traffic laws for other groups during the parade but refused to do so with the motorcyclists.

The police chief had no comment on Mr. Moore's suggestion that traffic laws for other groups, particularly floats, were not strictly enforced during the parade.

"We have already stated that this helmet law must be enforced," said the chief, "and we are going to enforce it."

Chairman of the Greater Victoria Celebrations Committee, Lieut. John Rafter, supported the police.

"I'm disappointed that the club will not be in the parade," he said, "but safety must be our first concern."

PUT FRANCE SEES DIFFICULTIES

British Move Welcomed

PARIS (Reuters) — The French government welcomes the movement leading Britain towards Europe, Information Minister Georges Gorse said today.

"This is a movement we have always desired," he added.

He was speaking after President de Gaulle and the cabinet discussed for the second week in succession—Britain's application to join the Common Market.

"France has suffered sufficiently from the insularity of Great Britain in the past. It remains to be seen whether the difficulties which lie in the nature of the situation rather in the desire of the various governments concerned can be surmounted," Gorse said.

KIWANIS RAISE CASH FOR CORONARY UNIT

Over $3,500 has been raised by the Victoria Downtown Kiwanis Club for new equipment needed in St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee Hospitals.

The club hopes to raise $20,000 as its share towards the vital coronary care units that act as electronic watchmen in looking after heart cases.

Total cost of the equipment for the special heart wards is just over $30,000, one-third of which is being obtained by a British Columbia Hospital Service grant.

PRINCIPAL GOES TO PRISON FOR FIVE YEARS

Pupils Stripped Naked, Beaten

WINCHESTER, Eng. (CP) — The principal of an expensive boarding school was called "an evil man" by a judge Tuesday and sentenced to five years imprisonment for assault and cruelty to boy pupils.

William Michael Byrd, 38, was charged with stripping his students naked and beating them until they bled.

The judge said one student quoted Byrd as saying there were "two gods—one up there and one down here—and you are in my power and at my mercy and I can do what I like with you."

The school is Cholderton College and is independent of the state educational system. It has no connection with nearby Winchester school, another independent school, which has produced many British statesmen and clerics.

Two Colleges Planned for Lower Mainland

A committee has been formed to guide development of two additional regional colleges on the lower mainland, Education Minister Peterson announced Tuesday.

Likely locations would be on the North Shore and the Surrey area, Mr. Peterson told a press conference.

The announcement followed a meeting between the minister and representatives of 17 lower mainland school districts which decided to establish the "Lower Mainland College Co-Ordinating Committee."

Mr. Peterson said a study by the department of education indicated a total of three colleges with a capacity of 3,500 students each would be required to meet requirements in the next five years.

B.C. already has in operation two regional colleges, Vancouver City College and Selkirk College at Castlegar. Three others have been authorized for location on Vancouver Island, the Okanagan and Prince George.

The regional college, financed by local school taxes and provincial grants, gives two years of university training and two-year technical courses.

"We're extremely pleased with the colleges and that's the reason we've authorized additional ones to proceed," Mr. Peterson said.

Opportunity To Learn How Grow Violets

By ELIZABETH FORBES

If you're an African Violet lover you won't mind if I ask you a few questions.

Did you know that you should always use very warm water on these plants? never cold.

Forbes

Are you aware that with patience, perseverance and a handful of toothpicks you can have a perfectly symmetrical specimen with leaves and flowers that look exactly like a Colonial bouquet?

Are you well enough versed in the hobby to realize there are any number of colors and shapes? Some have fluted petals, others are variegated and still others are outlined with delicate tracings of white.

★ ★ ★

If any or all of these ideas are new, then the place to visit is the Hudson's Bay Douglas Room Friday afternoon or evening and any time Saturday from 10 in the morning until 4 p.m.

That's when the Victoria African Violet Club will stage its first display, with tea and a sale of plants thrown in.

Special attraction for duffers like me will be a "how-to" table where veterans in the ways of these lovely flowers will demonstrate some of the not-so-well-known methods of caring for them.

One ardent violet grower has been working for some time to present a plant from the day it was a single leaf through its week-to-week stages to a perfect rosette of strong leaves and double pink flowers.

Another grower will demonstrate how to coax the leaves to shape themselves into a perfect swirl. Still another will answer questions on how to groom and care for the plants.

"Tools of the trade" will be shown including soils, sponge rocks, charcoals, fertilizers and pots. It's a great chance to pick the brains of those who have become expert at growing voilets.

The club was formed three years ago when nine African Violet growers (all amateurs) got together to pool information. Today there are 40 members dedicated to improving their knowledge and growing better plants. They meet on the second Monday of each month except July, August and December.

Programs are varied. There is a short business meeting and discussion on growing violets. Slides may be shown and the evening usually ends with a workshop in which everyone takes part. Plants are divided, leaves started and all the time ideas are exchanged and mistakes corrected.

A small library of magazines, free literature and books has been collected and this is brought to each meeting for the use of members.

Last year a few members entered plants in a national show in Vancouver. They came home with several top awards and other prizes and the impetus to go ahead with their display in Victoria.

If they make money on the show, it is earmarked to start a slide library and perhaps contribute something to a permanent display in some public place. This could take the shape of a grouping of plants in a hospital, solarium or lounge where members would watch and care for them and ensure they are kept healthy and in bloom.

★ ★ ★

In the meantime "the show is the thing." I've seen some of the plants that will be on display and if you're an African Violet lover you shouldn't miss them. And certainly if you have any problems with your own plants you should visit the "how-to" table.

Now, to briefly change the subject.

When you go vote on school construction referendums No. 10 and 11, this Saturday, please remember 1,200 new pupils are entering Greater Victoria schools each year. This requires 30 to 40 classrooms for these youngsters alone.

The need is clearly evident . . . you take it from there!

HOME GARDEN

Good Hedges Result From Wise Pruning

By HILDA BEASTALL

Hedges of various kinds will be improved by shearing or pruning each spring and late summer.

The ideal time is really late April, but many gardeners are reluctant to do the job at that time if the weather seems cool. Doing it now will be just right to catch the period of rapid growth.

Hilda

Privet, boxwood, laurel, and the hedge honeysuckle (Lonicera nitida) all need this annual pruning if they are to function as barriers to humans, animals, or the elements.

When hedges are allowed to grow uncontrolled, especially when first planted, they will stretch upwards without branching and never fill out at the base.

About one half of the newer growth is removed now. During the summer the plants will branch and made good progress ready for another trim in late August.

Growth will not be rapid after that time, but the new shoots that are made will ripen well before the cold weather. Never prune a hedge after late August.

Laurel hedges should always be pruned with hand secateurs, cutting the individual growths without damaging the leaves. Any leaves that are cut will gradually turn black or brown and make the hedge unsightly.

Hedges need watering during the summer months. Particularly is this necessary in the case of young hedges, which also benefit from a two-inch mulch of rotted compost each spring, spread over the entire root area.

Blind People Raise Funds For Africa

The Royal Commonwealth Society is $304 richer due to the efforts of the Victoria White Cane Club.

The club raised the money at the recent "Overseas Blind Tea". The donation will be used for the Anti-Trachoma Campaign the society is conducting in Kenya and other parts of Africa.

The campaign is being conducted by five motorcycle teams who maintain a mobile testing and treatment unit. This year in 12 weeks the teams examined and treated 5,647 people mostly for simple trachoma and performed 176 operations. The majority of these were successful.

Elizabeth Watling, president of the White Cane Club, said, "We feel that by our efforts we are helping to restore the sight of some person who was blind and this is what we like to see done."

His score was forwarded to Vancouver where it brought him the Provincial Trophy. Mr. Barnes has also entered his score on the national tournament to be held at Calgary.

The Victoria White Cane Club has won the national tournament once before.

FOR CHRONIC CARE PATIENTS

'Move Fast on Bed Shortage'

The Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health wants the provincial government to move fast on chronic care problems.

Board members decided Tuesday to write Social Welfare Minister Wesley Black to request a speedy answer to the bed shortage problem especially as it affects welfare patients.

Ald. Lily Wilson, Victoria, said the welfare patient requiring chronic care was becoming the victim of diminishing bed space.

"Each time a welfare patient leaves a private hospital either for hospital treatment or other reasons, the bed is taken up by a paying patient," she said. "That means that in a very short time there will just be nowhere for the welfare patients."

Other board members urged that the government be asked to lift a two-year ban on the building of private hospitals by private capital.

But Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said he didn't think there was a ban.

"I think a license would be issued if any company daring enough could be found to build a private hospital," he said.

"But private hospitals are not the answer. The answer will be found when chronic care becomes part of the B.C. Hospital Insurance Scheme and patients are charged one dollar a day. There will be no welfare patients and no private patients then."

The board agreed, but decided to send the letter anyway.

RACE DRIVER DIES

MONTE CARLO (UPI) — Italian auto racing star Lorenzo Bandini died today of the severe burns and injuries he received when his Ferrari crashed and burst into flames during Sunday's running of the Monaco Grand Prix. He was 32.

Bandini died despite the night and day efforts of leading French and Italian specialists to save his life. Only hours before his death, doctors had said his condition appeared "slightly improved."

He underwent a four-and-half hour operation following the accident which marred the 25th running of the Monaco classic and which was seen by millions of television viewers across Europe.

"I don't care if the whole infield comes in as a package," he said.

(The Hawks are a Japanese team.)

Koufax eventually signed for a reported $125,000 and Drysdale for $110,000, but Koufax retired at the end of the 1966 season because of arthritis.

RECORD-SIZED TRAGEDY

This is the boy with the pet fish. And for five years, tourists and natives in the Blue Ridge Mountains helped Mark Woodruff, 13, feed his beautiful German brown trout at his father's Chattahoochee Forest fish hatchery near Suches, Ga. "Old Samantha" then got too big for the hatchery, so Mark moved him into restricted waters just below the fishpens. A dry spell came to the mountains this week and "Old Sam" wandered off into deeper water 500 feet downstream. Unfortunately, the water was open to public fishing and an innocent angler caught the 17-pound, two-ounce brownie. It broke Georgia's trout records—and Mark's heart. (AP Wirephoto.)

WOMAN CHARGED AFTER CLAY'S FATHER KNIFED

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Cassius Clay, Sr., father of the world's heavyweight boxing champion, was listed in satisfactory condition Tuesday after being stabbed in the chest while at a restaurant.

Charged in the case is Marian Odessa Dorsey, 35, who was released on $200 bond pending a police court appearance July 6.

Clay, 54, was at a restaurant Saturday when he was called to the door by a woman who said she wanted to see him.

'Three Minutes Are Up Now, Sir'

NEW YORK (CP)—The National Hockey League Tuesday set the rules for its expansion draft next month with the six new teams drafting players from the six existing teams at a meeting in Montreal June 5 to 9.

The league's board of governors made no change in the previously announced ground rules which allow each of the current teams to protect one goalkeeper and 11 other players in the first round of the draft.

A three-minute time limit on each selection was established.

HOUR TO CHECK

Lists will be checked and posted for inspection by the six new clubs at 9 a.m. the next day. The draft will begin at 10 a.m. the same day.

The new teams are California Seals, Los Angeles Kings, Minnesota North Stars, Philadelphia Flyers, Pittsburgh Penguins and St. Louis Blues. They will operate in a separate NHL division.

Each expansion team will have three minutes from the time of the previous selection to make its player choice, including a 30-second warning. The current teams will have the same amount of time for filling their protected lists.

The first and second times an established team loses a player in the draft, it can add one man to its protected list. Then the protected list remains unchanged while three more players are drafted from the team. After that, the established team will protect another player, lose one in the draft, protect another and so on until the draft is concluded.

Each of the six new teams is guaranteed two goalkeepers and 18 other players, and each existing team has to giveup the same number of players.

About 350 players are eligible for drafting.

Each club will be allowed three 10-minute conferences during the draft period. If a team takes more than three minutes to make a pick, it will be regarded as having used up one of its conferences.

NHL President Clarence Campbell was asked what happens if one club exceeds its three permitted conferences.

"The penalty will be deferment of the club's choice until the next claimant has made his selection," he replied. "It is not a big penalty, but it will make them think because they could lose a good draft choice."

Colony Keeps Red Lion 'Out'

One inn is "in" and the other is still "out".

Remaining out of the winning circle in the Senior Men's Softball League is Red Lion Inn, which went down to a 9-1 defeat at Central Park Tuesday night as Colony Inn jumped into the victory section for the first time.

Doing the most to clobber the Lions when the two clubs put winless records on the line were Don Bota and Jeff Hett.

Bota went all the way on the mound for Colony, pitching a four hitter and striking out five batters. Although his mates chipped in with three errors, Bota had a shutout going until the seventh inning.

Hett struck the big blow in a 10-hit Colony batting attack, hammering a three-run homer in the fourth inning to boost his club into a 5-0 lead and all but ensure Lions of their fifth straight loss.

TIED FOR THIRD

Colony clouters made the count 6-0 with a single run in the fifth and added another three tallies in the sixth frame, when Steve Bishop and Gary Aiken connected for doubles.

Colony will try to make it two in a row Thursday night at Central in a clash against Molsons, who are tied with Colony for third place.

One Tolos Too Many Pays Off For McClarty

McClarty was going well against John Tolos but went less well when Tolos' brother Chris climbed in to help out. McClarty was ruled the winner since he was supposed to have only one Tolos in with him.

Did George Open Season on Refs?

Boxla Boss Lets Usselman Off With Five Games

Undefeated Victoria Shamrocks host Coquitlam Adanacs at Memorial Arena tonight in a game that should be the talk of the Inter-City Lacrosse League season.

Should, that is, except for one thing: the furor surrounding the seemingly meagre five-game suspension levied against Adanacs' Fred Usselman for planking a righthand punch on the chops of referee Jim Foulis.

Vancouver coach Jack McKinnon said the effect will be to have "open season on referees. Now anyone who wants to slug a referee can take a couple of weeks' holiday and come back."

New Westminster manager Bill Armstrong termed the penalty "ridiculous—it's a joke. He (Wainborn) is asking for trouble."

ADANACS FINED

Said Shamrock director Keith Dorman: "I hesitate to say this because I think George Wainborn is a pretty fine person. But I was a little disappointed in his decision, and I think it possibly was made without the best advice."

Wainborn was unavailable for comment.

He also fined the Adanacs $50 for the Usselman affair. The rangy centre, high goal scorer in the ICLL last year, came out of the penalty box last week to dump Foulis after the official tagged him with a game misconduct.

'THEN HE HIT ME'

Speculation had been that Usselman would be set down for the balance of the season. Or longer.

Vancouver writers unhesitatingly claimed that Usselman did not shove, push or merely intimidate Foulis.

Said the Vancouver Sun's Jim Taylor, quoting Foulis: "'He came out at me . . . and I told him he had a game misconduct. Then he hit me.' That he did—dead centre."

BEECH TO PLAY

Both have leg injuries as does utility forward Lon Restall.

To replace Kowalyk, Unwin will use for the first time Ray Beech, a member of Victoria's Junior Minto Cup champions.

Beech signed early today and will pair with Ranjit Dillon.

Tom Black will be used as utility.

Unwin watched Adanacs on television and wasn't overawed. "They have some good players but I think if we play our game we can handle them."

Victoria O'Keefes, J. F. Kennedy Memorial Cup soccer champions, will be guests of the Rocks tonight.

In ICCLL action Tuesday night, Vancouver ran away from last place New Westminster 13-7. Trailing 6-2 early in the second period Vancouver came to life and scored 10 unanswered goals to wrap up victory.

B.C. Sportsmen Kept in Mind By Robichaud

(Special to The Times)

OTTAWA — British Columbia sports organizations will be consulted again before any final federal decision is made on a net-free salmon boundary in the Straits of Juan de Fuca.

Fisheries Minister Hedard Robichaud made the commitment in the House of Commons Tuesday in response to a question from Victoria Liberal David Groos.

Mr. Groos asked whether the minister had received a telegram from the Amalgamated Conservation Society of British Columbia expressing "intense concern" over federal proposals on commercial salmon fishing boundaries in the Straits.

The matter was of vital interest to thousands of sports fisherman, particularly on the west coast, he said.

Mr. Robichaud said he had received a number of telegrams from various sports organizations, and a meeting had already taken place between their representatives and fisheries department officials.

"While no definite decision has been reached, the matter is under study and at this time I can give assurances that a further meeting will be held before a decision is reached," the minister said.

To date, the department has proposed a net-free boundary to extend east from Sherringham Point on Vancouver Island, where no commercial salmon fishing would be allowed.

The Conservation Society has been urging that the boundary be moved a further three miles west to Glacier Point (Point No Point).

STAN LEADS THEM

Four Chihawks On All-Stars

MONTREAL—Four players from the championship Chicago Black Hawks have been selected for the 1967 National Hockey League all-star team, it was announced by league headquarters today.

Defenceman Pierre Pilote, centre Stan Mikita, leftwinger Bobby Hull and rightwinger Ken Wharram of the Hawks were selected to the all-star team and goalkeeper Glen Hall, talked out of retirement after the start of the season, was a second team selection.

Goalkeeper Ed Giacomin and defenceman Harry Howell of New York Rangers were the other first-team choices.

With Hall on the second team were defencemen Tim Horton of Toronto Maple Leafs and Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins, centre Norm Ullman and rightwinger Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings and leftwinger Don Marshall of the Rangers.

It was the first time in 24 years that a member of Montreal Canadiens had failed to be included on either the first or second teams.

Howe and Orr were second-team choices who led the second-half voting but neither could make up leads established by Pilote and Howell and Wharram in the first-half vote.

Giacomin, Pilote, Mikita and Hull also led second-half voting while the other two all-star players, Howell and Wharram, were second in the second-half vote.

Howe's spurt pushed Rangers' Rod Gilbert out of things. Gilbert led the first-half voting for right-wing with 80 points but lost out to Wharram, runner-up in both halves, and Howe.

Selection to the first team brings a $1,000 reward and $500 goes to each of the players on the second team. Players also get $500 for leading and $250 for being runner-up in each half's voting.

Following is a list of the first and second team selections with the combined first and second half vote total in brackets:

Narrow Roads Shake Up Rally Leaders

KINGSTON (CP)—A pair of Ontario motorists and narrow backroads played a large part Tuesday in the shakeup in standings in the Centennial 4000 rally.

Paul MacLennan of Toronto and his navigator, John Wilson of Waterloo, Ont., slipped from first place with 22 points to fifth place with 155 points.

MacLennan and Wilson, in a Ford-sponsored Lotus Cortina, lost most of their points when they could not pass motorists on narrow roads.

On the first road, a car was stuck in the mud and the rally leaders had to wait until the stuck car was freed.

On the second, motorists in front of the rallyists showed no inclination to pull over to the side of the one-lane road.

As a result, Roger Clark of London, Eng., also in a Lotus Cortina, moved into first place. Clark and his navigator, Jim Peters of Toronto, took only one penalty point in Tuesday's run here from North Bay.

They now have 24 points and are solid favorites to wind up as over-all winners of the event which finishes today in Montreal after eight gruelling days and 4,500 miles between Vancouver and Expo 67.

Karl Schulz and Paul Manson of Toronto moved into second place with 53 penalty points, picking up six Tuesday. Their Datsun is running well and they said they would be going all out to catch up with Clark today.

In the Coupe des Dames, Rosemary Smith of Dublin remains a solid favorite to retain the title she won last year. Miss Smith and her navigator, Ann Coombe of Toronto, in a Sunbeam Imp, have a total of 671 points, well ahead of their only competition, Diana Carter-Polivka of Toronto and Barbara Jean Jack of Burlington, Ont., in a Rambler American with 1,245 points.

The third entry in the Coupe des Dames, Anita Taylor of Rotherham, Eng., and Terry Carter of Montreal, dropped from the competition Tuesday when they got stuck in the mud near North Bay.

Tuesday's run, Datsun led the manufacturers' event with 1,657 points. American Motors was second with 2,729 points and the Volkswagen dealers' team third with 2,902 points.

Money No Substitute For Love of Glasgow

TORONTO (CP) — Willie Henderson, the outstanding winger of Glasgow Rangers of the Scottish League, says he wouldn't play soccer in North America for $30,000 a year.

"I get homesick and money doesn't matter," he said here Tuesday.

The Rangers play Sparta Prague of the Czechoslovakian League here tonight but it's a one-game stand for the talkative Scot.

"If the game catches on in Canada and in the States, it will be a great thing for the players," Henderson said. "You've got all the millionaires over here."

"He wouldn't discuss his own pay.

"Let's put it this way," he said. "I've got a home in the outskirts of Glasgow worth about $30,000 in your money.

"I've got a son and a wife and we live a happy life there."

Keeping Kaline Put a Tiger In Detroit Tank

By UP International

Baltimore Orioles won the 1966 pennant because they made a trade and the Detroit Tigers may win the 1967 flag because they didn't make a trade.

Acquisition of Frank Robinson made the Orioles last year's world baseball champions and the Tigers are now in first place because they didn't trade Al Kaline.

Although his lifetime average of .304 is second among active American Leaguers only to Mickey Mantle's .305, Kaline has been long plagued by injuries and has failed to hit .300 for the past three seasons. With the Tigers loaded with outfielders, general manager Jim Campbell was under pressure last winter to deal Kaline to strengthen some Tiger weak spots.

Campbell decided not to trade Kaline — mainly because he couldn't get what he considered fair market value return for him — and the Tiger right-fielder is off to the best start of his career.

Kaline, leading the league in batting and homers and tied for the lead in runs and runs-batted-in, belted a two-run homer in the fifth inning Tuesday night to pace the Tigers to their seventh victory in their last eight games — a 4-3 verdict over the Cleveland Indians.

Victory kept the Tigers in first place and Kaline likes to think he has a chance to play in his first World Series in his 15th major league season — and at this rate he could nail down his first most-valuable player trophy, too.

The rap against Kaline has always been that he's been unable to match the .340 average he hit in 1955 when he became the youngest batting champion at age 20.

Playing on Best Team of His Career

Injuries and fatigue — the slender Kaline often was weary from the burden of trying to carry a team that was in the second division during much of his career — have played key roles in his failure.

He has suffered from osteomylitis, had a cheekbone caved in by a wild throw at first and on May 26, 1962, when he was hitting .345, he broke his collarbone making a spectacular catch at Yankee Stadium for the final out to preserve a 2-1 victory for Hank Aguirre. He was out two months and wound up hitting .304 that year.

Now if Kaline, who has benefitted from an operation on his foot two years ago that corrected the damage done by osteomylitis when he was a boy, can avoid the injury jinx, he may be on the way to his best season since he's playing on the finest team of his career. He's hitting .385 — the best mark in the majors — and has seven homers.

Elsewhere in the American League, Chicago beat Baltimore 5-4, Minnesota clobbered Washington 11-1, Boston beat Kansas City 5-2 in the second game of a doubleheader after losing the opener 4-3 and New York topped California, 2-1.

In the National League, Chicago whipped San Francisco 10-2, Philadelphia edged Atlanta 3-2, St. Louis topped Pittsburgh 6-3, New York edged Cincinnati 3-2 in 11 innings and Houston beat Los Angeles 5-2.

Nothing Different But Hitting Ball

Kaline's two-run homer off Sam McDowell snapped a 1-1 tie in the fifth and Bill Freehan added a solo homer later in the inning to provide what proved to be the winning margin.

Dennis McLain went 6 2-3 innings to get the victory although he needed help from Fred Gladding, who pitched 2 1-3 innings of hitless relief ball. McLain got himself involved in a feud with McDowell last year but they've never pitched particularly well against each other in head-to-head duels.

"This is the best start I've ever had," Kaline said after the game, "Im not doing anything different, I'm just hitting the ball. If our pitching holds up, we're going to be tough this year."

Gary Peters tripled and scored the winning run on Don Buford's single in the seventh as the White Sox handed the Orioles their fifth straight loss. Peters boosted his record to 3-1 although he needed ninth inning help from Bob Locker. Peters scored the winning run off Eddie Watt, who gave up his first run in 11 1-3 innings and suffered his first loss.

AS PREDICTED

Spurs Throttled In Four Straight

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que. (CP)—Before the best-of-seven Canadian senior hockey final even started, Drummondville general manager Roland Bolduc predicted his Eagles would drub the visiting Calgary Spurs in four straight games.

So it was to be expected following Tuesday night's game 4-0 Eagle victory that Bolduc donned that "I - told - you - so" mantle. Drummondville did dump the Spurs in four straight to win their first Allan Cup.

The Eagles, playoff champions of the Provincial Senior Hockey League, outplayed the Spurs in every game in the series and the Western club had little chance to organize against Drummondville's tenacious checking and skating.

"We were beaten by a better club and they deserved to win it," general manager Ron Butlin of the Spurs said after the game.

FADE EARLY

The Spurs seemed to run out of steam after the first 15 minutes and, the Eagles came on with two goals late in the first period.

Claude Cyr turned in another sparkling performance for the Eagles, stopping 39 shots to register the shutout, his second of the series. He also blanked the Spurs 4-0 in the opening game last Wednesday.

Cyr, who has signed for a try-out with Philadelphia Flyers, one of six new clubs that will join the expanded National Hockey League next season, was mobbed by team-mates as the final buzzer sounded.

Drummondville's victory marked the 37th time in 59 years that the Eastern representatives in the final have won the award.

Marrs Gunned By Fast Draw

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP)—Toronto's mastery of the face-off circle was instrumental in their victory Tuesday night said Marlboro coach Gus Bodnar after his team's 8-4 win over Port Arthur Marrs.

He illustrated his point with a sheet of statistics which showed their big scoring line of Terry Caffery, Gerry Meehan and Doug Acomb controlled 25 of 36 faceoffs in leading Toronto to a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Memorial Cup junior hockey final.

That line also spearheaded Marlboro's opening game 6-3 victory Sunday.

"We're playing pretty well," Bodnar said. "Any team that can score eight goals is."

Richie Bayes and Frank Hamill got the other Toronto goals.

The third game in the series will be played here Thursday night.

"We played better and they did too," Bodnar said after the game. The Port Arthur dressingroom was locked to visitors.

Marlboros, hitting the scoresheet 40 seconds into the first period, wrapped up the decision late in the second half with four goals in the space of three minutes and 58 seconds.

Marrs, whose goal scorers were Ken Rodgers, Tim McCormack, Bill Fairbairn and Chuck Kelner, had reduced a 3-0 deficit to one goal just before the Toronto deluge.

Referee John McVey of Ottawa called 20 penalties, including fighting majors in the first period to Mike Pelyk of Toronto and Ron Busniuk of Port Arthur. Marlboros took 12 penalties.

Autocratic Sid Always Got Athletes to Games

SIDNEY DAWES
. . . steps down

MONTREAL (CP)—A. Sidney Dawes, 78, long a controversial figure in amateur athletics, says he resigned as Canadian member of the International Olympic Committee to make way for "younger blood".

During his 20-year tenure as Canada's lone representative on the world Olympic body, Dawes was embroiled in many external and internal controversies.

He welcomed a weekend report that Toronto's James Worrall wil succeed him as "splendid news."

Dawes, chairman of Atlas Construction Co. Ltd., said he was unable to attend the Tehran session, because "my age won't allow any more long trips."

"I'm 78 and that's too long a journey for a man my age. Worrall is a good man with lots of experience as president of the Canadian Olympic Association and I think his appointment is just splendid."

Dawes said he was both surprised and disappointed that Canada was not allowed a second member on the committee.

Since 1965, he was on the verge of retiring. However, each time the date of his impending resignation approached, he would change his mind.

Henk Hoppener, executive director of the Canadian Olympic Association, said Dawes advised his office three months ago of his desire to quit with the Tehran meeting.

BACKED JAPAN

Dawes raised a storm in Canadian Olympic circles in April, 1966, when it was reported that he had backed the bid of Sapporo, Japan, for the 1972 Winter Olympics over one from Banff, Alta., Sapporo's bid was accepted.

Jack Dalton of Toronto, a COA director from 1959 to 1965, was one of those severely critical of Dawes' alleged stand. Dawes' reply to the reports: "I don't think how I voted is of interest to Canadian newspapers."

Described by some as being autocratic in his dealings with the Olympic Association, Dawes introduced a new constitution while president of the body from 1947 to 1953 and never failed to produce the money required for an Olympic budget.

FINE FUND RAISER

"While there's no doubt the man is a controversial figure, he set his own goals for fund-raising and always got the athletes there," said Ken Farmer, past president of the COA.

Hoppener said Dawes did not look for public subscriptions to send Canada's Olympic hopefuls abroad. But he managed to acquire the necessary funds through private donations by conducting his own campaign.

He was educated in Montreal and graduated from McGill University in science in 1910.

Brewer In Line For Nugget Job

CALGARY (CP) — Carl Brewer, former National Hockey League star and member of the Canadian National team, may soon be named coach of Edmonton Nuggets.

The Calgary Herald says Brewer is "close to agreement" with the Western Canada Senior Hockey League club and will replace Bob Solinger, named WCSHL all-star coach two weeks ago.

Brewer, former defenceman with Toronto Maple Leafs, won release from professional hockey to join the national team and played in the world championships at Vienna this year.

From Drummondville, Que., where Calgary Spurs are playing Drummondville Eagles in the Allan Cup senior hockey final, George Bilych of the Herald writes:

"Nugget's owner George Orlesky for weeks has been saying an announcement of major importance will be forthcoming shortly. When Orlesky makes his move it will be to announce that Brewer had supplanted Bob Solinger . . ."

IN OLYMPICS

Amateur's Word Not Enough

TEHRAN, Iran (CP) — Athletes competing in the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City might have to swear they do not plan to turn professional within a year after the games and will have to undergo medical tests to prove their sex.

Sources said the International Olympic Committee decided Monday that athletes who sign the pledge that they will not turn professional within a year of the Games and then violate it could lose any medals they win. No final ruling on the matter was announced, however.

The new Olympic entry forms will "make it impossible for athletes to refuse to submit to medical checks," IOC secretary-general J. W. Westerhoff said.

This would avoid disagreements like the ones that arose in the European championship at Budapest last summer where several Russian women refused to compete and others protested the examinations. Such examinations will make it possible to determine the sex of all the competitors.

The Olympic Committee said doctors will also be on the alert to prevent the use of dope or stimulants by any of the athletes. These include, according to committee definition, alcohol, pep pills, cocaine, vasodilators, opium, morphine, heroin, phethedrine, methadrin and anabolic steriods, which increase the size of muscles.

In fact, the athletes will have to sign another oath pledging that they will not use the drugs and that will permit medical checks to confirm that they have not used them.

Despite Camera, Swim Officials Have Final Say

WINNIPEG (CP)—The City of Winnipeg has accepted delivery of a closed-circuit television recording set for use at the Pan-American Games swimming pool.

The compact 68-pound unit, comprising camera, videotape recorder and viewer, will remain in use at the pool as a coaching aid after the July 23-Aug. 6 games are completed.

It was donated to the city by an electronics manufacturer.

Games officials said its instant playback facilities will permit coaches to show swimmers such style errors as starting, turning and diving techniques.

Under games rules, however, it may not be used to reverse decisions of judges or referees.

IF GOV'T TRIES TO FREEZE FEES

'Possible' Strike Plans Prepared by Ontario MDs

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. R. M. Matthews, outgoing president of the Ontario Medical Association, said Tuesday the association is preparing a strike plan although no immediate strike action is contemplated.

"We just feel we have to have plans for any contingency," the Peterborough doctor told a news conference following a council session of the OMA annual meeting.

Dr. Matthews said the OMA council had asked its plan-of-action committee to prepare a draft for presentation at the next council meeting on "ways and means of organizing the curtailment or withdrawal of services."

He said the strike plan might be used in the event the federal government attempted to freeze doctors' fees, but only after all other forms of resistance had been tried.

Dr. Matthews said he anticipated no conflict with the provincial government as long as doctors had the right to contract fees with the patient. However, he said that if the government "becomes the total purchaser of services, that would change the picture."

CONTROL PROGRAM

Dr. Matthews earlier told the OMA council it was inevitable that the federal government would be forced to control the cost of its medical care program, possibly with the use of a freeze on doctors' fees.

Ontario Health Minister Matthew Dymond said Tuesday there was no mention of doctors' fees during recent discussions on medical care insurance between the Ontario and federal governments.

Dr. Dymond said in the legislature recently that doctors' fee increases should be subject to some form of voluntary negotiation between the doctors and the provincial government.

In his address to the OMA council, Dr. Matthews made no mention of Dr. Dymond's plan for negotiation of fee increases, but be criticized members of the legislature who opposed the OMA's January fee increases.

In a later session of the OMA council, a resolution was passed urging changes in proposed amendments to the Ontario Public Health Act which threatens the interests of Ontario doctors.

Dr. Matthews said following the council session that Bill 71, which is before the legislature, gives the health minister "power to require doctors to obtain a special licence to operate a health facility and to stipulate the qualifications for such a licence."

"The bill is so broad it could be used to take over our practices. We want an amendment which would exclude offices operated by physicians licensed by the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario."

5-Mill Tax Hike

School Costs Up $50,000

DUNCAN—A $50,000 increase in school costs will bump Duncan city rates up 5 mills.

This was the big news contained in the 1967 budget approved Tuesday.

The general mill rate will remain the same.

Total mill rate for the city will be 58 mills, with 32.43 mills to meet the education bill.

Owner of a $15,000 home faces an increase of $20.

Mayor Jack Dobson announced an increase in the business tax from 6 to 7 per cent and said this was done to protect home owners.

EXTRA $5,000

City clerk Gordon Berry said the tax increase should bring in an extra $5,000.

The city's total budget calls for expenditures of $927,833.

Mayor Dobson said it is unlikely the general rate can be pegged at the same level next year but increased assessment might take care of increased expenditure.

Ald. James Saunders referred to the population influx caused by Crofton pulp mill and said that while most of these people live outside the city, Duncan ratepayers contribute to their education requirements.

He claimed the Crofton taxation should be distributed over the whole area.

Besides education, other major expenditures are: public works $71,992; social welfare $105,000; recreation and community services $25,000; garbage collection $25,000; police and fire protection $69,168; administrative $40,922; and contributions to general and capital loan funds $109,000.

Office Workers Also Vote

Office workers will join pulp mill employees in the vote to determine which union gains certification at the Gold River mill.

The rivals are the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers and the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada. The vote is expected to be held next week.

The Labor Relations Board, in deciding to call a representation vote, also determined that the bargaining unit include all pulp mill employees.

UNUSUAL

This is unusual because generally unions exclude office employees from plant certification applications. This applies to about 90 per cent of the certification orders.

Pulp Sulphite, in its application, sought inclusion of the office employees while the Canadian union did not.

About one-third of the approximately 150 employees who will vote are office employees.

"I'm a bit critical of forcing a decision on the office workers," said Angus Macphee, vice-president of the Canadian union.

"To my knowledge this is the first time in the pulp industry."

However, he welcomed the decision for a vote because it "has been our position all along."

The successful union in the vote must get a majority of the eligible voters, not a majority of those who vote, under the Labour Relations Act.

WORKER'S CONDITION SERIOUS

The 35-year-old Port Alberni man was rushed to Victoria unconscious. He is now out of the coma.

He was helping load the freighter Sarangany Bay at MacMillan Bloedel's pulp dock in Port Alberni when the accident occurred.

It is believed he tripped over a cargo dolly and plunged head first into the hold.

A longshoreman for the past 10 years, he has a wife and three sons.

Two Take Course

DUNCAN — Swimmers Judy Cleough and Len Mayea are going to the Crystal Pool, Victoria, twice a week training as instructors under the Red Cross water safety committee's sponsorship. City council Monday night agreed to put up $50 toward the young people's travel expenses. North Cowichan is already making a $100 contribution.

Mile-Long Midden Discovered

An ancient Indian village midden over a mile long, one of the largest discovered in British Columbia, is being excavated by a team of anthropologists.

It is situated on Gabriola Island near Nanaimo.

The village site, believed to be at least 2,000 years old, may have been the headquarters of a powerful people who once inhabited the Gulf Islands before the birth of Christ, say he experts.

The team is headed by John Senday, museum anthropologist, assisted by Mrs. Nancy Hayden of Victoria. Others are John Noury of the University of Victoria, and Alan Hoover of the University of British Columbia.

●

Little is known about the people who inhabited the islands, but excavation of middens during the past several years, indicates they were a powerful tribe.

According to some Indians, the Gabriola village was the birthplace of Swaneset, a mythical hero, who brought wealth and prosperity to his people. It was also the capital of the peoples of the islands.

One legend attributes Swaneset as the man responsible for inducing the "salmon people" to come to the Pacific coast to spawn.

The Gabriola excavations are expected to bring to light many new things about the ancient people. For example, anthropologists hope to be able to determine the size of their homes and the utensils used.

●

The length of the midden surprised the experts. Villages that size are a rarity.

But what is puzzling to the experts is a large village occupying a position which was not easily defendable and with no natural harbor.

Major Group to Oppose College North of Nanaimo

COURTENAY—The Proposed regional college for Vancouver Island has met with its first major opposition here.

The school district's advisory committee Tuesday went on record opposing the college.

It gave as its reason the fact that the college no longer resembles the one originally planned in a report by UBC professor Dr. Leonard Marsh.

In light of the opposition, school trustees have called a special meeting next Tuesday to discuss the regional college plebiscite to be held Sept. 30.

Their decision—to support or reject the proposed college—could make a big difference to the outcome.

Voters from Lake Cowichan to Courtenay, including Port Alberni and all area between, will have to decide whether to accept the college in principle.

Said school board chairman Dennis Bullen: "The board is committed to putting the question 'Are you in favor of a regional college?' and now it must decide how much support will be given."

The advisory committee has gone on record as "not supporting the regional college plebiscite as proposed."

Added to the fact that many residents are already upset that the college will be on the outskirts of Nanaimo instead of further north, it could spell trouble with a capital "T".

School trustee Brian Walker, who has championed the college in this area, described the committee's recommendation as "dastardly".

He further hit out at the local active Electors' Association which has said it will fight the proposed college plebiscite.

Their views, he said, are "tripe".

PROMOTION has been announced at Comox of Wing Commander William H. Vincent to the rank of group captain. The promotion is effective July 1. The wing commander is commanding officer of 409 Nighthawk Squadron at the Up-Island air force base. He joined the RCAF in 1941 and served overseas during the war years. He returned to 409 Squadron—he served with them previously—as commanding officer in 1965.

Youths Fined

DUNCAN—Derek Dillabaugh, 18, and William Moore, 20, both of Duncan, were each fined $250 Monday after pleading guilty to theft under $50 from Super-Valu store.

The accused were also bound over in $1,000 bonds to keep the peace for two years.

126 MINERS WILL GET BACK WAGES

Labor Minister Peterson announced Tuesday that total wages of $39,866 owed to 126 employees of Cowichan Copper Co. Ltd. has been collected by his departmental officials.

The wages have been owed since last September when the company's copper mine, north of Sooke, experienced financial difficulties.

Mr. Peterson said that following complaints from the employees, departmental officials made arrangements for the company to pay the money owing in installments and these have now been completed.

Mr. Peterson said he expects that the money will be distributed to the employees "shortly."

Minister, MLA Will Present Pioneer Medals

It will be a joint gathering of pioneers of North Cowichan, Duncan, Cowichan Indian band and the unorganized territory south of Duncan.

Pay Any Deficit

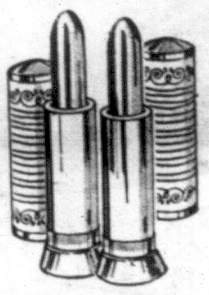

DUNCAN — Part of a summer centennial tour by Victoria Symphony Society will be guaranteed by city council here.

Council will meet any deficit incurred in a visit by the society's chamber orchestra May 21 to Cowichan High School auditorium, and also visits by a trio to the public schools.

Doctor Before Tribunal For Stand on Viet War

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — An army doctor faced a court martial today for refusing to obey orders to train U.S. Special Forces for Vietnam duty.

Capt. Howard Levy, 30, of Brooklyn, N.Y., went before the military tribunal at nearby Ft. Jackson today after several efforts to get the trial transferred to a civilian court failed. The proceeding is expected to last a week.

The five charges against the specialist in dermatology include refusal to obey an order that he train Vietnam-bound Special Forces medics in the treatment of skin diseases.

A motion that precedent be shattered and the case be transferred to civilian courts was refused by the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington, Tuesday.

OVERRIDES SILENCE

Anthony Amsterdam, lawyer for the American Civil Liberties Union, argued for the transfer and said a soldier's right of free speech overrides the military right to silence him unless national security is directly involved.

He asked that the appeals court overrule a district court that refused last week to take the case from the military tribunal.

Irwin Goldbloom, arguing for the U.S. justice department, said the Levy case involved military discipline, not freedom of speech.

"Levy is asking unprecedented release, a release which no court ever has granted," Goldbloom said.

Levy also faces charges in connection with statements that he would refuse to serve in Vietnam if ordered to do so and his alleged references to Special Forces soldiers as "liars, thieves and killers."

Levy also is charged with "conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman."

If convicted, Levy could be imprisoned for 11 years.

Levy has not been in custody except for the few days after the charges were first announced last December. He has continued his work at Ft. Jackson.

Former Pilot Opens Appeal On War Duty

DENVER (UPI) — Three judges of the U.S. 10th circuit court of appeals today had under advisement a plea from a 34-year-old U.S. Air Force officer who is fighting assignment relating to the Vietnam war on grounds that the war is "immoral and unjust."

The appeals court conducted a 90-minute hearing Tuesday on the request of Capt. Dale E. Noyd of Wenachee, Wash. Noyd, a former fighter pilot who is opposed to the conflict in Vietnam, has asked to be classified as a conscientious objector to the war.

The court was asked to review a U.S. District Court ruling that said the matter still was up to the military and the courts should not intervene. The appeals court judges gave no indication when they would rule on the appeal.

Noyd, who most recently was assigned as a psychology inspector at the air force academy in Colorado, asked the air force for classification as a conscientious objector after he was ordered to begin duty at Cannon AFB in New Mexico, a training ground for pilots sent to Vietnam.

The air force refused either to grant Noyd's request or to discharge him. Noyd then filed suit.

Picket Lines Necessary To Unions

OTTAWA (CP) — The Rand inquiry into Ontario labor disputes was told Tuesday there should be laws to protect unions against professional strike-breakers.

Outlawing strike-breakers would allow "a straight economic battle" and lead to faster negotiated settlements, the International Typographical Union said.

ITU representative Allan Heritage replied that picket lines are needed to inform the public and win its support.

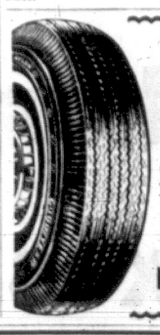

Commission counsel Marshall Pollock said public knowledge of an ITU dispute with three Toronto daily newspapers had not made much difference for the union.

Mr. Heritage said it was a case of atmosphere. A good deal of support for striking unions had been generated in some Quebec cases, for instance.

Mr. Rand said the public normally only pays attention to strikes when services are interfered with, and then the reaction "isn't one of sympathy or favor."

300 Mao Men Killed

TOKYO (AP) — More than 300 backers of Mao Tse-tung have been killed and some 2,000 hurt in week-long clashes in China's Szechwan and Honan provinces, Japanese reports from Peking said Tuesday.

VELVET FLOWERS TRIM GOWN

Gill-Wallace Wedding Ceremony

Floral appliques of velvet started the empire waistline of the gown of peau d'elegance worn by Lynda May Wallace when she became the bride of Robert Leighton Gill Saturday evening. The floor-length gown was styled en train. A single flower held her veil and she carried a bouquet of ivy and stephanotis.

Huron Sheppard officiated at the double-ring ceremony in the Victoria Gospel Chapel, uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. George Wallace, 1657 Fairfield Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor A. Gill, 3568 Quadra Street. Mr. Wallace gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride's trio of attendants, maid of honor Miss Virginia Wallace and bridesmaids, the Misses Maureen Wallace and Judy Gill, sisters of the principals, were dressed alike in gowns in nymph green shade. Headpieces were matching bandeaux and they carried crescent bouquets of mauve glamellias. Only jewelry accents were the bride's gifts of pearl necklaces.

A vase of pink roses and lily of the valley topped the three-tier wedding cake at the reception following in the Union Centre, Quadra Street. Dr. Harry Hitchman proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon to the provincial interior, the bride donned a suit in pale orange tone accented with raccoon fur cuffs. She complemented her ensemble with a beige hat trimmed in orange and green, green and beige accessories and a corsage of orchids.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Sign of Illness In Anti-Religion

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband, who appears for all the world to be an ideal husband and father, is beginning to worry me. I don't know what's got into him lately, but he has become so anti-religious. He was brought up in the Catholic Church. I became a convert for his sake. Now he has turned against religion like a madman. When I say grace at the table he shouts, "Thank me for the food — not God!" (And right in front of the children, too.) He refuses to go to church, and makes fun of me and the children when we go. I asked our priest to come over and speak to him, but he wouldn't let the priest in the house. What am I to do, Abby? He seems all right otherwise, he's just got this thing about religion. Do you think he'll get over it?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: This "thing" your husband has about religion is a symptom of mental illness. Talk to your family doctor and together perhaps you two can work out a way to have your husband examined physically and mentally. Don't wait for him to "get over" it. He needs treatment.

DEAR ABBY: A new couple moved to town. They didn't know a soul, so my husband and I took them under our wing and introduced them to all our friends.

Now that they are no longer lonely, they have been entertaining all the people we introduced them to, and they haven't been including us. I think this is a lot of nerve. What do you think?

USED

DEAR USED: Good manners would dictate that they show their appreciation to you in some way. But they are under no obligation to "include" you when they entertain those whom they have met through you. Don't feel "used." Everyone has the privilege of choosing his own friends.

DEAR ABBY: Everyone else airs his gripe in your column, so I want to add mine. It's this blackmail business of "tipping." I'm a salesman, and nobody has ever tipped me for doing a good job. And why should he? I am just doing the job I'm getting paid to do. When I take a woman out to dinner if I don't hand out tips to doormen, waiters, captains, hatcheck girls, and the man who parks my car, I look like a cheap skate.

We could sure take a lesson from our European cousins. There they add 15 per cent to the bill and there is no tipping.

SICK OF TIPPING

DEAR SICK: For good or ill (and I dislike tipping, too) many persons serving the public have been forced to rely on tips for a substantial part of their income. Their base pay is low and tips are supposed to provide a living wage. Adding a percentage to the bill is not always practical. So, annoying though the system is, a lot of people are trapped in it — including both the tippers and the tipped.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "In Love and in Trouble": Tell your parents at once. No matter what you think now, they are your best friends and they will do everything they can to help you.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Many women are bothered by fat across the back. Even if they are not very much overweight, they may have a bulge over the top of the bra or just below it. You can greatly improve this unattractive weight distribution with special exercises. Let me give you two of them today.

Lowman

2. Take the same starting position. Swing the arms sideward-upward (elbows straight) and cross the arms overhead, palms facing forward. Now swing the arms down and back and cross them behind your back, palms facing the back of the room. Continue. When the arms are overhead, reach for the ceiling so that you feel the pull.

The dowager's hump, or the bump at the back of the neck, is also a figure hazard which will add years to a woman's appearance. This is due to poor posture and deposits of fat. Poor posture is the main culprit. Even the thin woman can develop a dowager's hump if her posture is poor enough for long enough. Many young women develop the bony part of the hump and pads of fat are added in later years.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Dowager's Hump" which gives you corrective measures send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request. Address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

COLLINS-PLATT VOWS

Train of Chantilly Lace Enhances Bridal Ensemble

Chantilly lace formed the full detachable train which swept back from the bow at the lace-trimmed waistline of the gown worn by Pamelia Louise Platt when she became the bride of Edmund James Collins.

The bodice of the nylon over taffeta gown featured a scoop neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. A quartet of roses held the bride's tiered veil of scalloped illusion net which misted softly to her shoulders. Pink rosebuds and white carnations formed her crescent bouquet.

Rev. B. A. Cowan officiated at the ceremony in St. Martin's-in-the-Field Church which united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Platt, 3103 Tillicum Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund W. Collins, 2940 Donald Street. Mr. Platt gave his daughter in marriage.

Maid of honor Miss Kathie Robbins and bridesmatrons, Mrs. J. Madill and Mrs. Thomas Hoyle, sisters of the principals, were in empire-line gowns of pink and blue peau de soie, respectively, featuring overlays of Chantilly lace. Their floral headpieces were edged with net and they carried bouquets of mauve gladioli. Jewelry accents were the bride's gifts of black Alaska diamond pendants.

For travelling on honeymoon to Seattle, the new Mrs. Collins donned a three-piece suit of double-worsted wool in navy blue. She complemented her outfit with a wide-brimmed straw hat in navy blue and white, blue accessories and gardenias en corsage.

SHOPPING GUIDE

In Rain or Sunshine, This Item Is for You

By Penny Saver

Do you ever have those bad days when nothing seems to go right? In our household, one such day may start out to be simply lovely. I decide that it's the opportune time to wash out a few things to lessen the load on wash day, and just as I finish stringing these items on the clothes line, it starts to rain. It's on those days, when my neighbor peeps her head from under her umbrella and says, "You're not trying to DRY those, are you?" that I feel like responding with something like "No, I'm trying to wash them!"

However, whether it rains or shines, I found an item that will help carry the load. This is an accordion-type of clothes dryer that's made of lightweight aluminum. Each rung has a protective plastic coating that guards against rust.

When it's set up, this device stands about three feet high. It's simple to put together — even a child could do a perfect job. When the dryer is assembled, it holds up to 16 feet of washing.

When you're ready to hang your wash, set the dryer in the bathtub — the legs of this wonder have rubber protectors so that it won't scratch the tub finish.

There's another item in this shop that's a real aid in the kitchen. It's so small that you'll have no trouble finding a spot to keep it.

This metal wonder is used for "picky" jobs in the kitchen. It removes strawberry hulls and pin feathers in a jiffy. The tiny item is made somewhat like a pair of tweezers with pincers that hold tightly onto tiny ends. This is the ideal thing for gals who are trying to save their finger nails for summer. Price is 19 cents.

If you want to know where to find these household helpers, give me a call at 382-3131.

STEAK SICILIANO

Two lbs. top sirloin, cut ¾-inch thick; olive oil; 1 garlic clove, crushed; ½ cup strong coffee beverage; ½ cup water; ½ cup soft bread crumbs; ¼ cup grated Romano cheese; ¼ teaspoon thyme; ½ teaspoon salt; few grains pepper.

Cut sirloin into four pieces of equal size. Brown on both sides, quickly, in just enough olive oil to cover bottom of heavy skillet. Remove meat. Add garlic, coffee and water to skillet, while stirring. Stir in remaining ingredients. Mix well. Put a layer of crumb mixture in 10" to 12" topstove casserole. Arrange steak on crumb mixture, overlapping slightly. Top with remaining crumb mixture. Cover. Cook over low heat 12 to 15 minutes, or to desired degree of rareness. Makes four servings.

A New You by Emily Wilkens

DEAR EMILY WILKENS:

WAISTLINE WHITTLER

I have a slender figure. My only problem is a rather thick waistline. Do you know of a really good way to slim down this area?

Mrs. Inez M.

Exercises will whittle down your waistline. These two are relatively painless:

Stand with your feet about 12 inches apart, arms outstretched at shoulder level. Touch right toe with left hand, straighten up, and touch left toe with right hand.

LONDON LOOK

Is it true that the clear, rosy complexions for which English women are famous are due to the damp climate?

JOAN C.

I think the more important factor is that English women tend to do a great deal of walking in all sorts of weather. Try a good long walk each and every day, even when it's cold or wet outside, to bring a rosy glow to your all-Canadian cheeks.

Left your head high, pull in your tummy and derriere, breathe in and out deeply, and you'll return home feeling and looking like a "New You."

HIDDEN CULPRIT

I shampoo my hair thoroughly every few days, and don't wear a hairpiece, yet my hair seems to pick up odors awfully quickly. Have I overlooked anything in my search for the culprit?

Elinor W.

Check your shower cap. Odors trapped in an old or unwashed cap can be transferred to clean hair as quickly as the time it takes to hop in and out of the tub. Wash your shower cap frequently and replace it often.

In fact, while you're at it, check all your headgear — hats, hairnets, scarves, etc. — just in case!

SHAVING SPRAY

No matter how carefully I shave my legs, I get a stinging rash afterwards. How can I soothe it?

Frances R.

The type of medicated spray used for healing cuts and bruises is marvelous for taking away the sting of a shaving rash. It works, too, as an antiseptic healer. Keep it handy for after-shave use. Your legs will feel a million per cent better.

FUZZY WUZZY

The hair around my hairline is very fuzzy. I don't like to use heavy hair creams or wax sticks. I'm at school all day, without much time between classes, and I'd like my hair to look neat at all times with a minimum of fuss. Do you know of a quick "neatening" treatment?

Betty E.

Invest in a small brush (a nail brush with a handle works well). Wet it slightly, then shake out thoroughly. If you brush stray hairs with the damp brush whenever you have a free minute they should stay tamed and in place.

toria Diocesan Council of the gates from 22 Vancouver Island parish council contribute one per cent of its revenue to the Canadian Bishops' Fund, to be used for the underprivileged of all races and creeds.

Two resolutions were presented at the meeting. One stated that the fee of $100 for life membership be waived. The other proposed that nominations for officers be accepted from the floor as well as in writing.

Mrs. C. J. Harmon of Port Alberni was re-installed as president. Other officers are: First vice-president, Mrs. L. Shelling, Chemainus; second, Mrs. G. H. Breen, Happy Valley; third, Mrs. J. K. In her address, provincial president Mrs. D. N. Palumbo of Prince George applied the convention theme to the aims and objectives of the league. She said that the first aim is to promote true ideals of Catholic family life. She stressed that families help the needy.

She stated that the need of religious vocations is critical and that the league should cultivate such vocations.

Mrs. Palumbo emphasized the need for man to become conscious of the needs of others so that he can help in overcoming them.

In her report, spiritual convener Mrs. Breen said that one council distributed over 100 nativity scenes to local hospitals.

Social welfare convener Mrs. A. Smith, Esquimalt, reported that the sum of $62,726 was raised by 14 councils and that $56,231 had been spent in their parishes. Approximately $4,000 was used for welfare work and community projects, as well as 3,500 hours of service in cancer, blood donor, TB and mental health clinics, the Red Cross, St. Vincent de Paul and Silver Threads. The sum of $400 was sent to foreign missions and much assistance was given 10 foster children and five adoption homes.

In her report, education convener Mrs. H. James, Victoria, said that more than $1,500 was spent on school assistance, given in the form of prizes, library books and scholarships.

Other reports were read by organization convener Mrs. W. W. Rogers, Victoria; social action, Mrs. L. Shelling; report forms, Mrs. B. Connolly; Girl Guides, Mrs. E. Desilet, Victoria; public relations and League Magazine, Mrs. Horgan; missions, Mrs. H. Patenaude, Port Alberni; resolutions and legislation, Mrs. J. White, Ladysmith, and radio, TV and films, Mrs. J. K. McAvoy.

Mass was celebrated by Bishop Remi de Roo, diocesan director Fr. Paul Monahan and parish directors in St. Ann's Church.

Luncheon was served in St. Ann's convent by hostess councils of St. Edward's and St. Aan's of Duncan and Queen of the World, Shawnigan Lake and Cobble Hill.

Concluding the convention, a banquet was held in the Commercial Hotel. Fr. Joseph Biszyto, director of Pius X Seminary, Saskatoon, was speaker.

Rev. M. Connal brought greetings from the Cowichan Ministerial Association, and Mayor Jack Dobson from Duncan. The banquet was chaired by Mrs. L. Younge, president of St. Edward's Council, Duncan.

Beauty Hint

To give your complexion a delightful bloom use this simple beauty trick. Damp a cloth in lemon Jelvyn freshener and press over your face moulding it to your features. Lie back for a few minutes whilst the lemon tones and refines the skin. Now to vitalize and hold the bloom, smooth on your oil of Olay and keep it there always under your make-up to protect against wrinkle-dryness and to give the skin a day-long dewy look.

BECOMING SPECIALISTS

Role of the Missionary Now Undergoing a Change

The change in the concept of missionaries was discussed by Mrs. Robert Fields, Victoria, when she addressed the recent meeting of First United Church Women, held in the chapel.

The speaker, British Columbia conference representative on the Board of World Missions was giving a report on the recent annual meeting of the board in Toronto. She noted that missionaries are now serving as specialists in every field of human need.

The United Church in Canada, she pointed out, has 260 missionaries serving in 12 world areas. Commissions were granted to 40 persons to serve overseas this year and requests have been received for 210 more in the coming year. The United Church, she said, hopes to appoint 60 of these.

The missionaries, added Mrs. Fields, are responsible to the church to which they are appointed. She reported that the board, which administers the United Church's missionary program, manages a total budget of nearly three million dollars which is mainly received from Missionary and Maintenance and UCW groups under the unified budget fund.

She also spoke on the board's overseas scholarship fund, which sponsors overseas students to study in Canada and the United States, "adopted" by Canadian families during their stay.

The evening's program was conducted by program convener Mrs. Jack Howell and education convener Mrs. David Hunter.

Opening worship was given by members of the church's Canadian Girls in Training. Taking part were the Misses Charlotte Burley, Lois and Linda Flaville, Ann McKeachie and Barbara Braithwaite.

A report on the Explorer group was given by chief Miss Raeanna Bradley and past chief Miss Pauline Beere.

Following the meeting, tea was served in the social suite by the University Way Group, UCW.

Club Plans 'First' For the Weekend

A "first" in the city will be the two-day tea and display and sale of African violets, planned by the Victoria African Violet Club on Friday and Saturday.

The Friday event is from 2 to 9 p.m. in The Bay's Douglas Room and it will be officially opened by Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett at 3. Saturday's tea and display is from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

As well as the exhibition and sale of a wide variety of violets, there will also be an instruction table, where literature and information on the care of the plants can be found.

Show convener is Mrs. H. C. D. Johnstone. Club president is Mrs. J. C. Yates.

Attend Meet Held in Penticton

Two Victoria delegates, Miss Louise Bartlett and Mrs. Irene McLeod, attended the Soroptimist Club's western Canada regional conference in Penticton. The four-day meet began last Thursday.

Allo attending from the Soroptimist Club of Greater Victoria was Mrs. R. G. Brewer.

The delegates were chosen at the club's recent meeting, held in the Somenos Street home of Miss Marjorie Holmes. President Miss Bartlett was in the chair.

It was announced that net proceeds from a recent rummage sale were $127.

Members who attended open house of the Arbutus Crafts Centre found that their gift of $80 for the purchase of craft material was of benefit to the handicapped. The club decided to continue to support this work.

Scholarship Auditions Move Ahead

Scholarship auditions for the Victoria School of Music, heretofore held in the fall of the year, have been moved ahead for 1967 and will take place during the week of June 12 to 17.

All students wishing to audition should contact the School of Music, 613 Pandora Avenue, or by phone, 384-1717, and request an application form.

Forms must be completed and returned to the school by June 1.

Taking part in the second of the May concert programs tonight, will be faculty members Winifred Scott playing works by Mozart and Clementi; soprano Faith Webster singing songs by Robert Fleming and Rodney Webster and traditional settings of poems by Robert Burns. Jean Angers, with Robin Wood, will play the Violin and Piano Sonata in A by Caesar Franck.

On Wednesday evening, May 17, Vancouver pianist Sonja Behrens will give a recital.

All tickets for these concerts at the school have been taken up but tickets are still available for the two talented student concerts at McPherson Playhouse, May 21 and 28.

ONE OF EXPO'S BEST ENTERTAINMENTS IS FREE

Mighty Killer Star of Calypso Show

MONTREAL (CP)—One of the best shows at Expo 67 lasts 30 minutes, costs nothing and splashes color, rhythm and pure enjoyment around one of the fair's smallest pavilions.

The show features 70 singers, dancers and musicians in the second-storey 275-seat theatre of the $380,000 pavilion of Trinidad, Tobago, and Grenada. It runs four times daily on week days and five times daily on weekends and is playing to more than 1,000 persons a day who contentedly queue for an hour to get in.

One of the stars is an exuberant calypso singer called Mighty Killer, who bellows out a calypso dedicated to Expo that was written by one Mighty Bomber.

After the unusual experience of O Canada played on a steel band the show kicks off with brightly-costumed girls and men doing a samba down one of the aisles to the accompaniment of a string band.

MIGHTY KILLER A STOPPER

The advent of Mighty Killer, flashing several rings, gold teeth and a bulging pot belly, is a soother for non-athletes in the audience but the most impossible feat is still to come. Grinning men and women who seem to have no joints slither under a pole stretched between two sticks, one man carrying an upturned tumbler with table tennis ball atop balanced on his head, another supporing a girl with her legs wrapped round his waist. This is the famed limbo dance.

The show stopper is the last one, which involves one contortionist, body bent horizontal, shuffling under a flaming pole about eight inches from the floor.

COLLIN HANNEY
Mr. Hanney and his expedition travelled by plane, mule, and dugout into the tropical jungles to make this great adventure color film. He found lost primitive tribes—descendants of the mighty Maya, who reached the highest level of civilization before Columbus discovered America. Relive this expedition with Mr. Hanney as he probes into the mysteries of the fantastic ruins of stone cities and tells you of his many adventures. A great motion picture documentary.

Stephen Says Lawyer 'Flattering Himself'

Mayor Hugh Stephen said Tuesday he was not referring to Lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood when he criticized people who term "local policemen the 'Gestapo'."

Addressing the Victoria Police Department and members of the public attending the annual police inspection Sunday, Mayor Stephen said any person using the term "Gestapo" when speaking of the police does so with subversive thoughts in mind.

On Tuesday Mr. Flood took exception to the mayor's remarks and said they savored of a smear campaign.

Mayor Stephen replied:

"If Mr. Flood thinks my talk referred to a personal statement made by him — a statement which I never read — then he is flattering himself."

"Nothing of what I said refers in any way to what Mr. Owen-Flood may have commented. I repeat, I did not read his remarks and I am afraid he is flattering himself."

In April, asked to comment on the decision of Canadian police chiefs to seek from the federal government the right to arrest without warrant, the right to jail a person without cause and the right to search homes without a search warrant, Mr. Owen-Flood said:

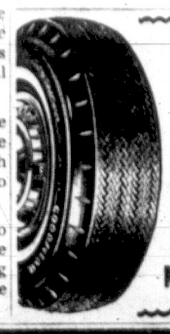

"To many new Canadians the knock on the door in the middle of the night, and the jackboots of the Gestapo are painful memories."

On Tuesday he said that if the chiefs of police were given the powers they sought "such powers truly smack of Gestapo privileges."

But he stressed that at no time had he referred to the Victoria force as being "Gestapo like — nor has anyone else to my knowledge."

Pianist Killed

THREE MORE MAY BE TOSSED IN

Five Hats Definitely in Tory Ring

OTTAWA (CP)—Five hats were firmly in the ring Tuesday in the first formal briefing of candidates for the Progressive Conservative Party leadership.

Four candidates, MPs Michael Starr, Davie Fulton, George Hees and Senator M. Wallace McCutcheon—turned up for the session given by convention co-chairmen E. A. Goodman of Toronto and Roger Regimbal, MP for Argenteuil-Dex-Montagnes.

The fifth, Alvin Hamilton, sent as his representative his former executive assistant, Roy Faibish. Mr. Hamilton, MP for Qu'Appelle, Sask., was campaigning in Alberta where a provincial election is in progress.

Only Mr. Starr, Mr. Fulton and Mr. Hees, all former cabinet ministers, have formally announced their candidacy.

Neither Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, party president Dalton Camp, nor former finance minister Donald Fleming displayed any overt interest in the proceedings.

Mr. Diefenbaker has kept his party guessing about his intentions. In one recent speech, he threw out a hint that he may contest the nomination.

One source said he doubts whether Mr. Fleming would run against his party's chief but that he apparently has made no firm decision on that point yet. If Mr. Diefenbaker retires at or before the Sept. 6-9 convention in Toronto, Mr. Fleming would probably run.

Mr. Camp has said he would have preferred to see one of the three Conservative provincial premiers—John Robarts of Ontario, Duff Roblin of Manitoba or Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia—in the race, but would make his own decision in his own time about running.

One Conservative who says he would back Mr. Camp for leader said he does not expect a final decision until after Nova Scotia's provincial election May 30. Mr. Stanfield has declared he isn't available for the party's national leadership but Mr. Camp may be withholding his decision in case of a change of mind by the Nova Scotia premier.

Ottawa Decides to Drop Plans for an Ombudsman

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Appointment of an ombudsman by the federal government has been shelved after a study was made of the proposal.

In the 1965 throne speech the Liberal minority government proposed a special commission to look into the advisability of appointing a parliamentary commissioner to protect individuals from unfair treatment by the federal bureaucracy.

The Alberta government has moved in this direction. It has passed legislation establishing a provincial ombudsman.

Enquiries here brought the information that an examination of the question had been made. It had been decided that appointing an ombudsman to check on the federal bureaucracy would mean that the ombudsman would have to acquire staff and researchers to carry out his duties properly.

It would be "setting up one bureaucracy to check on another bureaucracy and it was decided to let it drop," said one government source.

Jailed 30 Days For Impairment

Dennis Bertrand, 27, of 534 Simcoe, was jailed for 30 days Tuesday when convicted the second time in two years for impaired driving.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

The show included interviews with the founder of the League For Sexual Freedom, beer-drinking motorcyclists and Dr. Timothy Leary, who foresees an LSD President and a pot-smoking Supreme Court.

Stephen

The 60-minute program proved that immorality, decadence and the search for the easy way out of responsibility is spreading rapidly. But there was no answer as to the reasons for the spread nor for a cure.

There was an opinion that people are not getting satisfaction out of life thus they turn to sex and, in turn, to LSD.

The solution will not be an easy one. And it will not go away simply by ignoring it.

Give full marks to NBC and, especially, Sander Vanocur, who obviously researched the subject thoroughly. It smacked of professionalism throughout its compilation and final presentation.

The network had trouble selling sponsores on the program. The Insurance Co. of North America pronounced it was too much for "our selling message" and pulled out late last week. The new sponsors were Block Drug Co. and the J. B. Williams Co.

CBC-TV's National News announcer, Stanley Burke, will be back in his job despite the rumors he would leave to take a similar position with CTV news.

He will sign a new contract with the CBC to replace the one which expired on the weekend.

He said he has "assurances from top management right on down" that every effort will be made to clear up differences he has had with management.

He has expressed dissatisfaction with a union ruling which prevents him from preparing his own newscasts.

California Governor Ronald Reagan and Senator Robert F. Kennedy will take part in a special CBS News Town Meeting of the World which will be aired at 10 p.m. Monday, May 15, on Channel 12.

Injuries Cost 29,000 Days On Docks

Half a million dollars in wages were lost by injured waterfront workers last year in B.C., the longshoremen's union convention was told today.

"Accidents have increased, we have suffered more injuries and some have died," said safety committee chairman Don Dufault of Vancouver.

He was speaking at the ninth annual convention here of the Canadian area, International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

"Work injuries have increased despite the accident prevention program," he said.

"No expense should be spared for the safety co-ordinator in carrying out his duties."

Delegates were told that one worker in four suffers an injury, that the average age of the injured dock worker is 39 and the average time off is 23 days.

Injuries cost 29,000 days of work last year, or the equivalent of 80 years work.

(Figures from the Workmen's Compensation Board for the previous year for stevedoring and wharf operations show 28,297 days lost, $471,000 in wages lost in 841 time-loss cases—more than three days off).

The convention dealt with several resolutions this morning on safety, including carbon monoxide and oil fumes from internal combustion engines.

The resolution said even small amounts of carbon monoxide can be detrimental to health, and oil fumes can cause nausea and headaches resuting in time off from work.

Delegates agreed that the executive board take "whatever actions are necessary" to correct the situation. It was stated that dock sheds in B.C. ports "do not have sufficient ventilation to exhaust fumes."

The safety co-ordinator was directed to conduct a survey of ventilation problems of dock operations and report to the executive no later than Oct. 31.

Another resolution said many machines on dock operations are without windshields or curtains for protection from flying particles and weather.

It was agreed that all fork lift truck vehicles, carriers, car pushers and so on be equipped with windshields and wipers "as a safety factor and for protection from weather."

Plans Invited For Ice Arena In Saanich

Several architects will be invited to present projects to Saanich for the $420,000 Tillicum ice arena near the outdoor theatre.

A tentative meeting of next Tuesday has been set, said Coun. Leslie Passmore, chairman of the special projects committee handling details of the $1.25 million recreation program approved earlier by property-owners.

At the same time, the committee has decided to recommend to council that advertisements be placed throughout the country for a recreation manager.

Doctor To Get Jubilee Position

A medical doctor with experience in hospital administration will be named as the new administrator of Royal Jubilee Hospital in two or three weeks.

Courtney Haddock, chairman of the hospital board, said Tuesday five candidates had been interviewed for the job, created by the retirement of George Masters.

Mr. Masters, the hospital's administrator for 17 years, was named executive secretary of the Royal Jubilee Development Society which will raise money for sophisticated hospital equipment.

'Inciting Arson' Charge Laid

Leonard Robert Wilson, 40, of the King George Hotel, entered no plea and was remanded to May 16. He was released on $2,500 bail.

The charge followed investigation into a fire at the Waverly Hotel April 19, said an RCMP spokesman.

But the charge is not actually related to the fire.

The charge of inciting arson is laid only when no offence is committed, said the officer.

The alleged incitement happened about a year ago, said the RCMP officer and no fire was actually set.

No one has yet been charged in connection with a fire which gutted several rooms at the Waverly and endangered the lives of 10 occupants last month.

Third hotel in the village is The Cumberland.

FOUGHT 10 YEARS

Hula Skirt Victim Finally Gets Paid

VANCOUVER (CP) — After a court battle lasting nearly 10 years, Carol Lee Chapman has received part of a $125,000 judgment awarded her for burns recevied in a hula skirt fire.

MORE TO COME

Dave Purvis, lawyer for Miss Chapman, said Tuesday the girl has received $50,000 from Mayor Charlie Brown of George, Wash., with an undertaking that the Browns pay an additional $50,000.

10 YEARS IN COURTS

Miss Chapman, then 18, suffered burns to 75 per cent of her body. She sued the Browns and was awarded the $125,000. But the case was appealed and counter-appealed through the courts for almost 10 years.

"If we hadn't collected when we did," said Mr. Purvis, "the judgment would have expired and we wouldn't have got anything."

He estimated that $30,000 to $40,000 in hospital bills are still outstanding, but that creditors agreed to accept payment on a percentage basis.

Miss Chapman, who still bears scars from the fire, plans to enter the University of British Columbia.

"A friend told me," the lawyer said, "we'd never get anything out of those American courts. Well, I've won my bottle of Scotch on it at last."

Russians Draw More Than U.S. at Expo

By CY FOX

MONTREAL (CP) — Officials responsible for the United States pavilion at Expo 67 say that about 50,000 visitors are flocking through their dome-shaped showhouse every day.

The Soviet pavilion, across a nearby channel, is said by its administrators to be receiving about 70,000 visitors daily.

There are no figures immediately available from Expo officials on attendance at the pavilions making up the big fair.

For some visitors this has caused a letdown, pavilion sources say, but for most it generates relief.

Among Canadians especially there is "an almost universal sense of relief that we haven't shoved massive doses of industrial might down their throats," said the chief of the U.S. pavilion's public relations department in a Sunday night interview.

EXCITING ILLUMINATION

"The bubble" is how the U.S. pavilion building is described by those who live in it much of the day and by others who simply watch it from the outside as it glitters in the sun's rays or looms in the manner of an earthbound moon or glows mysteriously by night.

Exhibits include modern U.S. art, displays described as "great moments in American films," and color films about children's games and how they reflect "the universality of experience."

There's also a big exhibition illustrating U.S. plans for reaching the moon.

Hundreds of thousands already have ridden through its massive precincts on a monorail which runs in one side of the pavilion and out the other en route across the fairgrounds.

Mostly Young Men Killed in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The typical American killed in Vietnam is a youth too young to have had a chance to vote for president and not enough time in service to have made it past the rank of corporal.

This was the profile produced Tuesday by the Pentagon's first computerized tabulation of Vietnam combat deaths between Jan. 1, 1961, and March 1 of this year.

In all, there were 7,286 U.S. combat deaths, some 5,268 or two out of three men, 23 years old or younger.

The bulk of that 5,000-plus were men from 19 to 21, with 20 the single age at which the greatest number of deaths occurred. The computer said 1,340 20-year-olds were killed.

California gave the most sons of any state, 822 dead, including 683 killed in action. New York had 645 dead, 530 of them killed; Pennsylvania 601 and 484, and Texas 554 and 442.

The summary showed nine 17-year-olds were killed in action before the defence department in 1965 prohibited use of men of that age.

There were 404 killed who were 18 years old, 1,178 who were 19 and 1,076 who were 21.

Only one of the combat dead had reached the rank of colonel. But 27 were lieutenant-colonels or navy commanders, 81 were majors or lieutenant-commanders, 363 were captains or navy lieutenants, 274 were 1st lieutenants or navy lieutenants (JG), and 122 were 2nd lieutenants and ensigns.

New Club To Stress Road Safety

A new motorcycle club to cater to the needs of Victoria's increasing number of small motorbike owners will meet Thursday night.

Spokesman for the organizers of the new group, Doug Pearson, said the club will stress road safety and chaperoned road trips.

"We would like to plan day-long excursions where we can take groups off the main roads, explore the southern part of the Island, and perhaps have picnics," he said.

"We plan an organized, well-run club open to all ages and all types of bikes."

"There are a lot of things for cyclists to do and learn. We want this to be a club that parents will be pleased to see their teen-agers in."

The first meeting will be held at 3400 Douglas Street, at 7 Thursday.

The meeting is open to everyone, and more information can be obtained by phoning 386-3033.

Helicopter-Plane Tested Publicly

NIAGARA FALLS N.Y. (UPI) — A short, stubby experimental aircraft that can take off and land like a helicopter, yet fly like a conventional plane, was given its first public flight test Tuesday at Niagara Falls International airport.

The craft, known as the X-22A, is being developed by Bell Aerosystems under a grant administered by the navy.

The craft is a vertical-short take off and landing craft (V-STOL), capable of speeds up to 300 m.p.h. It is powered by four duel-tandem, ducted-propeller engines which can be rotated like a fan.

The X-22A took off vertically and its crew rotated the engines and wings for horizontal flight. It successfully completed an 18-minute flight before 300 reporters and company officials.

James A. O'Malley Jr., Bell's project manager for aircraft and missiles, predicted the firm could produce a commercial version of the craft by 1970.

He also, said, long-range plans call for development of a 55-passenger V-STOL which would be used for inter-city travel.

An earlier X-22A built by Bell crash-landed in a field near here in August, 1966, after a failure developed in a hydraulic system. The pilot and co-pilot escaped without injury, but the craft was heavily damaged.

Ex-Victorian Killed at 19 In Vietnam

A former Victoria schoolboy has been killed in Vietnam, the U.S. Defence Department has announced.

Mike Wolos, 19, a private first-class with the marine corps, was killed when his unit met Viet Cong opposition in the Quang Tin area April 28.

He enlisted with the marines last September and was posted to Vietnam March 28.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20 volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Merri Goss, age 11, of Spokane, Washington, for her question:

How does a summer cloud become a rain cloud?

Every cloud in the sky is sure to be changeable. A fluffy white summer cloud changes its shape from minute to minute. It may be speeding or dawdling, rising or falling. It may change into a glowering thunderhead. When this happens, there are dramatic changes inside the cloud.

Most clouds hang a mile to five miles above our heads and we have a grounds-eye view of them. From these distances, we can observe many outward changes. But we cannot observe the misty material in detail or the weathery conditions that exist inside even the gentlest clouds. In fact, even expert researchers have puzzled and probed for years to solve some of these cloudy mysteries. And meteorologists still are unsure of some of the details that occur when a fluffy white cumulus cloud changes into a threatening thunderhead.

The weathery drama begins with a mass of misty droplets of water. These droplets of suspended liquid form the basic material in all clouds. They are so small that meteorologists measure their diameters in microns. The micron unit is based on the meter of the metric system, which is a little longer than a yard. There a million microns in a meter, or about 25,000 of these slim slivers in an inch. The average cloud droplet is a glob of liquid about five microns wide. However, in clouds, the misty population vary in size from less than one to more than 200 microns.

These droplets are suspended in the air somewhat like assorted polka dots, with plenty of space between them. Above the clouds, the beaming sun shines down upon the earth. As sunbeams pierce through the misty material, the cloud droplets play tricks upon them. The fine droplets are too small to cast shadows. They are, of course, made of liquid water and the sunbeams darting among them reflect from their shiny surfaces. This causes a cloud to look like an airy pile of frothy, white foam.

Moisture Immense

The droplets in such a cumulus cloud range from six to 70 microns. The number suspended in each cubic centimeter of air averages from 250 to 400. As this misty material changes into a rain cloud, countless small droplets merge together in bigger droplets. Their number decreases, but many of them double in size. In a thunderhead, the biggest droplets reach 200 microns, though there are no more than 200 of them to the average cubic centimeter.

Millions of droplets in a rain cloud are big enough to stop the sunbeams from passing through and they cast their tiny shadows among the misty material. What's more, weather conditions in such a cloud tend to be extreme. Temperatures and pressures may be changing in different corners of the cloud. The growing droplets may be whirled up, down and around by blustering drafts. Their billions of tiny shadows tend to merge and blur and, seen from the ground, the stormy clouds look like a dark, heavy curtain of almost solid material.

The amount of misty moisture in the gauzy cloud is immense. The total water in a sizable thunderhead may weigh from 50,000 to 300,000 tons. Droplets of 200 microns drizzle down and drops measuring up to 1-5 of an inch pelt the earth with rain. If a cloud covers a square mile with one inch of rainfall, it has shed over 72,000 tons of water. Five billion tons of water must fall from the cloudy skies in order to cover the state of Washington with one inch of rainfall.

Andy sends a 14" World Book Globe to Ernest Catropa, age 15, of Bridgeport, Connecticut, for his question:

Is the Evening Star a planet?

The Evening Star appears in the western sky, just after the sun dips below the horizon. And, yes, this so-called star is really a planet. However, it is not always the same planet. Right now, the role of the Evening Star is being played by the planet Venus. Our sister world is now at her brightest. Her big golden eye blinks on almost before sunset and way ahead of any real star in the sky. Sometimes Venus is bright enough to be seen even before the dazzling sun has set.

There are times when the role of the Evening Star is played by Mars of Jupiter, by Saturn or even by little Mercury. In fact, each of the visible planets get a turn to play the role of the Evening Star. Each also at some time also gets a chance to play the role of the Morning Star.

YOUR HEALTH

New Ways Of Helping Rh Babies

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

In answer to the anxious women who have written asking for more information abut the Rh blood difficulties with fetuses and infants, I should say first, that the danger comes when an Rh negative woman marries an Rh positive man. Then if she has by him a child who is Rh positive, and some of this child's blood cells get into her circulation, they can produce, in her, antibodies designed to protect her from the presence of Rh positive blood in her body. (Some authorities are now questioning this explanation).

Alvarez

With the first child there is no difficulty. Trouble can strike children born later, because by the time they come along, the mother is well immunized to Rh positive blood. Then her body can attack the blood of the fetus in her womb and destroy much of it. The child will then be dangerously anemic. In the past, the treatment usually has been a big "exchange transfusion" of blood immediately after the child is born. His blood is taken out as fast as new good blood can be put into him.

What is now being done by some expert obstetricians is to pass a long hypodermic needle through the abdominal wall of the mother down into her womb, and into the amniotic sac which surrounds the fetus. Some of the amniotic fluid is removed and examined. If it shows marked changes such as are likely to injure the fetus, the fetus may be given a transfusion of good blood (into his abdomen) as early as the twentieth week of pregnancy.

Such transfusions have been saving about a third of the fetuses which otherwise might have died. In order to make the child's abdominal cavity visible, a little chemical, which shows up with X-rays, is injected into the amniotic sac. Some of this material is swallowed by the fetus, and then it appears in its bowel. As I said, the blood that is given is injected into the abdominal cavity of the fetus.

Another much simpler, much easier to use, and apparently successful treatment, is one in which the mother who could have Rh positive babies is given a dose of a certain gamma globulin which tends to protect her body from disaster. There is also another substance that can be injected to keep the mother from becoming highly resistant to Rh positive blood.

After the treated mothers have more babies, the students of this subject will know whether their new treatments are going to work.

TROOPS HELP BREAK UP FAMILY SHOOTING DUEL

ACAPULCO (UPI)—Two feuding families fought a gun duel in a cemetery near Acapulco Tuesday. Two men were killed and three wounded in the two-hour battle.

It took 25 policemen and two platoons of troops to rout the gunfighters from their firing positions behind tombstones and mausoleums.

A police spokesman said all the uninjured participants in the battle escaped. He said the battle took place between the Damian and Valente families, the local equivalent of the Hatfields and the McCoys.

The fighting broke out when the two families converged on a village 21 miles east of Acapulco.

Both families come from a region north of Acapulco which is infested with bandits and noted for Sicilian-type blood feuds sometimes going back centuries.

DEADLINE SUNDAY

Trail Ride Expects Late Entries Rush

Deadline for entries to the Garden City Horsemen's Club sixth annual four-day trail ride at the end of the month is midnight Sunday and although inquiries have been many, only 12 have signed on the dotted line to date.

"But we're not too concerned," said ride committee chairman Colin Springford. "On every other year the entries have poured in at the last minute, and that is what we expect this time."

MAIL BEFORE MIDNIGHT

Entry secretary is Miss Linda Fitzpatrick who will not accept entries postmarked later than midnight, May 14. They should be mailed to her at Suite 305, 742 Lampson Street.

Ride officials are not making any estimates of total entry, but the annual ride has attracted as many as 65 riders and horses in previous years.

This year's ride is starting from Goldstream on the morning of Friday, May 26, and heads into the bush in the direction of Sooke. It will follow well defined trails and logging roads and will cover the Leechtown district, a section of Jordan Meadows, the Port Renfrew Road and Shawnigan Lake.

There will be a different camp site each night instead of riding out of a base camp which the club has done the past few years, using Shields Lake near Saseenos.

The ride is open to all-comers. Riders 15 to 18 must have written permission of parents to participate. Those under 15 must be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

Bedrolls and food will be transported by truck to night camps.

The ride will continue over the weekend, returning to Goldstream on late Monday afternoon where provision will have been made for the parking of trucks and trailers.

Cost of the ride per person is $20 which covers food for both horse and rider. Overnight stabling will be arranged for out-of-town riders at the start and the end of the ride.

All horses will be checked for condition prior to the start of the ride. They will have to be adequately shod and club officials stress that blankets should be provided for them at night.

Young Artists Friday Night

Top-ranking young Victoria artists will be featured at the 21st annual scholarship musicale being sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's Club Friday night at St. Matthias' Church Hall.

The program, arranged by Mrs. J. Ingram Smith, will include numbers by pianist Linn Hendry, winner of the City of Victoria Medaltion in the recent Music Festival, and songs by Jill Paver, winner of the Rose Bowl.

Others appearing will be boy treble, Jay McGowan, pianist Nancy Meredith, violinists Diane Hayward and Darien Hunt, cellist George Kiraly, clarinettist Don Mayes, French hornist Corinne Dunn and speech art performers Ruth Chudley, Sheila Rearden and Neil Solomon.

15 TB Cases Discovered By Follow-Up

Seven of them were new active cases and eight were inactive.

The spring survey discovered one active case and two inactive cases of tuberculosis among those who were checked.

Native Plants To Be Studied

The collection will be used by provincial botanist Dr. Adam Szczawinski to determine the effects introduced species are having on native plants.

He will also try to determine the effect of people on plant communities.

Comparing the new collection with one taken in 1897, for example, will show which native plants are having the greatest difficulties in their struggle for survival.

Dr. Szczawinski pointed out that some plants have already lost the battle to survive in this area. An example are wild orchids which used to grow in Beacon Hill Park.

REFUSES TRANSFUSION

Young Witness Flees Hospital

MIRIAM
. . . gov't ward

Police Launch Search

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police launched a widespread search early today for a 15-year-old girl who fled from a hospital Tuesday night after refusing blood transfusions for religious reasons.

Miriam Myllyniemi of Penticton, a Jehovah's witness, was in St. Paul's Hospital as a ward of the British Columbia Children's Aid Society pending the outcome of a lengthy legal battle over her rights to refuse a transfusion.

Miriam's mother, Dorothy Myllyniemi, who also objects to her daughter receiving transfusions, brought an action in B.C. family court challenging the custody of the Children's Aid Society.

The girl's blood count was reported low and her condition serious in bulletins issued by police. She is suffering from a kidney disorder and was due to receive a transfusion Tuesday night or early today.

DIE FIRST

Miriam has said she would rather die than submit to a transfusion.

"I do not think the situation is as desperate as some people are making it out to be," said Tony Pantages, the girl's lawyer. "This is a serious religious problem with the girl. I don't know what other provocations there were."

He said he advised her to return to hospital rather than be picked up by police but did not indicate what her response was.

Simma Holt, a Vancouver Sun reporter, said she also spoke to the girl, and her mother, after Miriam left the hospital.

Miss Hold said she discussed

HAIPHONG CONVERTED INTO BATTLEFIELD

HONG KONG (Reuters)—North Vietnam's main seaport, Haiphong, has been converted into "a giant battleground, an immense sea of fire to consume the reckless United States moths," the North Vietnam news agency said today.

The agency said anti-aircraft guns are manned by workers and peasants of both sexes in Haiphong and neighboring areas.

SAIGON (UPI)—United States Navy jets today returned to the key North Vietnam port of Haiphong and bombed two power plants within the city limits and Kien An, the huge MiG interceptor base on the outskirts, spokesmen said.

Canada Expands Viet Medical Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — Maurice Strong, director of Canadian external aid, said today Canadian medical services in South Vietnam will be expanded.

Dr. Alje Vennema of Burlington, Ont., will be put in charge of the program.

Dutch-born Dr. Vennema, 34, who has been working in Vietnam for more than three years, outlined his plans for expansion of medical services:

—Sending of a complete medical team to Vietnam.

RETURNS SOON

Mr. Strong and Dr. Vennema described the plans in an interview here. Dr. Vennema will return next week to Vietnam, where he sees at least 200 patients a day.

Mr. Strong said money is not a limiting factor in what Canada can do medically in South Vietnam. The problem was to work out suitable projects in cooperation with the Vietnamese.

Children in the Saigon area have been inoculated against polio and smallpox. This program will be extended to cover as many as possible in South Vietnam.

SUPPLIES NEEDED

Dr. Vennema said there is a shortage of drugs, bandages and medical supplies.

A complete medical team will be sent to Vietnam, one by one as recruited.

The TB clinic will be expanded into a sanatorium with 50 beds and a complete laboratory and x-ray services. Two more doctors and two technicians will be sent to Quang Ngai. A TB immunization program will be carried out.

Dr. Vennema said more Vietnamese doctors will be trained at Hue.

New Defence Uses X-Rays On Missiles

NEW YORK (AP)—A Pentagon official said Tuesday the United States is developing a missile defence system that would use tremendous bursts of X-rays from thermonuclear explosions to destroy incoming missile warheads, the New York Times says.

The Washington story says congressional testimony by the Pentagon official, Dr. John S. Foster Jr., disclosed that this recently - adopted approach of using X-rays to destroy warheads at high altitudes has opened a new concept in missile defence.

It has also made it possible to develop an "area defence," said Foster, director of defence research and engineering, the story adds.

The story also says in part: The wide destructive range of X-rays, defence officials indicated, has greatly simplified the complex problem of intercepting and destroying ballistic missile warheads.

Thus, for high-altitude interception, it would no longer be necessary to aim defence missiles directly at the incoming warhead.

MARTIN ANSWERS CHARGE BY MONTREAL NEWSMAN

Spying Activities Denied

OTTAWA (CP)—The government stiffly denied Tuesday a journalist's claim that Canadians on the International Control Commission in Vietnam spy for the United States.

In a three-sentence statement on the report by Gerald Clark, associate editor of the Montreal Star, External Affairs Minister Martin said Canadians "are not engaged in any clandestine or spying activities."

Mr. Clark, who spent two months in Southeast Asia, wrote the Canadians are "functioning as spies when they are supposed to be serving as international civil servants." Meanwhile Mr. Martin talks of a peacekeeping role for the commission.

His critical front-page Star story said the Canadians "are betraying their trust" by passing on first-hand observations of North Vietnam to U.S. intelligence. Effectiveness of U.S. bombing attacks and other items of military significance are handed over.

Members of the tri - partite commission have access to both North and South Vietnam. Their role was originally truce supervision following France's forced military withdrawal from Vietnam in 1954.

The Martin statement added that Canada, like the other two commission members — Poland and India—conducts a quasi-diplomatic task in the war.

That involves "observation of local conditions and discussions with local authorities in both the North and the South in the course of normal commission activities.

Tim Ralfe, a CBC Ottawa correspondent who spent six months in Vietnam last year, said in broadcasts following the Star story it was no secret the Canadians co-operated with the Americans in Vietnam.

He recalled the head of the Canadian military mission on the commission took photographs and made tape record-

Royal Navy Puts Away Its Canes

LONDON (Reuters) — Caning in the Royal Navy — a form of punishment probably as old as the navy itself — has been abolished, the defence ministry announced Tuesday night.

Gerald Reynolds, defence minister for administration, told Parliament the ministry decided to get rid of the form of discipline to bring the navy into line with the army and air force.

A defence ministry spokesman said after the announcement that caning was only used at two boys' naval schools for violations such as violence, bullying, theft or continuous disobedience. There were 69 canings in the last 12 months, he said.

MHO Warns of Posting In Typhoid Epidemic Fear

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

"Danger — Contaminated Water" signs could replace the "Welcome Tourists" Signs in the View Royal area this summer.

Chief Metro Health Officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said today he is giving serious consideration to posting signs on all ditches and creeks in View Royal warning that all are contaminated and must be considered as a major threat to health.

"The situation is extremely serious," he said. "We have warned again and again of the growing hazard with little result. I think the next step will be the posting of signs warning parents that they are endangering the health of their children when they let them play near ditches and creeks in the area."

Dr. Whitbread said he had a real fear of a major outbreak of typhoid or cholera this summer.

"It would be disastrous for the community if such a thing happened," he said. "The tourist industry would be ruined for years.

"People seem to think it can't happen here. Have they forgotten the typhoid outbreak in Aberdeen, Scotland, in 1963-1964? That outbreak was not confined to Aberdeen. Visitors to Aberdeen were contaminated and carried the disease to other parts of Scotland, to England and even to Canada.

"It could happen here unless something is done to correct the situation which sees every ditch in the View Royal area seriously polluted."

Dr. Whitbread added that though typhoid and infectious hepatitis are the major concerns of his department at present, the spectre of cholera is also present.

"There are people who think that cholera is confined to Asiatic countries," he said. "But historical records show that it can strike in northern temperate zones, too. London has had a cholera epidemic—in which 616 died. Hamburg has had a cholera epidemic, so have other cities with climates similar to ours.

Asked if anti-typhoid shots would provide the answer to the danger Dr. Whitbread said that short of closing the southern end of the Island to visitors they would be of little use.

"The View Royal area is full of motels," he said. "Indeed the entire Greater Victoria area depends heavily on the tourist trade. It would be of little use to give residents anti-typhoid shots with so many transients passing in and out of the area."

Dr. Whitbread added that

U.S. 'GUILTY' IN VIETNAM RUSSELL TRIBUNAL FINDS

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—The United States today was found guilty of committing war crimes in Vietnam on two counts by British philosopher Bertrand Russell's "war crimes tribunal."

The tribunal said that the United States was proved to have committed aggression in Vietnam under international law and it also was guilty of bombing North Vietnam.

The tribunal's findings were based on the 1928 Kellogg-Briand pact under which the U.S. and France renounced war as a means of settling international disputes.

The judgment also invoked the United Nations Charter, the Nuernberg war crimes statutes and the 1954 Geneva agreements on Vietnam.

The judgment was a foregone conclusion. Even before it was issued an authoritative source said that the tribunal was ready to find the United States guilty on the two counts.

The sources aid that the judgment was based on decisions reached at a late conference of tribunal members Tuesday night.

As expected, the judgment came in the form of a concluding statement on the tribunal's hearings and did not prescribe a sentence.

A sentence was expected to be handed down when the tribunal resumes hearings here next October. The pattern for the sentence will follow the lines established at the Nuernberg trials of Nazi leaders after the Second World War.

The jury — as its executive president, Jean-Paul Sartre, has called the tribunal — was deadlocked Tuesday night on the actual wording of the final statement, the source added.

The split appeared to be between members who wanted outright condemnation of the United States and other members — notably Sartre, British historian Isaac Deutscher, Yugoslav historian Vladimir Dedijer and American pacifist Dave Ellinger — who took a more moderate line.

SPENT $1 MILLION ON FAKE MASTERS

Texas Oilman Bilked by Art Dealer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Authorities on two continents today were investigating the case of a Texas multimillionaire who was bilked out of a fortune in forged paintings by a notorious French art dealer.

More than $1 million was reported to have been spent for the faked paintings by Algur H. Meadows of Dallas, chairman of the General American Oil Co. of Texas, it was disclosed Tuesday.

The art dealers association of America said it had advised Meadows that 44 of the 58 oil paintings, sketches and water colors he purchased during the past four years are fakes—and not very good ones at that.

Ralph F. Colin, a New York lawyer and an officer of the association, said all but 11 of the 58 apparently were bought from a notorious Parisian dealer who makes "periodical trips to the United States to unload forged pictures."

MEADOWS
. . . money down well

French authorities were reportedly investigating the dealer as head of an international forgery ring. The FBI in New York disclosed that it had entered the case, along with the office of Manhattan district attorney, Frank S. Hogan.

Colin said the Meadows collection included 15 forged works purportedly by Duffy; seven by Modigliani; nine by Derain; five by Vlaminck, and two by Bonnard. Other fakes were represented to have been done by Degas, Picasso, Chagall, Cassatt, Laurencin, and Marquet.

Although Meadows was given certificates of authenticity when he purchased the paintings, Colin declared, "it's even easier to forge certificates of authenticity than it is to forge paintings.

WHAT'S UP FRONT doesn't count . . . at least this is the new prediction of Marshall McLuhan, the Toronto professor who has a lot of theories on communications. The shape of things to come for womanhood will be the "Twiggy-Look" instead of the "Sophia Loren-Look". Of Twiggy, the skeletal British model, he says: "She not a picture; she's an X-ray. She's geometrical, abstract." Of Sophia, the shapely Italian actress, we say: "Nuts to that McLuhan theory."

Victoria Daily Times

Arthur Mayse

To mention someone else's centennial may rate as a treasonable utterance, but I think you should be reminded that 100 years have now passed since Russia unloaded Alaska on the United States for $7,200,000.

At the time of the sale, a considerable clamor was raised by Americans who felt their country had been took. This attitude has changed, however, and the purchase today stands as the prime real estate deal of the century.

As witness to the fact, I have at my elbow the Alaska centennial edition of the Fairbanks Daily News-Miner, which in 236 well-illustraged pages brings the Alaska story up to date.

It's a big story, one that parallels our own British Columbia record to a remarkable degree. What interests me most about it is that so much has been accomplished by a resident population still well under the 300,000-mark.

★

A dip into the higgledy piggledy pile of sections brings up an account of a new industry which we may one day share. This is offshore oil production; and with our first marine oil rig soon to be on the job, the story of Alaska's Cook Inlet operation makes good reading.

Seven giant rigs, fabricated to withstand the press of an eight-knot tide laden with ice, are now in place there, and more are scheduled to tap this now proven oil and gas field.

Experts believe that the state's oil production will climb to 300,000 barrels a day by 1971, we are informed.

From Cook Inlet, pipe-lines now lead from pumping 'platforms' to shore: sign of a field definitely and successfully in business.

Salmon still tops the annual yield, but the long-legged king crab is moving up fast. Total value of all varieties is given as a whopping $160 million: a figure that we down here can't begin to match.

However, we will pass lightly and with raised eyebrows over an outdoor living section which proclaims that 'the greatest variety of sports fishing is found in Alaska waters'.

Enough to note that Alaskans are parks-conscious, and that their land management bureau maintains an extensive and continually-expanding recreation system.

Next, a look at the University of Alaska, 50 years old. It is set on a wooded 2,250-acre campus at Fairbanks and attended by students from 101 in-state communities.

"In the field of research," we are told, 'the university can be considered unique. It operates and administers some of the world's leading institutes devoted to study of the far northern environment."

★

Ketchikan is restoring an ancient fort, and Anchorage has a native cultural exhibit plus a frontier-type train plying between airport and town.

Were it not that we had other plans for this year, we'd like nothing better than to board the Queen of Prince Rupert — whose portrait is graciously displayed in the supplement — and add ourselves to a tourist horde that each year brings in more than the price of the Alaska purchase.

Last time I was up that way, the half-forgotten citizens of a territory more than one-fifth the size of the United States were having a rough time of it. I will look forward, 'when the chance offers, to observing the changes that have come with prosperity and statehood.

To the chum on the Daily News-Miner who sent the supplement down to me, much thanks. It does Alaska proud!

Sewage Plant Hearing Ordered

A public hearing has been called by pollution control director C. J. Keenan to consider a controversial Central Saanich application to dump treated sewage into Brentwood Inlet.

The meeting will be held at 10 a.m., at the Brentwood Women's Institute Hall, on May 30.

The director's decision on the issue will determine whether Central Saanich can go ahead with its proposed plan to install a $500,000 sewage system for the growing Brentwood community.

Under the act, the director has the sole authority to reject or approve an application.

Under the old act, pollution decisions were made by a seven-man board.

FAMILY JINX?

Fortune Teller 'Saw' Death

The 37-year-old Coombs millwright is suffering a skull fracture.

On Tuesday afternoon he was charged in Sooke magistrates court with the capital murder of Mrs. Lavina Maude Nicholson.

FAMILY JINX

While the court case was adjourned until Redlin is fit to stand trial, friends and relatives of the dead woman spoke of the family jinx.

Coincidence?

Maybe.

But let the facts speak for themselves:

On Oct. 28, 1963, Mrs. Quayle's son Gary died a violent death when he fell from the Bentall Building during its construction.

Marie Nicholson, one of two daughters of the murdered woman, narrowly escaped death when she was involved in a car collision on Sooke Road a few years ago. Another passenger was killed.

STORE UP FOR SALE

Mrs. Nicholson had complained recently of not feeling well.

Because of this the family business had been put up for sale only last weekend. After a lifetime of working, Mrs. Nicholson was going to put her feet up and retire to a peaceful life.

But the jinx struck first.

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Four famous Canadian aviators in the First World War will be honored guests of the French government and the Paris Air Show next week.

They are:

Wing-Cmdr. Donald MacLaren of Sidney; Air Vice Marshal Ray Collishaw, formerly of Nanaimo; Squadron Leader C. H. (Punch) Dickins and Air Marshal Wilf Curtis, both in Toronto.

The four aces will fly to Paris Tuesday with a party organized and sponsored by the federal department of trade and commerce led by Doug Dingwall of Ottawa.

"The trip is in the nature of a goodwill gesture to France," a department spokesman said. "It is also a recognition of the heroic role played by Canadian aviators in the First World War."

It is understood the airmen will receive medals from the French government.

They will be special guests of the government-sponsored Paris Air Show, at which Canadian firms will be exhibiting.

"We are honored to represent Canada at this exhibition," Mr. MacLaren said today. "Few people realize the erading contribution made by Canadian inventors and manufacturers to the development of aviation."

Mr. MacLaren is leaving for Ottawa Monday and will join the other aces there for the flight to Paris.

"I understand we shall be entertained by a number of organizations, including an association of French airmen, and will be taken on tours of factories."

50TH ANNIVERSARY

After the French tour, Mr. MacLaren will go to London to attend the 50th anniversary of the 46th Squadron, Royal Flying Corps.

He is one of Canada's famous quarter of war birds who together shot down more enemy planes than any other four aviators in the war.

Mr. MacLaren emerged from his many sky combats without injury. But his war career ended in October, 1918, when he broke his leg in a friendly wrestling match with a comrade.

WRESTLING MATCH

He won the Military Cross and Bar, Distinguished Flying Cross, Distinguished Service Order, the French Legion of Honor and the Croix de Guerre.

After the war he organized one of the first Canadian flying companies, Pacific Airways Ltd., later absorbed by Western Canada Airways. The latter became part of Canadian Airways Ltd. and Mr. MacLaren was appointed superintendent of the Pacific division.

Later he was executive assistant to the president, Pacific area, Trans Canada Air Lines.

NANAIMO NATIVE

Mr. Collishaw, now living in West Vancouver, is a native of Nanaimo. Wings attracted his daring and courageous nature in 1914 when England declared war on Germany in 1914.

Afterwards, when asked about the 60 planes he shot down, Mr. Collishaw replied: "The idea was to get on top of the other fellow so you could shoot down on him."

After hostilities ceased, he was sent to England to help form the Royal Canadian Air Force.

C. H. (Punch) Dickins is a son-in-law of the late Mrs. M. D. McKee of Victoria. He flew warplanes over Europe, patrolled the Rockies with the forestry aviation branch, opened up the barren lands of the Northland and pioneered Western Air Express and mail flights.

In the first war he shot down seven enemy planes and won the DFC. He has been executive vice-president of De Havilland Air Craft of Canada since 1964.

Air Marshal Wilf Curtis of Toronto served with the 6th Squadron 22nd Wing and the 10th squadron, 14th wing as fighter pilot in France and won the CB, CBE, DSC.

Thieves Use Fork Lift To Get Safe

The safe was found on the Victoria Foundries lot at 622 Pembroke with a five-inch by nine-inch hole cut into the door above the dial. Thieves removed $319 in cash and cheques and $58, which represented the day's take.

Entry was made through a window of the Mc and Mc Building. The burglars then got into the agency office and used a fork lift truck to shift the five-feet by 30-inch by 30-inch safe.

A set of centennial coins was stolen from a store at 839 Fort when thieves reached in through the door's letter slot and released the door latch.

Sleeping Smoker Dies After Apartment Fire

By TED GASKELL

A 72-year-old man died in Royal Jubilee Hospital at 4:30 this morning after being admitted on Tuesday suffering from burns.

William Mehan had apparently been smoking and fell asleep in a chair in his basement suite at 1176 Yates where he lived alone.

Mrs. Hazel Day, until recently landlady at the apartments and now a tenant, said she smelled smoke and went from her own apartment to the basement. On her way down, two other tenants came out and also reported smoke.

TROUSER BURNING

"By then, I could see the smoke haze and went into Mr. Mehan's apartment. I saw a fire and thought the floor was burning. Then I saw that it was Mr. Mehan's trouser leg. I put the fire out and saw that his feet were badly burned," she said.

Mrs. Day called the fire department and Mr. Mehan was taken to hospital.

"I was afraid something like this would happen," Mrs. Day said. "I'd often warned him about the danger fo falling asleep while he was smoking. He was a nice man, a very quiet tenant."

CANDY MAKER

Mr. Mehan was a retired candy maker for Ganong's in St. Stephen, New Brunswick. He was born and raised there and started with the firm in 1911 and retired in 1961. He served overseas with the artillery and cavalry during the First World War.

He was in Veterans' Hospital in New Brunswick in 1963 and in 1964 came to B.C. to live with his son Gerald at 3320 Cedar Hill Road. Two years ago he moved into an apartment.

Besides his son he is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Guy (Lois) Letarte, Quebec City; Mrs. Donald (Jacqueline) Smith, Woodland, Maine, and Mrs. Ralph (Frances) Rhoades, of Nassau, New York, and 13 grandchildren.

Mrs. Mehan died in 1953.

The bars which are available as high as 22 inches, are an aid to highway riding but are considered unsafe and are now illegal higher than 15 inches above the occupied motorcycle seat.

5 Identified By Policeman In Drug Case

Five persons present in a Ten Mile Point building, where packages allegedly containing marijuana were found, were identified by a policeman in central court today.

Charged with possession of marijuana for the purposes of trafficking are David McCallum, 18, of 1510 Dallas; Roger Hunter, 19, of 724 Yates; Michael Hartley, 20, of 5276, West Saanich Road; Cyril McColgan, 20, of 3122 Yew, and a 16 year-old juvenile.

All have pleaded not guilty and are represented by counsel.

PICTURES ENTERED

Pictures of the property of 3019 McAnnally Rd., where the accused and the packages were found, were entered as exhibits but pictures of the accused taken after apprehension were not allowed.

During discussion of the disallowed pictures, prosecutor Rodney Taylor referred to the accused persons as having substances which the Crown intends to show was marijuana.

Constable R. S. Pringle said he and another policeman had gone to the address, April 20, scaled a brick wall and went through the property, passing a greenhouse, a ramshackle summer cottage and finally came to a third building. He saw Hartley throw some plastic bags over a wall.

DARK SUBSTANCE

Hunter and McCallum had plastic bags containing a dark substance. He retrieved the bags which had been thrown away. He also found a Baggie box and some unused plastic bags, and some pieces of plastic bags.

He identified the accused men he had named then added that he had seen the other two at the same time.

Operators To Be Polled On Tax Idea

Questionnaires on a proposed room tax were being sent out today to operators in the Greater Victoria accommodation industry.

Vancouver Island president of the Canadian Restaurant Association William Webb, of Victoria, said as chairman of a special fact-finding group that information gathered would form part of a report to be made to Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

He said it would represent consensus of the tourist industry toward the proposal, which was put forward as a means of raising revenue for tourist promotion and establishment of a convention centre in Victoria.

At a meeting of the tourist industry group Tuesday the proposed tax was debated then tabled, pending the study.

An alternative proposal, to increase the business tax as a means of raising about $125,000 extra revenue for tourist promotion, also was deferred.

It was pointed out that only the city of Victoria levies a business tax in this area. The outlying municipalities have no such source of revenue to tap.

BIKE OWNERS BEWARE!

Don't Be 'Big Ape'; It's Ruled Illegal

Big "ape hangers" are out.

City police have received notice of an amendment to the Motor Vehicle Act regulations prohibiting driving anywhere in B.C. on motorcycles with handlebars extending more than 15 inches above the seat when the seat is occupied.

"Ape hangers" or "suicide bars" is the term applied to large motorcycle handlebars.

The amendment, which became effective March 2, will be enforced, say police.

The full text of the amendment:

"7.14: No person shall drive or operate on a highway a motorcycle unless the handlebars of the motorcycle are (a) firmly secured; (b) so secured that the maximum height to which the handlebars extend is not more than 15 inches above the level of the driver's seat of the motorcycle when the motorcycle seat is occupied."

CITY CYCLISTS BOYCOTT PARADE

Club president C. D. Moore said today the dispute over the wearing of the helmets has not been resolved and the club will not be participating in the parade.

"We cannot obtain suitable uniform helmets," he said. "It would spoil the effect if we were all wearing different helmets, so we just can't appear."

"This is the first time since 1927 that we will not be in the parade," said Mr. Moore.

DISAPPOINTED

"We are disappointed that the police don't see fit to make the same exemptions for us they make for others.

Earlier Mr. Moore had charged the police relaxed traffic laws for other groups during the parade but refused to do so with the motorcyclists.

The police chief had no comment on Mr. Moore's suggestion that traffic laws for other groups, particularly floats, were not strictly enforced during the parade.

"We have already stated that this helmet law must be enforced," said the chief, "and we are going to enforce it."

Chairman of the Greater Victoria Celebrations Committee, Lieut. John Rafter, supported the police.

"I'm disappointed that the club will not be in the parade," he said, "but safety must be our first concern."

Royal Navy Puts Away Its Canes

LONDON (Reuters) — Caning in the Royal Navy — a form of punishment probably as old as the navy itself — has been abolished, the defence ministry announced Tuesday night.

Gerald Reynolds, defence minister for administration, told Parliament the ministry decided to get rid of the form of discipline to bring the navy into line with the army and air force.

A defence ministry spokesman said after the announcement that caning was only used at two boys' naval schools for violations such as violence, bullying, theft or continuous disobedience. There were 69 canings in the last 12 months, he said.

She's geometrical, abstract." Of Sophia, the shapely Italian actress, we say: "Nuts to that McLuhan theory."

Young Witness Declines Blood, Flees Hospital

Police Launch Wide Search

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police launched a widespread search early today for a 15-year-old girl who fled from a hospital Tuesday night after refusing blood transfusions for religious reasons.

Miriam Myllyniemi of Penticton, a Jehovah's witness, was in St. Paul's Hospital as a ward of the British Columbia Children's Aid Society pending the outcome of a lengthy legal battle over her rights to refuse a transfusion.

Miriam's mother, Dorothy Myllyniemi, who also objects to her daughter receiving transfusions, brought an action in B.C. family court challenging the custody of the Children's Aid Society.

The girl's blood count was reported low and her condition serious in bulletins issued by police. She is suffering from a kidney disorder and was due to receive a transfusion Tuesday night or early today.

MIRIAM
. . . gov't ward

DIE FIRST

Miriam has said she would rather die than submit to a transfusion.

"I do not think the situation is as desperate as some people are making it out to be," said Tony Pantages, the girl's lawyer. "This is a serious religious problem with the girl. I don't know what other provocations there were."

Mr. Pantages indicated he talked to the girl after she left the hospital amid visiting hour crowds.

He said he advised her to return to hospital rather than be picked up by police but did not indicate what her response was.

Simma Holt, a Vancouver Sun reporter, said she also spoke to the girl, and her mother, after Miriam left the hospital.

Miss Hold said she discussed the possible danger to Miriam, and said the girl told her:

"I'd rather die this way than accept a transfusion. If I agreed to accept it, I would break God's commandment and jeopardize my life in the Kingdom of God."

Miss Holt said the girl and her mother, then drove away with friends.

Miriam was unsuccessful in an escape attempt earlier in the day. She was spotted outside the hospital trying to hail a taxi, but hospital officials bundled her back inside.

CLOTHES IN LOCKER

The second time, she apparently took her clothes from a locker and slipped out unnoticed as hospital visitors left after the evening visiting hour.

The Children's Aid Society took her into custody Jan. 17, four days after she was admitted to St. Paul's. Mrs. Myllyniemi took the case to court shortly thereafter.

Judge Earl Vance has reserved decision on the case, and was expected to hand down judgment later this week.

The case started in 1960 when the society took Miriam into custody while she was a patient in a children's hospital. Grounds for the action were that a lack of medical and surgical care would be likely to interfere with the girl's normal development.

BEING DEVELOPED

New Defence Uses X-Rays On Missiles

NEW YORK (AP)—A Pentagon official said Tuesday the United States is developing a missile defence system that would use tremendous bursts of X-rays from thermonuclear explosions to destroy incoming missile warheads, the New York Times says.

The Washington story says congressional testimony by the Pentagon official, Dr. John S. Foster Jr., disclosed that this recently - adopted approach of using X-rays to destroy warheads at high altitudes has opened a new concept in missile defence.

It has also made it possible to develop an "area defence," said Foster, director of defence research and engineering, the story adds.

The story also says in part: The wide destructive range of X-rays, defence officials indicated, has greatly simplified the complex problem of intercepting and destroying ballistic missile warheads.

MHO Warns of Posting In Typhoid Epidemic Fear

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

"Danger — Contaminated Water" signs could replace the "Welcome Tourists" signs in the View Royal area this summer.

Chief Metro Health Officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said today he is giving serious consideration to posting signs on all ditches and creeks in View Royal warning that all are contaminated and must be considered as a major threat to health.

"The situation is extremely serious," he said. "We have warned again and again of the growing hazard with little result. I think the next step will be the posting of signs warning parents that they are endangering the health of their children when they let them play near ditches and creeks in the area."

Dr. Whitbread said he had a real fear of a major outbreak of typhoid or cholera this summer.

"It would be disastrous for the community if such a thing happened," he said. "The tourist industry would be ruined for years.

"People seem to think it can't happen here. Have they forgotten the typhoid outbreak in Aberdeen, Scotland, in 1963-1964? That outbreak was not confined to Aberdeen. Visitors to Aberdeen were contaminated and carried the disease to other parts of Scotland, to England and even to Canada.

"It could happen here unless something is done to correct the situation which sees every ditch in the View Royal area seriously polluted."

Dr. Whitbread added that though typhoid and infectious hepatitis are the major concerns of his department at present, the spectre of cholera is also present.

"There are people who think that cholera is confined to Asiatic countries," he said. "But historical records show that it can strike in northern temperate zones, too. London has had a cholera epidemic—in which 616 died. Hamburg has had a cholera epidemic, so have other cities with climates similar to ours.

Asked if anti-typhoid shots would provide the answer to the danger Dr. Whitbread said that short of closing the southern end of the Island to visitors they would be of little use.

"The View Royal area is full of motels," he said. "Indeed the entire Greater Victoria area depends heavily on the tourist trade. It would be of little use to give residents anti-typhoid shots with so many transients passing in and out of the area."

Dr. Whitbread added that

IN THE SOUTH

Canada Expands Viet Medical Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — Maurice Strong, director of Canadian external aid, said today Canadian medical services in South Vietnam will be expanded.

Dr. Alje Vennema of Burlington, Ont., will be put in charge of the program.

Dutch-born Dr. Vennema, 34, who has been working in Vietnam for more than three years, outlined his plans for expansion of medical services:

—Backup medical supplies for all 20 units.

—Sending of a complete medical team to Vietnam.

Mr. Strong and Dr. Vennema described the plans in an interview here. Dr. Vennema will return next week to Vietnam, where he sees at least 200 patients a day.

Mr. Strong said money is not a limiting factor in what Canada can do medically in South Vietnam. The problem was to work out suitable projects in co-operation with the Vietnamese.

Children in the Saigon area have been inoculated against polio and smallpox. This program will be extended to cover as many as possible in South Vietnam.

SUPPLIES NEEDED

Dr. Vennema said there is a shortage of drugs, bandages and medical supplies.

A complete medical team will be sent to Vietnam, one by one as recruited.

The TB clinic will be expanded into a sanatorium with 50 beds and a complete laboratory and x-ray services. Two more doctors and two technicians will be sent to Quang Ngai. A TB immunization program will be carried out.

Dr. Vennema said more Vietnamese doctors will be trained at Hue. The Canadian program was aimed at teaching the Vietnamese to help themselves.

DISREGARDS POLITICS

Dr. Vennema said that at Quang Ngai, some 600 miles north of Saigon, he treats patients without regard to politics.

He said he travels unprotected as far as 30 miles from Quang Ngai once or twice a week to give medical attention to anyone who needs it.

Dr. Vennema, a bachelor, went to Vietnam originally to work for the late Dr. Tom Dooley's medical team. For the last two years he has been working for Canada's external aid program.

He said a children's centre is needed in Vietnam but not in Saigon. Canadian doctors in Vietnam must work in the field in a civilian environment.

MARTIN ANSWERS NEWSMAN'S CHARGE

Spying Activities Denied

OTTAWA (CP)—The government stiffly denied Tuesday a journalist's claim that Canadians on the International Control Commission in Vietnam spy for the United States.

In a three-sentence statement on the report by Gerald Clark, associate editor of the Montreal Star, External Affairs Minister Martin said Canadians "are not engaged in any clandestine or spying activities."

Mr. Clark, who spent two months in Southeast Asia, wrote the Canadians are "functioning as spies when they are supposed to be serving as international civil servants." Meanwhile Mr. Martin talks of a peacekeeping role for the commission.

His critical front-page Star story said the Canadians "are betraying their trust" by passing on first-hand observations of North Vietnam to U.S. intelligence. Effectiveness of U.S. bombing attacks and other items of military significance are handed over.

Members of the tri - partite commission have access to both North and South Vietnam. Their role was originally truce supervision following France's forced military withdrawal from Vietnam in 1954.

The Martin statement added that Canada, like the other two commission members — Peland and India—conducts a quasi-diplomatic task in the war.

That involves "observation of local conditions and discussions with local authorities in both the North and the South in the course of normal commission activities.

Tim Ralfe, a CBC Ottawa correspondent who spent six months in Vietnam last year, said in broadcasts following the Star story it was no secret the Canadians co-operated with the Americans in Vietnam.

He recalled the head of the Canadian military mission on the commission took photographs and made tape record-

SPENT $1 MILLION ON FAKE MASTERS

Texas Oilman Bilked by Art Dealer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Authorities on two continents today were investigating the case of a Texas multimillionaire who was bilked out of a fortune in forged paintings by a notorious French art dealer.

More than $1 million was reported to have been spent for the faked paintings by Alger H. Meadows of Dallas, chairman of the General American Oil Co. of Texas, it was disclosed Tuesday.

The art dealers association of America said it had advised Meadows that 44 of the 58 oil paintings, sketches and water colors he purchased during the past four years are fakes—and not very good ones at that.

Ralph F. Colin, a New York lawyer and an officer of the association, said all but 11 of the 58 apparently were bought from a notorious Parisian dealer who makes "periodical trips to the United States to unload forged pictures."

French authorities were reportedly investigating the dealer as head of an international forgery ring. The FBI in New York disclosed that it had entered the case, along with the office of Manhattan district attorney, Frank S. Hogan.

Colin said the Meadows collection included 15 forged works purportedly by Dufy; seven by Modigliani; nine by Derain; five by Vlaminck, and two by Bonnard. Other fakes were represented to have been done by Degas, Picasso, Chagall, Cassatt, Laurencin, and Marquet.

Although Meadows was given certificates of authenticity when he purchased the paintings, Colin declared, "it's even easier to forge certificates of authenticity than it is to forge paintings.

HAIPHONG CONVERTED INTO BATTLEFIELD

HONG KONG (Reuters)—North Vietnam's main seaport, Haiphong, has been converted into "a giant battleground, an immense sea of fire to consume the reckless United States moths," the North Vietnam news agency said today.

The agency said anti-aircraft guns are manned by workers and peasants of both sexes in Haiphong and neighboring areas.

SAIGON (UPI)—United States Navy jets today returned to the key North Vietnam port of Haiphong and bombed two power plants within the city limits and Kien An, the huge MiG interceptor base on the outskirts, spokesmen said.

The bombers streaked through heavy anti-aircraft fire that knocked down a U.S. Navy Skyhawk, the 536th American plane lost over North Vietnam.

U.S. 'GUILTY' TRIBUNAL FINDS

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—The United States today was found guilty of committing war crimes in Vietnam on two counts by British philosopher Bertrand Russell's "war crimes tribunal."

The tribunal said that the United States was proved to have committed aggression in Vietnam under international law and it also was guilty of bombing North Vietnam.

The tribunal's findings were based on the 1928 Kellogg-Briand pact under which the U.S. and France renounced war as a means of settling international disputes.

The judgment also invoked the United Nations Charter, the Nuernberg war crimes statutes and the 1954 Geneva agreements on Vietnam.

The judgment was a foregone conclusion. Even before it was issued an authoritative source said that the tribunal was ready to find the United States guilty on the two counts.

The sources aid that the judgment was based on decisions reached at a late conference of tribunal members Tuesday night.

As expected, the judgment came in the form of a concluding statement on the tribunal's hearings and did not prescribe a sentence.

A sentence was expected to be handed down when the tribunal resumes hearings here next October. The pattern for the sentence will follow the lines established at the Nuernberg trials of Nazi leaders after the Second World War.

The jury — as its executive president, Jean-Paul Sartre, has called the tribunal — was deadlocked Tuesday night on the actual wording of the final statement, the source added.

The split appeared to be between members who wanted outright condemnation of the United States and other members — notably Sartre, British historian Isaac Deutscher, Yugoslav historian Vladimir Dedijer and American pacifist Dave Dellinger — who took a more moderate line.
